ROOSEVELT VETO TERMED CERTAIN

sider Backing Inflation Bill as Strategical Move for Delay.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP)—
Democratic leaders conceded privately today the senate would vote full cash payment of the soldiers bonus next week, despite open warnings of a presidential veto.

Still planning to continue their fight over the week-end for the Harrison compromise, which the president is reported willing to sign, the administration leaders today apparently gave up hope of mustering sufficient strength to win.

The only question seemed to be whether the senate would favor the inflationary Patman bill, already approved by an overwhelming house majority, or the American Legion sponsored Vinson measure, providing for payment of the certificates out of ordinary revenues.

Back of the bonus measure, a long jam of administration legislation is pending in the senate. Democratic chiefs, with congress in its fifth month and with only one major Roosevelt measure—relief—enacted, appeared anxious today to get rid of the bonus proposition.

SENATE MAY SUSTAIN VETO.
They predicted, however, a vote of the Patman bill would be sustained in the senate. But they were doubtful whether they could uphold a veto of the more conservative Vinson measure.

For that reason, they were considering throwing their strength to the inflationary bill as a strategic move.

Republican leaders, who are supporting the Vinson plan, flatly predicted it could be passed over a veto.

Once the veterans issue is out of the way, administration leaders said congress would get to work on the

30 Killed, 50 Hurt In Brazilian Storms

BAHIA, Brazil, May 4.—(UP)—
Thirty persons were killed and 50 injured in the severe rainstorms that swept this city during the past five days, according to reliable estimates tonight.

The estimates were disclosed as the storms continued with increasing force.

Two fire corps officers, six firemen and the civilians were reported still missing in the ruins of buildings destroyed by the storms. Three hundred midtown edifices collapsed because of undermining by the waters, it was said.

FRIENDS AND FOES OF REPEAL CLAIM VICTORY ON MAY 15

Opposing Forces Gird for Whirlwind Finish in Final Ten Days of Pre-Referenda Campaign.

With only ten days remaining before the referendum, Georgia's repeal and dry forces last night were on the cannon for a final barrage of propaganda with each side claiming sweeping victory.

From repeal headquarters came a claim that at least 100 Georgia counties would show a majority for repeal of the bone dry law, while from the dry headquarters came the protest that "beer won't buy schoolbooks."

Spence M. Grayson, of Savannah, chairman of the Georgia Association for Local Option, before addressing a repeal rally yesterday afternoon at Rutledge, in Morgan county, said 100 counties would be in the repeal column following the referendum. He said of 75 counties he had visited with S. Marvin Griffin, of Bainbridge, co-chairman of the association, 55 would show a repeat majority.

Woman Leaves Committee As Protest on Talmadge

Mrs. Julian Lane Cannot Remain on State Democratic Group Longer, She Writes.

STATESBORO, Ga., May 4.—Mrs. Julian Lane, prominent Statesboro democrat, today resigned as a member of the Talmadge-controlled state democratic executive committee as a result of Governor Talmadge's attacks upon President Roosevelt and his administration.

Commenting on the statement of Judge Candler, Ralph J. Blane, of the Georgia Macon Beverage Association, called attention to Section 10 of the beer legislation act upon which the referendum is being held. This section was sponsored in the general assembly by Speaker E. D. Rivers, of the house of representatives. The section follows:

"Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that funds derived from the sale of beer shall be apportioned as follows: An amount not to exceed three per cent (3 per cent) of the revenue annually shall be paid to the state revenue commission for enforcing this act; the remainder shall be set apart and devoted for the support of the common schools of the state, and used for the purpose of furnishing free schools to the children of common schools, and it is hereby declared such purpose to be for and in support of common schools."

The statement of Judge Candler follows:

Misrepresentation Charged.
"Statesboro, Ga., May 2, 1935: Chairman Georgia State Democratic Executive Committee, Atlanta, Ga.:

"Dear Sir: I demand it a high privilege and an honor to serve as a member of the Georgia state democratic executive committee. It was a pleasure to me to do so, and I served the interest of the people at least as far as I could, endeavoring at all times to assist my state in a manner that would reflect credit on the administration and an honor to the party. It is with deep regret that issues have been brought by the governor that causes me to break faith with our present administration.

At the same time, Mrs. Lane, who is president of the Eleanor Roosevelt Woman's Democratic Club, sent a letter to President Roosevelt in which she called the attacks by Governor Talmadge "deplorable."

In Atlanta it was said the personnel of the state democratic executive committee has never been made public.

The old committee, of which Mrs. Lane was a member, died with the Macon convention last year. In her letter Mrs. Lane said she didn't know if she was a member of the committee or not but if so she was resigning.

'NAPED RED CALLS PROBE 'FRAME-UP'

Investigator Hurls 'Liar' at Minor, Who Says Abductors Aided.

GALLUP, N. M., May 4.—(AP)—Shouts of "liar" and an accusation of "frame-up" broke up a hospital conference today of a New York communist and a Philadelphia barrister with one of the principal investigators of their asserted abduction and abandonment in the desert.

"The investigation is closed," C. R. McIntosh, an assistant district attorney, told Robert Minor, noted for his editorship of the Daily Worker, and David Levinson, the lawyer, at one point in the bitter exchange.

Minor and Levinson have been working in behalf of 10 jobless men accused of members of a gang of a riot. Gallup, April 4 which cost three lives. Hooded men, they said, seized them Thursday night, took them to the desert and beat them.

Governor Backs Probe.

At Santa Fe Governor Clyde Tingley reiterated that his instructions stand and "investigation" for the state police will continue Gallup until the case is solved or as long as there is any possible hope of clearing up the matter."

McIntosh, with the avowed purpose of questioning Minor and Levinson, went to the hospital where the pair were under watch both by state police and their associates in the Gallup riot defense.

Minor accused McIntosh of winking at a near-by reporter as Levinson asked that they touch his cold hands and warm forehead to see for themselves that he was ill.

"You are a . . . liar," McIntosh said.

"That is a complete indication of your attitude, Mr. McIntosh, toward running down these cowardly kidnappers by using the words ' . . . liar' when you are seeking co-operation," said Minor, adding:

"This is another 'frame-up,' he described the riot itself as a 'frame-up.'

Admits Frame-Up.

"Yes, this kidnapping is a frame-up," answered McIntosh.

McIntosh said he took full responsibility for calling Minor a "liar" and made the statement independent of his position.

Minor brought the meeting to an end by telling McIntosh:

"You will now leave the room. We have full knowledge of your attitude toward the kidnappers. They are safe in your hands."

Other investigators used skilled water trackers, and medical science in their efforts to solve the abduction.

The injuries of Minor and Minor were described by Dr. P. L. Travers as one cut for Levinson and five for Minor.

Some officers privately expressed a hope that federal operatives would be assigned to the inquiry that any findings might also have their corroborative effect.

Representatives of the county and state of New York demanded in the course of a hearing at the Attorney-General Cummings intervene.

Gain Is Shown Here In State, County Taxes

State and county tax returns made to date are far in excess of last year's returns for the corresponding date, it was announced yesterday by Guy Moore, tax receiver.

Moore announced at the same time that in order to give people opportunity of getting the new 10 per cent premium for not mailing returns, the time has been extended for state and county taxes to May 30, and for city taxes to May 15. After May 30, Moore said, he will be forced to comply with the law with regard to the penalty.

Crain Appointed To Head Life Insurance Week Here

Committee in Charge Is Announced by President of Atlanta Underwriters.

John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company: F. L. Akers Jr., manager.

Charles Chalmers, New York Life Insurance Company; N. Baxter Mador, general agent, Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company; and Marx Jr., Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company; Hanson McNamara, Mutual Life of New York; Henry M. Powell, general agent, State Mutual Life Insurance Company; Walter Powell, general agent, John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company; P. L. Beale Smith, Guardian Life Insurance Company; and Lawrence Willett, associate general agent, Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Life insurance week will be observed throughout the nation. Never before has the public been so well informed as will be given during the six-day period.

Chairman Crain said: "Striking advertisements will appear in the newspapers of more than 200 cities and public attention will be focused on life insurance by posters and other materials. Atlanta merchants and other business leaders are planning to co-operate and a series of radio broadcasts is being arranged.

Atlanta ranked among the leading cities in results obtained during life insurance week in 1937. Although the matter of production of life business is secondary to that of educational promotion, it is interesting to note that the members of the Atlanta life agencies submitted a total of 871 applications, representing $2,826,163 in new life insurance applied for during the week last year. Mr. Crain declared.

Mr. Crain, a native Georgian, has been very active for the past several years in promoting the interests of the Life Underwriters' Fraternity in Atlanta and throughout the state. He was president of the Atlanta association in 1934.

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE

OR THE SIGNIFICANCE OF

YOUR DOCTOR WANTS TO keep YOU WELL

In most of the articles in this series you have noticed the line "Your Doctor wants to KEEP you well." That is emphatically and literally true, both of the individual physician and of medical scientists in general.

The administration of drugs, surgery and treatment of disease are by no means the sole functions of the modern doctor and scientist. He is just as active in the prevention of disease as in curing it. Spreading the gospel of health rules and hygienic living is prevention of ill-health; establishment of clinics for the control of infant mortality is prevention of unnecessary death; tuberculosis societies and sanatoria, cancer institutes, and hundreds of scientific research bureaus—all are laboring to prevent as well as cure disease.

Prenatal care is to prevent unnecessary suffering and death; school supervision of health is to promote better bodies and minds and prevent disease; all were worked out by doctors in their battle for better health and less sickness.

The proper drainage of a mosquito-breeding marshland is prevention, but back of that piece of public-health engineering, the scientist had to discover that malaria was caused by mosquitoes. Administering vaccines and serums prevents smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid, whooping cough and other diseases, but years of patient work by medical men went into perfecting these instruments of "preventive" medicine.

Telling you over and over to "have a complete examination once a year" is "preventive medicine," in that it locates trouble IN TIME and helps your doctor to keep you well. Every year the physician in his daily practice becomes more and more a HEALTH advisor.

MINORITY FLAYED BY RELIEF HEAD

Hopkins Says Few Would Bring Own Selfish World Around Their Heads.

NEW YORK, May 4.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, national director of relief, today denounced what he called "a few men representing a small minority of the business interests of the nation" who, if they had their way, would bring down even their own selfish world around their heads.

The men of whom he spoke, he told a luncheon of the Catholic Charities at the Hotel Commodore, "regard any determined effort to give economic democracy to a political democracy as activity dangerous and subversive to America's well-being."

"Make no mistake about it," he said. "The same forces that so bitterly opposed Al Smith in his glorious battles in behalf of the poor and the unfortunate in New York state have now marshalled their conventions, their typewriters and their specious arguments under the dome of the nation's capital."

He named as a force opposing a fight for social security "the wilfully predatory persons who wish to seize and hold more than any one man should hold."

"When men and women no longer feel apologetic for being on the side of the underdog, but like social outcasts of the oppressors," he said, "then with the same scientific genius which has distinguished American industrial engineering, we shall build an economic society within the ample framework of our political democracy by which men's livelihoods, their health, their happiness, all may live in line with their lives rather than fear it."

Patrick Cardinal Hayes also spoke.

Mallory Lines Plan Gotham Excursions

The low summer rates announced by Cleveland Lines offer the vacationer a holiday in New York at minimum cost. Fast, luxurious vessels sailing via the cruiseway in a frequent service make it possible to holiday in the metropolis with stop-over privileges ample to visit the night clubs, skyscrapers and huge mercantile centers, the museums and historical points of New York, with the additional pleasure of a sea-voyage beginning and ending the vacation.

Summer fares include meals and entertainment, accommodations, numerous shipboard entertainments and amusements en route, with nightly dancing and the full facilities of an ocean cruise. Niagara Falls, Coney Island, Broadway, hundreds of little out-of-the-way restaurants, with a formal dinner, galleries, and of course, the Fifth Avenue shopping district, and Radio City, all contribute to the variety and completeness of a metropolitan vacation.

Reduced summer fares to New York from Charleston, allowing a 60-day vacation, are available for as little as $25 for the round trip, leaving from the Queen street piers every Monday and Saturday. Vacationists can take their cars for only $27.50 round trip when accompanied by two passengers.

Techwood Inspection Ends Housing Parley

The two-day low cost housing conference, conducted at the Hotel Biltmore under the auspices of the Georgia School of Technology, came to a close yesterday with a tour of inspection to Techwood, the nation's first low-cost project, now in process of construction.

Colonel Horatio B. Hackett, director of housing of the Public Works Administration, was the principal speaker at the closing session yesterday. He spoke on "General Aspects of the Low Rent Project Housing Movement in the United States" and his talk was accompanied by lantern slides.

Other speakers were Colonel Roger D. Black, head of the management branch of the housing division of the FERA, who spoke on "Operation and Management"; B. M. Pettit, chief of the Georgia State Planning and Construction Division of the FERA, who discussed "Inauguration of Projects"; F. D. Budge, Techwood architect, and William J. Sayward, architect of the Atlanta University project.

NEGRO AID IN ESCAPE HELD TO HIGHER COURT

Admitting he supplied five hacksaw blades used by three confessed burglars to saw their way out of the new "escape-proof" city jail April 24, William Butler, negro trusty, was held over yesterday afternoon on $2,000 bond on charges of aiding an escape, it was announced before Recorder A. W. Callaway.

The three who escaped, R. B. Hargie, W. A. Reeves and J. C. McConnell Jr., were captured four days later in Tampa, where they are being held despite the appeal of Atlanta authorities that the men be returned here to face trial for the burglary of the George M. Glass Clothing Company and other places.

Hungary's delegates also said their country proposed a sign mutual assistance pact with Italy and Austria, but refused to sign them with the Little Entente powers. They cited two reasons for their refusal regarding the Little Entente: Such pacts would recognize Hungary's present boundaries as defined in the post-war treaties—something she will never do. The pacts would present an armed front to Germany—something Hungary does not relish.

CONFEDERATE SOLDIER, LEONARD PARKER, DIES

Sumter County Veteran Passes at Home Here in 100th Year.

Death yesterday wrote the final chapter in the long and useful life of a Confederate veteran, who, it is said, who had lived until August, would have passed the hundredth milestone.

One of the most prominent citizens of Sumter County, where until his retirement several years ago he farmed one of the most productive plantations in the country, Mr. Leonard Parker, 100, died at his home in the Confederate Soldiers' Home at Atlanta, where he could associate with his companions of the war-torn days of the sixties.

Born in Sumter County, he enlisted in Cutts Artillery in 1861, and served through the four years of the war in Company A, Twenty-second Georgia. After the war he lived in the Atlanta home of General Robert E. Lee when the Confederate commander surrendered at Appomattox.

In good spirits almost to the hour of his death yesterday, he was one of the most loved of the veterans at the Atlanta home.

A year after he was mustered out of the service he married Miss Aseneth Duncan, member of a prominent Sumter County family. They were the parents of two children who survived, a son, E. G. Parker, of Americus, and Mrs. J. G. Battle, of Mims, Fla. The body was sent to Americus last night by J. Austin Dillon for funeral services and burial.

DEDICATION TUESDAY FOR AUTHORS' STONES

Four To Be Added to Walk
Nest.

Stones dedicated to the memory of famous Georgians will be laid at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Wren's Nest, home of Joel Chandler Harris, creator of the immortal Uncle Remus tales. It was announced yesterday by Mrs. H. G. Hastings, chairman of the "authors' walk" of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association. The authors' walk begins at the famous tulip tree on the old Harris home and ends at the entrance to Mr. Harris' private library. The tree was dedicated to the late famous author by John Burroughs and the Burroughs Memorial Society.

The idea of making the walk a memorial to leading Georgians has progressed rapidly and four new stones are to be set at the ceremonies Tuesday.

One dedicated to Lucian Lamar Knight will be sponsored by The Constitution; the memory of late Mrs. Corra Harris will be sponsored by the Atlanta Journal; the memory of Mary E. Bryan, editor of the Sunny South, is to be dedicated by the Claridon Woman's Club, and stones to Mrs. Augusta Evans Wilson will be dedicated by the Fifty-Fifth Club of Atlanta.

Members of the staffs of The Constitution and Journal and members of the two clubs are invited to attend the dedication ceremony.

Four members of the association also are urged to attend. Members of the Harris family will be honored guests.

Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, president of the association, announced that members will meet at a special session at 2 o'clock and will adjourn in time to begin the dedication at 3 o'clock.

State Medical Association To Convene Here Tuesday

Three nationally famous leaders in the world of medicine are to be guest speakers at the annual convention of the Medical Association of Georgia which will be held here this week, beginning Tuesday and continuing through Friday. The guest speakers are shown above. From left to right they are Dr. L. F. Barker, of Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore; Dr. Austin A. Hayden, of St. Joseph's hospital, Chicago, and Dr. Reuben Leon Kahn, of the school of medicine of the University of Michigan.

The Medical Association of Georgia will have its eighty-sixth annual sessions here this week, beginning Tuesday and concluding Friday, it was announced yesterday. Dr. Clarence L. Ayers, president of the association, will preside over the sessions which will be at the Atlanta Biltmore.

Three nationally known leaders in the world of medicine are on the convention program. They are Dr. Reuben Leon Kahn, director of laboratory of the University of Michigan Medical School; Dr. Lewellys Franklyn Barker, professor emeritus of medicine at Johns Hopkins University school of hygiene, and Dr. Austin A. Hayden, head of the department of otolaryngology and ophthalmology, at St. Joseph's hospital, Chicago.

The first session will be held at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, at which the reports of the state president and other officials will be heard as well as reports from delegates to the annual meeting of the American Medical Association. Discussion of these reports will be followed by other round-table talks on various diseases. This will be a meeting of what the association terms its "house of delegates." Similar meetings are scheduled for Tuesday night with the final delegate session being set for Friday morning.

All other meetings of the convention will be open to the public.

A special session after the session's feature will be the presentation of the "badge of service" to Dr. Ayers for his work while president of the association. The presentation will be made by W. A. Shelton, of Atlanta. At this session Dr. Kahn and Dr. Haydon will make a call on the former being presented to the association by Dr. Joseph Yampolsky and the latter by Dr. Allen H. Bunce, both of Atlanta.

Dr. Barker's address in the more common dimension of the nervous system is set for Wednesday morning.

Dr. Kahn is internationally known as the developer of the "Kahn blood test," and has lectured at all the larger medical centers of Europe and South America. He is the author of numerous books, and in 1903 was awarded the A. A. A. A. prize for his paper, "Tissue Reactions in Immunity." He will speak on the newer concepts of immunity and allergy, and their importance in modern medicine.

Like Dr. Kahn, Dr. Ayers is known throughout the world as a writer, teacher, investigator and consulting practitioner. He followed the late Sir William Osler to the chair of medicine, at Johns Hopkins, and is the author of numerous books dealing with the nervous system, general medicine and diseases of the endocrine glands.

Dr. Hayden, also widely known, will speak following Dr. Kahn, and will discuss the American Medical Association. He will present a moving picture showing the numerous activities of that association.

Efforts have been made to make this year's convention one of the best

STATE IS COLLECTING DELINQUENT GAS TAX

$35,529 Obtained in Week, Yeomans Reports to Governor Talmadge.

State officials are making persistent efforts to hedge evasions of the 6 cents gasoline tax and by executive order from the governor $189,000 of $537,067 found in the delinquent tax has been drawn into the treasury to date.

In a report to Governor Eugene Talmadge, M. J. Yeomans, attorney and Auditor Tom Wisdom, who were assigned to this particular task by the governor. Audits of the various gasoline stations in the state by municipalities and county figures are coming by Wisdom and turned over to Yeomans.

Much of the delinquent tax, Yeomans commented, goes back as far as 1927. In some cases it is necessary to go into court to make collections. In three instances where it has been issued, litigation flared and the cases still are pending. These involve $78,900 owed the state by oil companies; Griffin, $39,000 owed by an Atlanta firm, and $23,000 due from a Macon concern.

Of this week's collections, $20,000 came from the city of Atlanta. The city owes an additional $23,000 which is to be paid in June, Yeomans said yesterday. It was announced yesterday by Gordon Hardy, general convention chairman, with the co-operation of Mike Ben-

Arrangements for entertainment of delegates to the annual convention of Georgia County and Peace Officers' Association to be held in Atlanta Thursday, Friday and Saturday, have been completed, it was announced yesterday by Gordon Hardy, general convention chairman.

Only one change in the original program has been made. The barbecue which had been planned to be held at the country home of Sheriff Jake Hall, of DeKalb county, will be held Thursday at Lakewood park instead, with the co-operation of Mike Benton, president of the fair association. Hardy announced that "Big Bill" Turner has promised to superintend the barbecue. Chief George Matheson and Al Martin will also have prominent part in the event.

Hardy urged all delegates to register with the secretary at the Biltmore hotel promptly at 9 o'clock Thursday morning in order that the convention may get under way at 10 o'clock. The main address, which will be delivered on opening day, is to be by Hugh H. Clegg, assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, director of the United States Department of Justice.

Among affairs planned for the luncheon is a visit to the Woman's Club, the governor's mansion, and a dinner at East Lake Country Club. A dance at the Ansley will be the main social event.

Decorative work for the restaurant and sidewalk canals will be done by Harry Smith, well-known continental designer. A veritable fountain of flowers will mark seven sections in the show and will draw horticultural exhibitors and admirers from all over the state.

Key Proclaims Flower Week As Show Prepares for Opening

Enlisting the aid of all citizens to aid in furthering Atlanta's position as a city of beautiful homes and gardens, and urging that all citizens aid the efforts of the city's garden clubs, Mayor James L. Key, in an official proclamation Saturday named May 6 to 11 as Atlanta Flower Week.

The participating clubs, the Peachtree Garden Club, were rushing preparations for the south's greatest flower show to be held at 671 Peachtree May 9 and 10. The show will open on Thursday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon with ceremonies presided over by Mayor Key and officials of the garden clubs.

Mayor Key's proclamation was as follows, in full:

"Whereas, Atlanta is known as a city of beautiful homes and gardens, and for this reason attracts thousands of visitors every year, and

"Whereas, the many garden clubs of a city-wide nature, which have

"...and praiseworthy work in beautification and in encouraging others to make homes and surroundings more attractive, thereby making Atlanta a better place to live in, and

"Whereas, these garden clubs have joined hands to present on May 9 and 10, a flower show which will reveal vividly the skill of Atlanta gardeners and inculcate in others a love of beauty,

"Therefore, I, James L. Key, mayor of Atlanta, do hereby proclaim the week of May 6-11 as flower week in Atlanta, and urge all citizens to observe the week fittingly, assisting in spreading the love and knowledge of flowers and the desire to add to the beauty of the city.

"Given under my hand this 2nd day of May, 1935."

(Signed) JAMES L. KEY,
Mayor of Atlanta.

The biggest event of flower week will be the annual Atlanta flower show to be held Thursday and Friday, and which has enlisted the co-operation of the city's garden clubs and the efforts of many individuals as well as a number of business houses.

The show is scheduled to open at 2 o'clock p. m. Thursday and again on Friday at 10 o'clock in the morning. The show will remain open until 10 o'clock in the evenings both days. Proceeds from the event will be used for the charitable and civic projects of the garden clubs, and will make the event the biggest thing of its kind in the southeast, and a floral event that will rival the annual flower show given in New York. Mayor Key, Mrs. T. Hubbard McHattie, president of the Garden Clubs of Georgia, Mrs. James Floyd, chairman of flower show, and Mrs. Robert L. Conner, honorary president of the club, will take part in the opening ceremonies.

Lieutenant of Long Enters U. S. Prison

State Representative Joseph Fisher, of Louisiana, political follower of Senator Huey P. Long, was convicted of violating the federal income tax laws, became a mere number yesterday when the gates of the federal penitentiary here where he must serve an 18-month sentence, closed behind him.

Escorted by two United States deputy marshals, Fisher was brought to Atlanta on an overnight train from New Orleans and was carried to the prison in an automobile which met the group at the Terminal station. Two other federal prisoners, convicted for liquor law violations, were in the party. The trip was made without incident.

CIVIL SERVICE LEADER TO ADDRESS WOMEN

Georgia Voters' League To Hear Harry B. Mitchell at Luncheon.

Harry B. Mitchell, president of the United States Civil Service Commission, will appear in Atlanta tomorrow, addressing the Georgia League of Women Voters at a luncheon at the Athletic Club.

The commission head is scheduled to arrive today from Washington and will leave for California following the athletic club program. His Atlanta address, in which he will discuss the problems of obtaining trained personnel in the government, will be broadcast over station WSB from 3:15 to 3:30 yesterday.

Miss Josephine Wilkins, president of the Georgia League, in announcing the address, said civil service is a subject of prime importance to the League of Women Voters at this time. The organization, through its national and state branches has launched a two-year campaign in support of trained personnel in government.

MAY DAY FESTIVAL, HEALTH PROGRAM FOR COLLEGE PARK

The four schools of College Park will stage a joint May Day festival and health day program at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon on the grounds of the Samuel R. Young school. A half holiday has been proclaimed by the mayor.

The festival will open with a parade of school children headed by the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, an organization formed by the College Park post of school boys and girls. The health-day exercises will follow the parade and will conclude at 4 o'clock. This program is being sponsored by the P.T.A. organization.

Following the health day exercises will be a veritable field of flowers and will draw horticultural exhibitors and admirers from all over the state.

MRS. HAUPTMANN SUED BY REILLY

$22,398 Claim for Services Filed by Former Counsel.

(Copyright, 1938, by the United Press.) NEW YORK, May 4.-(UPI)-The feud between Edward J. Reilly, bluff, breezy and belligerent ex-counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, and the mouse-like Anna Hauptmann, and the man, wife of the condemned Lindbergh baby murderer, burst into the open again today.

Reilly, who was "removed" from the case on Mrs. Hauptmann's orders, filed suit against her for $22,398.82, due him, he says, for expenses and fees incurred in defending her husband at Flemington, N. J.

The suit may bring into the open the smoldering disagreements among the defense counsel that were successfully smothered during the trial. It may also crack open the mystery of the Hauptmann defense fund, collected by popular subscription and at mass meetings in New York, Detroit and Chicago.

Tonight Mrs. Hauptmann was faced with an order from the New York supreme court to show cause—

1. Why she should not be enjoined from disposing of funds in her possession.

2. Why a receiver should not be named to conserve the Hauptmann defense funds.

3. Why the court should not fix and determine the amount due the erstwhile chief counsel.

4. Why the funds should not be impressed into trust.

Reilly's application to the court requested "an information and belief." Mrs. Anna Hauptmann was dissipating the funds for purposes other than those for which the funds were collected, and that "she has stated publicly that she will not pay this plaintiff one cent out of those funds."

Action Not Surprised.

The court action comes as no surprise to those who had watched the increasing resentment between the Brooklyn advocate and the three "country lawyers" associated with him in the trial—C. Lloyd Fisher, Egbert Rosserman, and Judge Frederick A. Pomeroy.

Fisher is trustee for a defense fund which is on deposit in New Jersey. Mrs. Hauptmann has collected, through two ex-waiters who became her "managers" after her husband's conviction, a sum estimated at from $15,000 to $45,000. The extent of the latter fund has been a closely guarded secret.

The history of Hauptmann's legal representation from the time of his arrest to the present time, has been full of surprises and drama.

James M. Fawcett was his first counsel. Fawcett was discharged from the case last November and supplanted on Mrs. Hauptmann's orders by Reilly, who is appointed Fisher, Rosserman and Pomeroy as his assistants.

There was dissension between the four legal advisors throughout the trial, with Reilly and Fisher in almost open antagonism over the proper method of procedure.

After the trial, Mrs. Hauptmann broke with Reilly, Mrs. New York pageant interest which had subsidized her by payment of $20 a week for her living expenses and put her fortunes into the hands of her two Yorkville managers.

"Campaigned" for Funds.

Reilly, for a few weeks, "campaigned" for defense funds, persuading Hauptmann's audience at mass meetings and Rotary Club gatherings. Then, after Mrs. Hauptmann began her barnstorming career in the hinterland, he was suddenly discharged as chief counsel and his place was taken by Fisher.

"None of the defense counsel, including myself," Reilly said at that time, "were in this business for our health. This was a business transaction and I'm not going to wait until October to get my money."

Meanwhile, he had presented the condemned man, in his cell at Trenntown, a bill for $20,000.

He also suggested that he had grave fears for the outcome of Hauptmann's appeal, set for June 30 before the New Jersey court of errors and appeals, unless he were retained as chief counsel.

"I have spent large sums of money," Reilly said in his complaint today. "Mrs. Hauptmann agreed to collect a defense fund through appearances in public and on the radio. She actually collected $15,000 in that manner, but when I asked her to pay she refused to pay me."

The Brooklyn lawyer claimed expenses of $1,000 and set his demands at $25,000, making a total of $29,761.82. He has been paid $7,362.68, he said, leaving a balance due of $22,398.82.

Feodor Chaliapin Is Still in Danger

PARIS, May 4.-(UPI)—Continued improvement in the condition of Feodor Chaliapin led his physician to say tonight, "I hope he is saved," but he added the Russian singer is not yet out of danger.

"His kidneys are in poor condition and his heart is tired," said the personal physician, Dr. Abramov. "Therefore he may still fear a sudden complication tomorrow or on the days following."

WORKER HURT IN JUMP OFF BURNING BUILDING

Severely injured in a 15-foot leap from the ground from a ventilator in which he was trapped, a worker was in the Gaudeo theater building under construction on Gordon, near Hopkins street, Floyd Chase, worker installing the cooling system in the theater, was admitted to St. Joseph's infirmary yesterday afternoon.

Chase, who tore out a portion of the ventilation system, was admitted to the hospital with a fractured right arm, a broken right arm and possible internal injuries. The fire, which started when workers on the roof of the building spilled a pot of burning tar, did only slight damage before it was extinguished.

Organization to the appeal to all citizens to make voluntary returns is indicated in the volume of inquiries and messages pledging support that poured in on Mr. Glenn and members of the central committee, as well as tax authorities, Atlanta, Fulton and DeKalb counties immediately after the tax was announced.

Citizens throughout the metropolitan area declared this movement was the solution to the vexing tax problem and the salvation of the home owner.

Business leaders also hailed it as a means of putting new life in communities and industries, and the return of old capital which had fled the state to escape the high rate of taxation on intangibles under the old law.

The movement will gain intensity until May 15, the deadline for making voluntary returns of intangibles in a state of status quo, or words to that effect.

"All those who are behind the movement are ready to give assistance and information at any time, and help in any way."

The tax authorities, including Guy A. Moore, Fulton county tax receiver; J. C. Little, Harry M. Persson and Leo Sudderth, Atlanta board of tax assessors, and H. H. Howard, tax commissioner of DeKalb county.

Success of this movement, according to Thomas K. Glenn, general chairman, will be a long step toward relieving homeowners of the present high real estate tax burden.

It was declared that lack of returns from the real estate tax assessors, up to and including the tax burden is possible only if these classes of property are placed on the tax digest.

BOOMERANG SEEN IN F.D.R. ATTACK

Republican Snell Springs to Defense of United States Chamber.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(UPI)—President Roosevelt's break with organized business brought political repercussions tonight and a biting re-attack.

House Republican Leader Bertrand Snell sprang to the defense of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Democratic leaders and liberal spokesmen supported the president.

The break with organized business was considered of first political importance, in view of jockeying already beginning looking toward the 1936 presidential race. It was expected to play a major part in alignment of conservative and liberal forces.

Liberal groups which had believed Mr. Roosevelt was swinging too far to the right were expected to be reassured.

The situation figured in a meeting called for today by various liberal congressional factions to discuss the 1936 campaign. This gathering was described by Representative Vito Marcantonio, representative of New York, one sponsor, as an effort to "reach an understanding on what action liberals should take in 1936."

Termed Unfair.

Snell criticized the president in frank terms. He declared Mr. Roosevelt's rebuke to the chamber was "absolutely unfair."

He found no excuse for the president's resentment at the thorough-going denunciation of New Deal policies contained in chamber of commerce resolutions.

Snell declared that Mr. Roosevelt had received criticism in his "fire-side" address and then had turned upon the first critics to take advantage of his invitation.

"They had the courage honestly to tell the president of the situation," Snell said. "And I personally believe they were honest and sincere in taking that position. They tried to follow the president for nearly two years and during that time he certainly did not find any fault with their position."

Peculiar Thing.

"It is a mighty peculiar thing, they are doing at this time, to say that because they are finding fault with the president. Just that they don't happen to agree with him now, he says that they are not representative of the business sentiment of the country."

Democratic sentiment ran squarely to Snell's pronouncement.

It was felt that Mr. Roosevelt's statement was fair, that the chamber was not voicing the sentiment of many businessmen might serve to divide industrial ranks. Several chamber members threatened to resign because of the critical tone of the resolutions.

Republican leaders were not entirely aligned with Snell. Senator Charles L. Mathews, of Georgia, and the minority leader, expressed doubt that leaders of the chamber "represented all of the business sentiment."

Senator Edward R. Burke, democrat, Nebraska, loyal administration adherent, declared that the country should not emerge from the ranks of depression if it had to depend on the good sense of spokesmen of business and industry."

He said that he had been "strongly inclined" to leave the chamber banquet room, "and walk out with as much dignity as possible."

Even Senator Huey P. Long, democrat, Louisiana, at odds with Mr. Roosevelt on almost every issue, made disparaging comments on the chamber resolutions.

FARLEY MAY QUIT TO TAKE FILM JOB

Farley continues in his role of Roosevelt's manager and chairman of the democratic national committee. He is represented as feeling he cannot well afford to remain in the dual capacity as postmaster-general and national democratic chairman.

This latter point, in fact, has been made a basis for some of the attacks on Mr. Farley in the Senate. Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, of the republican progressive group who openly supported the Roosevelt-Garner ticket in the 1932 campaign, has voiced open demands for him to give up one of the positions. A resolution to this end is now pending before the upper chamber and is not without support from both democratic and republican quarters.

Farley, the postmaster-general, had that there would be no conflict in accepting the movie job and running the 1936 national campaign at the same time.

LEADERS CONCEDE SENATE APPROVAL FOR CASH BONUS

legislative program recommended by the president. They plan to call up the vital NRA extension resolution immediately after passage of the bonus, probably Tuesday or Wednesday. Monday, the senate finance committee will begin work in executive session on the big social security bill, which next to NRA legislation is considered the most important of the session's more essential pieces of legislation.

General debate on the highly controversial omnibus bank bill was concluded in the house today and the measure will be taken up Wednesday for amendments and final action. It faced further long hearings, however, on the senate side.

When the senate meets Monday it will face a vote on substituting the bank bill for the Harrison compromise which was only availed by leaders yesterday with a sudden adjournment to give them a chance to reform their lines.

Speaker Burns said, "If the senate approves the Vinson bill, I expect the house will give it as big a majority as it did the Patman bill."

A similar view was expressed by the democratic whip, Representative Boland, of Pennsylvania, who said "it looks to me like any cash payment would be given and get a two-thirds majority in the house."

The next ranking salary is that of Governor General Frank Murphy of the Philippines Islands at $18,000.

$15,000 for Garner.

Vice President Garner, Speaker Burns and members of the cabinet rank alike in pay at $15,000.

Governor Banton, Warden, of Puerto Rico, and Vice Governor J. L. Hayden of the Philippines, receive $10,000, along with Governors Joseph P. PoINDEXER, of Hawaii; John T. Troy of Alaska, and Julian L. Seelye of the Virgin Islands.

Harry L. Hopkins, FDR director, is listed at $10,000, while Robert Fechner gets $12,000 as head of the CCC.

The railroad coordinator, Joseph Eastman, is paid $12,000 as an Interstate Commerce commissioner, along with the 10 other members. But Freight Service Director John R. Turner of the ICO and Regional Director, Doctor Boatner, of Chicago, and E. Weaver, of Atlanta, are paid $10,000. Counsel Leslie Craven and J. M. Batsch, of Chicago, are paid the same as Eastman.

$10,000 Class.

The RFC has 24 listed in the $10,000 or more class, the largest group in the list. Chairman Jesse Jones, a millionaire, is an even $10,000, while three of his subordinates receive more. General Counsel James B. Alley and Assistant Director Lynn P. Talley at $12,500 and RFC Manager Daniel J. Mahoney, of New York city, at $10,500.

Near the bottom of the class is General Manager Otto F. Olson, of the Alaska railroad, at $14,400. Seldom listed in the news, he paid $400 more a year than NRA Counsel Donald Richberg.

Other NRA salaries in the top bracket include Deputy Administrator Wayne P. Talley at $15,62; Walter Hamilton, Leo Marshall, Blackwell Smith and Leon Henderson, at $12,000, and Review Officer Alvin Brown and Leo Wolman, of the communications Commission Chairman Eugene O. Sykes.

Only one of the many District of Columbia employees—who also are federal workers—is in the $10,000 class. Frank W. Baker, supervisor of general revenue, counsel; James H. Moyle, customs commissioner; Herbert E. Gaston and Jacob Viner, assistants to the secretary, and Commissioner Guy T. Helms gets $10,000.

Workers Gets $10,000.

Louis McHenry, of the White House, and devoted friend of the president, is a $10,000 man. Stephen Early and Marvin McIntyre, the others of the White House secretariat, get $500 less.

Others in the $10,000 class include such key men of the New Deal as Housing Administrator James A. Mohr; Postmaster General Counsel Joseph P. Kennedy; the TVA directors, Arthur E. Morgan, Harcourt A. Morgan and David E. Lilienthal; Power Commission Chairman Frank R. McNinch; Labor Relations Chairman Francis Biddle, Farm Security Administration Director W. M. Myers; Home Loan Bank Board Chairman John H. Fahy, and Communications Commission Chairman Eugene O. Sykes.

George N. Peck, special adviser to the president on foreign trade; Director Frank T. Hines, of the Veterans' Administration, and Postmaster Albert Goldmark, of New York city, are in the $10,000 class.

The $11,000 class is limited to the tariff commissioners, four at present, and Postmaster Ernest Krueger, of Chicago.

The $10,000 even group includes 96

EMORY SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS ANNOUNCED

Winners of 40 scholarships to Emory University, selected from 511 high school seniors in Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Tennessee on the basis of a competitive examination, were announced here last night by Dr. J. Harris Purks, chairman of the scholarship committee.

The scholarships are awarded by the Emory Alumni Association. The examination taken by the competitors was made out by members of the Emory faculty.

Charles Uhl, Druid Hills High school, Atlanta, and Nat C. Robertson, Covington, were high scorers for the state of Georgia at Atlanta and will each receive $500 a month.

Scholarships of $300 have also been awarded to the following men with the best grades in each of the ten districts into which the state was divided:

Vance A. Myers, Darlington; Pee Wee Carter, Carrollton; Fred Noland, Jr., Madison; Leon Elliott, Boys High school, Atlanta; Albert Meador, Jonesboro; E. C. McMillan, Jr., Lanier High School for Boys, Macon; John Rozier, Sparta; George Sutton, Jr., Tifton; Douglas Hodge, Brunswick, and Loren Lester, Dickinson, Moultrie.

The following students, who ranked second in their districts, will receive $100 scholarships: Allen Merrill, Darlington School for Boys, Rome; Jack Allgood, Marietta; Robert Binns, Greensboro; G. C. White, Jr., Druid Hills High school, Atlanta; O. C. Abrams, Jr., Tech High school, Atlanta, and Charles Moye Jr., Boys High school, Atlanta (three scholarships were awarded in this district); Wilson, Connelly, and Roberton, Lanier High School for Boys; Macon; Forest Shivers, Sparta; William Watson, Hawkinsville; Frank Grossman, Brunswick, and Billy Underwood, Moultrie.

Certificates of excellence, signed by Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory University, and by Dr. Purks will be presented to 80 students whose scores on the examination were high.

Schools in the Atlanta-Dekalb area will receive $100 for their high general attainments of their students; the Sparta (Ga.) High school, for outstanding attainment; the Chattanooga (Tenn.) schools for excellent work in English, and the Carrollton (Ga.) High school for excellent work in French. Each high school superintendent or principal will be given a confidential analysis of the performance of his students.

Dr. Purks said the competitive examination was not a college entrance examination but was devised for the purpose of locating the superior students to whom awards should be given.

Held for Murder.

GULFPORT, Miss., May 4.—(UPI)—After being given a preliminary hearing here today, Mrs. Orial Jarrett, 49, charged with murder in connection with the slaying, April 26, of Robert E. Krebs, a Gulfport news worker, was bound over to action of the Harrison county grand jury without benefit of bail.

Mr. M. J. Harris is secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War. The secretary of the organization, Seymour Waldman, is editor of the official communist paper, The Daily Worker.

ATLANTA MUSIC NOTES

by Mozelle Horton

National Music Week! Beginning today and all this week, as you can see by the list of programs announced in the column to the right, the nice feature of it all is that there is no admission charge to any of the National Music Week programs. The woman's division of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Lucy C. Brown, president, is sponsoring the celebrations, with Evelyn Jackson, president of the Georgia Federation of Music Clubs, as chairman of National Music Week. The official opening program will be held this afternoon at Wesley Memorial auditorium at 3 o'clock, with a galaxy of Atlanta musicians taking part.

Atlanta Music Club Program.

The Atlanta Music Club presents one of the notable contributions to National Music Week. There will be a concert consisting of the program of the year by the Atlanta Music Club at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium Saturday, May 11, at 3:30 o'clock. The junior division of the Music Club will assist in this program as will the Atlanta Woman's orchestra, Mrs. C. Reynolds Clark, director. The older winners in the State Federation of Music Clubs contest held here recently will appear on the program.

Mrs. Armond Carroll is chairman of the program, and the public is cordially invited.

College Park Music Club.

The College Park Music Club, Eloise Olds, president, will celebrate Federation Day with a musical program at the College Park Woman's Club auditorium Saturday, May 11, at 3:30 o'clock. The subject of the program will be "Co-relation of American Music, Art, and Poetry." The compositions of Florence Golson Bateman will be featured. The program will be followed by a reception to the guests and the incoming officers. Many distinguished guests have been invited for the occasion.

Decker Observatory.

National Music Week will be observed in Decatur with daily concerts held at the Woman's Club under the direction of Mrs. S. R. Christie Jr., chairman of National Music Week. Mrs. Christie will be assisted by a committee made up of chairman from each of the schools as follows: Mrs. Henry Girls' High School; Mrs. Lee Boys' High School; Mrs. Wilkerson, Winona Park school; Mrs. Carroker and Mrs. Hardeman, Glenwood school; Polly Jones and Mrs. Robert Hale, Poncede Leon school; Mrs. E. C. Chase, Fifth Avenue school, and Mrs. Izard, Oakhurst school.

All the churches of the city will have special music programs every morning. The week will be formally opened with a concert given this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Woman's Club. The first presentation will be made by a group of high school students in vocal, piano and violin solo numbers. Lena Mae Fairman, contralto, accompanied by Mrs. N. P. Lee, will assist the high school group with a group of vocal solos.

The second presentation will be given at 5 o'clock at Winona Park school by pupils of the school.

Band Concerts.

A number of band concerts are scheduled for the week. Monday at 12 o'clock at the city hall plaza on the parade grounds of the school in College Park, Captain John Lee, will be the leader. The band, after this afternoon, also at 3 o'clock, will be given by the Georgia Tech band at Grant Park plaza. Next Sunday afternoon, May 12, the Atlanta Federation of Musicians will give a band concert in Piedmont park, with E. G. Schurr conducting. On Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock the Boys High band, A. J. McRae, leader, will play at the Decatur courthouse square.

In the Studios.

Mrs. Daisy Cobb will present her pupils in a recital Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the Spanish lounge of the Henry Grady hotel. Waldy Sowell, violin, will be the guest artist.

Miss Karpel will present a unique studio recital at her studio, 130 Eleventh street, N. E. Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, with James, Franklin and Malcolm Gailey, brothers, playing a program of studies of Stephen Heller. Mrs. Athos Menahon will be the guest artist.

Grace Lee Townsend will hold her class in appreciation at her studio this afternoon at 4 o'clock, at which time Frank Eastman, baritone, will be guest soloist.

SERVICE TO HONOR CITY DEAD TODAY

Memorials for Police, Firemen and Other City
Workers at Auditorium.

Memorial services for 27 city employees who died within the last year will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the city auditorium.

The memorial sermon will be delivered by Dr. W. H. Knight, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, and Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court, will deliver the address of eulogy to the deceased.

Roll of the 13 members of the police force who have died during past year, including four who were killed in line of duty, will be read by Chief T. O. Sturdivant and Patrolman Y. F. Geeslin will deliver the benediction.

The services will include memorials for members of the fire department who have died since 1929, the roll to be read by Chief O. J. Parker.

The services mark the fourth year the police dead have been honored by mass memorial services and, at the request of city officials and department heads, the police band, sponsors of the services, this year included memorials to all city employees who have died in the last year.

In addition to the 13 policemen to be memorialized, services will be conducted for six sanitary workers, two in the city clerk's office and one in the city warden's office.

The police band has arranged a special program of music which will be rendered under the direction of Captain John A. Scharf.

More Clouds Seen For Atlanta Today

Atlanta's weather will be mostly cloudy and cool today, with possible showers by noon, according to George W. Mindling, meteorologist here. The showers are likely to continue through Monday.

The mercury today will range from a low of 56 degrees to a peak of 70 degrees, which will make it 14 degrees cooler than yesterday, when the high was 80 degrees.

Although only a trace of rain was registered Friday night at the weather bureau in the new postoffice building, a near deluge was experienced in the Buckhead section. Water was running down Peachtree road several inches deep at the peak of the shower, which was of the freak variety.

Canada Base Termed Tempest in Teapot

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(AP)—The recent international flurry over a proposal to establish an American air base near the Great Lakes was described today by a leading congressional student of military affairs as "much ado about nothing."

"We were just trying to do something that Canada already has done," said Representative Plumb, Republican, Vermont, chairman of the military affairs committee, which was reprimanded by President Roosevelt for making public testimony of an army officer about the proposed air base.

After saying it was "to be regretted" that testimony given in confidence by Brigadier General Charles E. Killion, American Society of Authors, Authors, and Musicians; compulsorily blocking; and threats to build competitive theaters unless the exhibitors agree to impossible sales terms.

"There is, moreover, a very great interest in the fact that distributors are attempting to sell their films early this year. Wise showmen are waiting for the report to be rendered at the Atlanta convention."

Railroads have granted a special reduced fare on the certificate plan. Distributors are purchasing the one-way ticket to Atlanta and obtaining a ticket from the ticket agent, which will be validated at the convention, entitling the holder to one-half return fare. Ten cent reduction has been granted by air lines. In addition, scores of motorized caravans are being planned.

Eugene Talmadge, governor of Georgia, will make an address on either Tuesday or Wednesday, during the convention, while the keys of the city will be presented by Mayor James L. K. Kirk.

Convention activities open Monday, May 20, at 4 p. m. with all meetings being held in the assembly hall on the mezzanine floor of the Piedmont. Following a directors' meeting Monday, a reception will be tendered President and Mrs. Samuelson, beginning at 8 o'clock. On Tuesday morning, at 9:30 o'clock, a golf tournament opens at East Lake Country Club, to be continued the next day at the same time if necessary. A general session will open at 2 o'clock Tuesday. Tea for the ladies will be served at 4 o'clock at the governor's mansion. Tuesday night at 9 o'clock an informal affair, including a barn dance, will be held at Peachtree Gardens.

A bridge-luncheon at the Piedmont Dining Club, for the ladies, is scheduled for 1 p. m. Wednesday, with the second general session opening at 2 o'clock. That night something unusual in the way of entertainment is planned. An all-negro choir will present "Heaven Bound" at Big Bethel church.

Thursday morning, closing day, will be given over to various sightseeing trips, a barbecue at a location as yet unannounced. The final general session is set for 2 p. m. An elaborate dinner-dance, with a floor show and favors for everyone, present, will close the convention at 8 p. m. Thursday.

In addition to newsreel cameramen, who will snap interesting shots during the meeting, National Screen Service, through arrangements perfected by Charles Lester, the representative, will take talking motion pictures throughout the sessions. These scenes will be assembled and sent to the home towns of the delegates.

General chairman, Colonel Sam H. Borisy.

Publicity and program, N. H. Waters, chairman; A. Jules Benedict, vice chairman.

Banquet and entertainment, Mrs. Fay Ellis and W. W. Anderson, co-chairmen.

Golf, A. C. Bromberg and John Mangham Jr., chairman.

Railroad and hotel reservations, E. P. Johnson, associate manager, Hotel Piedmont.

Exhibits, Ike Katz.

Meeting hall, Louis Bach.

Sightseeing trips, Charles Lester.

Badges and registration, W. G. Browning.

Hotels and housing, Frank Dowler Jr.

CHILDREN'S CHURCH WILL BE LAUNCHED AT SERVICE TODAY

The children's church will begin this morning at the Peachtree Christian church at Peachtree and Spring streets. It was announced yesterday by Rev. Robert W. Burns, minister.

Children from the fourth grades through the junior high schools and from the fourth grade through the first two years of the county schools are eligible for membership and Dr. Burns predicted a marked success for the enterprise.

Every office of the children's church will be open by the children just as grown-ups fill the offices of their own church. There will be a tested choir, ushers, doorkeepers, acting junior elders and deacons.

Services will begin at 9:45 o'clock and various activities will continue until 12:15 o'clock in the afternoon.

Dr. Burns will be in personal charge of the undertaking, teaching, intermediate and junior departments will aid. Mrs. James K. Dobbs has enlisted all workers needed. Mrs. Victor B. Clarke is in charge of music and Mrs. L. Gielow and Mrs. O. H. Wright are in charge of the intermediate and junior departments, respectively.

NEW ARMORY AT TECH DEDICATION MONDAY

High Ranking Naval Officers To Take Part in Public Ceremony.

Dedication of the new $125,000 Atlanta Naval Reserve armory at Georgia Tech will take place at 8:20 o'clock tomorrow night with high ranking naval officers and federal administrative officers participating in the elaborate exercises. Rear Admiral E. B. Fenner, commandant of the sixth naval reserve district will present the building to Lieutenant Harry F. Dobbs, commander of the Atlanta battalion. Also present will be Captain J. A. Schofield, U. S. N. officer in charge of naval reserve expenditures and who is coming here from Washington.

The practice ship will be commissioned by Miss Margaret Talmadge, daughter of the governor, and the vocation will be dedicated by Captain William Turner, director of the arm reserves.

A dinner will be given in Brittain hall at Tech at 7 o'clock with Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Tech, acting as toastmaster. Dr. Brittain will also act as master of ceremonies at the exercises.

The ceremony is a result of work by a committee composed of Coach W. A. Alexander, of Georgia; Professor H. A. Armstrong, Assistant Dean George Griffin, Lieutenant Harry F. Dobbs, U. S. N. R., and Dr. Brittain. The construction was made possible by

Emory University Debating Team Visits St. Paul's Cathedral, London

By ROBERT WIGGINS,
Special Constitution Correspondent.

LONDON, April 21.—(By Mail). The Emory debating team was surprised on Easter Sunday morning in London, shore brightly, the habitual London rain giving us a day of rest.

As we walked down Fleet street toward St. Paul's cathedral for the Easter services, we heard the chiming begin to ring out their welcome to the glad Easter morning. At the foot of the cathedral steps an interesting atmosphere seemed strangely out of tune with the awe-inspiring and impressive environment. It served to remind one of the marked contrast which allegedly have closed the field to all companies except the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the Western Electric and the Electrical Research Corporation, which is a subsidiary of the above companies.

From St. Paul's our little party, composed of Robert Elliott, John A. Griffin, Samuel C. Dobbs, our sponsor and adviser, and the writer, went directly to the cathedral, the walls of the historic old building, darkened by the centuries, have every appearance of eminence and importance, and certainly do not belittle the sense of overwhelming awe experienced by a visitor once inside the abbey. One has instinctively a feeling of smallness and insignificance as he stands at the burial places of the Unknown Soldier, of Gladstone and Disraeli, of Tennyson and Brownings, of Dickens and Hardy.

Leisurely we surveyed the beautiful green courts and all the memorials to the great men of English history, but only with a sense of being out of place did we walk along the marble statue of the crucifixion at the end of the tremendous vaulted chamber, all create an atmosphere of extreme dignity.

The service seemed strangely out of tune with the awe-inspiring and impressive environment. It served to remind one of the marked contrast which allegedly have closed the field to all companies except the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the Western Electric and the Electrical Research Corporation, which is a subsidiary of the above companies.

Ralph Verner, attorney, said that among the defendants were Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Universal Pictures, Fox Film, Hal Roach Studios, Vitaphone Corporation, Fox-Hearst Corporation, Christy Film Corporation, United Paramount Artists, Eugene Bucks, president of the American Society of Composers, and Louis Bernstein, president of the Music Publishers.

He said he filed suit in behalf of S. Theodore Hodgeon, an assignee for the Royal Amalgamate Company, a corporation manufacturing sound motion pictures.

The long since antiquated passageways once trod by the bent and hooded monks. As we prepared to leave, my attention was attracted by a portion of the inscription on the Unknown Soldier's tomb, and it appeared to me peculiarly in keeping with the spirit of Easter: "They buried him among the kings because he had done good toward God and toward his house."

Patents Stealing Laid To 15 Movie Firms

NEW YORK, May 4.—(UP)—Fifteen of the most prominent motion picture concerns in the United States were charged today with stealing patents in the motion picture field.

The defendants, which include such firms as the M. G. M. Universal, Fox and Vitaphone companies, are charged with stealing their competitors which allegedly have closed the field to all companies except the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the Western Electric and the Electrical Research Corporation, which is a subsidiary of the above companies.

From St. Paul's our little party, composed of Robert Elliott, John A. Griffin, Samuel C. Dobbs, our sponsor and adviser, and the writer, went directly to the cathedral, the walls of the historic old building, darkened by the centuries, have every appearance of eminence and importance, and certainly do not belittle the sense of overwhelming awe experienced by a visitor once inside the abbey. One has instinctively a feeling of smallness and insignificance as he stands at the burial places of the Unknown Soldier, of Gladstone and Disraeli, of Tennyson and Brownings, of Dickens and Hardy.

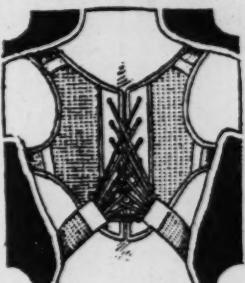

Leisurely we surveyed the beautiful green courts and all the memorials to the great men of English history, but only with a sense of being out of place did we walk along

Twenty-Nine Men Wear Service Pin

Twenty-nine men at the Detroit plant of the Packard Motor Car Company, including the president, Alvan Macauley, are wearing new shiny gold pins in their coat lapels. Each pin designates its wearer one who has been with the Packard company in continuous service for 25 years. Each of the 29 men had completed his twenty-fifth year since January 1, last.

On his twenty-fifth birthday with the company, Mr. Macauley greeted the others who had also done so before also completed their 25 years of service and personally presented to each the much-coveted 25-year pin. Congratulations were mutually exchanged. Congratulations were received by Mr. Macauley from chief executives of all the other American automobile manufacturers and from scores of other business and professional men.

Records of the Packard company show that there is a total of 236 employees who have been with the company in continuous service for 20 years or more. There are 529 who have been continuously employed for 20 years or more and of the total enrollment of the company's factories 44 per cent have been with the company continuously five years or more.

Dodge Dealers Delivered Over Hundred Thousand

Retail sales of Dodge dealers took another upswing for the week ending April 20. Deliveries during this time amounted to 7,780. This included 1,500 passenger cars and 1,200 Dodge commercial cars and trucks—a total of 9,088 vehicles—according to tabulations made by the office of general sales manager, A. vanDerZee. The figure marks an advance of 8.7 per cent over sales of the preceding week and a gain of 69.6 per cent over the business done in the corresponding week of 1934.

Passenger car and truck deliveries made by Dodge dealers in the first 16 weeks of the present year are now well beyond the 100,000 mark, their total up to April 20, being 89,183 passenger cars and 15,278 commercial cars and trucks—a total of 104,461 vehicles.

With the sales record for the like 16-week period of 1934 standing at 65,967, deliveries reported to Dodge headquarters as far this year are 38.2 per cent above those of the same period last year. Broken down, the 58.4 per cent total sales increase amounts to $6.7 per cent for Dodge passenger cars, to 44.1 per cent for Plymouth passenger cars, and to 21 per cent for Dodge commercial cars and trucks.

Dealers' orders continuing to show a downward trend, production activity at the Dodge plants remains at high pitch, preparation being of a nature to indicate the expectation of further gains in spring business.

New Oil Developed For Summer Heat By Clearosol Process

A new kind of summer motor oil was announced today by W. E. Smith, president of the Standard Oil Company (Kentucky).

It is made by the new method of oil refining, known as the Clearosol process, which is declared to be the most revolutionary step forward in lubricating oil refining since the discovery of petroleum.

Two new refineries to make oil this way are now in full production, and the new oil will be available to motorists this week, the announcement stated.

The Clearosol process, developed by the Socony-Vacuum Company, uses powerful solvents to "wash" crude oils of natural impurities. First used for motor oil last year, the new process proved so successful that it has now been extended to all summer grades of Mobil oil.

"Washes" Impurities.

Tests conducted by automotive engineers proved that oil made this new way not only removes the impurities present in all crudes, but it also takes out the weak, unstable ingredients that are known to be present at high engine heat," Mr. Smith said.

"The Clearosol process 'washes away' the carbon and gum forming elements in the oil that cause a dirty engine, stuck valves and gummy pistons.

"Road tests made by the company from Canada to Mexico, and letters from motorists from all sections of the country attest to the fact that oil made this way not only lasts longer and cuts down repairs.

The new Clearosol process, which is regarded as the most flexible and efficient control over lubricating oil refining that has thus far been devised, is declared to be the most efficient process ever developed to produce all of the desirable characteristics for motor oils in one operation. The company announced that the new summer grades made by the Clearosol process will cost the motoring public no more than oils made by older refining methods.

Will Save Money.

Automotive engineers point out that the new oil will not only be of money-saving benefit to motorists driving cars that have covered 5,000 and 10,000 miles, and more, but that it will be of particular value to the operation of new cars with their higher engine speeds and high compression motors.

Even the less expensive cars today boast of road speeds of 80 to 90 miles per hour and more.

A New Dodge Model—Convertible Coupe

A just announced addition to the popular Dodge line is the 116-inch wheelbase convertible coupe shown above. One of the features of the new low-priced model is its novel body construction. The body has a separate steel frame which adds its own strength to that of the regular chassis frame, is said to safeguard the so-called Dodge "Airglide Ride."

Lincolns and Fords at Rose Show

This attractive display of Ford and Lincoln cars was one of the featured exhibits at the rose show, held this past week at the Biltmore hotel. This exhibit was sponsored by Ernest G. Beaudry, local Ford and Lincoln dealer.

Double-Frame Adds Strength to De Soto Convertible

A new type of double-frame construction has been developed to provide additional strength and rigidity for the new De Soto convertible coupe, announced this week. Instead of the usual one frame, this car has two frames—the regular chassis frame and a sub-frame built inside the body. The chassis frame is six inches high and the sub-frame is four inches in height. Airstream coupe passengers ride on top of a ten-inch steel girder, similar in size and strength to the girders used in skyscraper construction.

Chevrolet Introduces New Innovation To Be Known as 'Carryall'

Chevrolet has announced the introduction of an innovation in transportation units, called the carry-all suburban model, which can be used interchangeably for the hauling of merchandise or as a passenger vehicle seating eight persons. Wide acceptance of the new type body is predicted, because of its versatile utility. It is designed to fit the needs of owners of small businesses who primarily require a commercial vehicle, who will use it also as a family car; and who appeal to schools, camps, lodges, hotels and other purchasers whose first need is for a passenger vehicle of greater capacity than regular models, ready for use also for hauling baggage, supplies and other loads.

The carry-all suburban body is mounted on the Chevrolet 112-inch wheelbase chassis, equipped with 5.50-17 tires. The new model carries a list price of $750.

For commercial purposes the body provides a load space 75 inches long, 32 inches wide by 51 inches high. Loading is through the rear, which is provided with a horizontally divided closure, the lower half dropping to serve as a sturdy tail gate, and the top half opening upward, its weight carried by a spring-balanced support.

A passenger vehicle, the car seats eight persons, the front and rear seats holding three each, the middle seat two. Entrance is by the right front door, past a tilting coach-type single seat and an aisle alongside the middle seat. All except the front seats are readily removed or replaced, providing for the conversion of the vehicle for either commercial or passenger use. Quick-action safety lock bolts are used to fasten the seats securely to metal plates set flush in the floor. In appearance the car is essentially a passenger car of the station wagon type, with rounded contours of body panels both at the sides and the rear giving the appearance of a sedan. A wide range of color combinations is available. The three large windows on each side of the car are fitted with weatherstripping and insulation, and the two rear windows are mounted in rounded frames in the upper half of the back closure. The spring cushion seats are upholstered in high-grade imitation leather.

The chassis is of standard Chevrolet design, carrying the 70-horsepower Blue Flame engine, three-speed synchromesh transmission with silent second, cable-controlled brakes and wire wheels.

Studebaker Back Financially Strong And Looking Ahead

SOUTH BEND, Ind., May 4.—Back on its feet again—financially—the Studebaker Corporation revealed today that even in the gigantic automobile industry there is sportsmanship.

Dynamic Paul G. Hoffman, Studebaker's new president, announced: "To our competitors—we thank you for your sportsmanship. The great majority of you gave us a square deal, a chance to get on our feet again. You fought us for every deal and dealer, but you lost fair. Now we promote you some fight for fourth position in the automobile industry. So thanks—and look out."

Through reorganization and new capital, the corporation released itself from receivership. One of the oldest in the industry, Studebaker's manufacturing dates back to horse and buggy days, and it founded its reputation on carriages.

Mr. Hoffman has been associated with Studebaker almost a quarter-century. He declared today that the new Studebaker models were receiving great public reception.

Cadillac Production Stepped Up Again To Meet Demand

Despite sharp increases in both employment and production at the Cadillac-LaSalle factory, retain sales have improved so rapidly that the company still carries a bank of over 3,000 unfilled orders, it is announced by General Manager Nicholas Dreystadt.

"During the past year our factory employment has jumped 61.3 per cent," said Mr. Dreystadt, "and production, of course, has shown a corresponding rise. But public demand has consistently exceeded production."

Further evidences of marked improvement in the medium and high price fields is revealed in the statement of General Sales Manager J. C. Chick, that retail deliveries of LaSalle and Cadillac cars for the year to date show an increase of 69.2 per cent over the same period of 1934.

"With the distribution of dealers saw the 1935 LaSalle at the pre-showing last month," said Mr. Chick, "they immediately placed advance orders for 3,080 of the new cars. Since the factory has signed 107 new dealers since the first of the year, and of that number 65 joined the Cadillac-LaSalle organization in the two-week period which ended April 15."

The quality GMC 2-3 ton truck with revolutionary dual-performance axle!

Purposely designed to do more work at lower cost—to make more trips and earn more profit for owners! That, in a few words, summarizes the facts about the 2-3 ton GMC T-18 truck.

In every inch of its rugged makeup, this worker and earner is a modern truck. Modern in appearance. Distinctly more modern in design and construction than any other truck of like capacity, regardless of price. In fact, this GMC truck excels other trucks in the 2-3 ton range on at least twelve important counts—counts that experienced operators know are directly reflected in lower cost and thus greater earnings per mile, per trip.

By CHARLES E. HARNER,
Associated Press Foreign Staff.

In 1919, officially closing the World War, a treaty was signed at Versailles which contained such phrases as "Germany is forbidden," "abolished in Germany," "forbidden in Germany," and "Germany must not include."

They applied to Germany's army, navy and air corps and were designed by the allied powers to strip Germany of military force, leaving only what the framers of the Versailles treaty thought was necessary for the maintenance of internal peace in Germany and for defense against aggression.

Ever since Adolf Hitler began his political career, the man who now is reichsfuehrer has pressed against the "punishment clauses" of the treaty as unfair to Germany, claiming that the indictment of Germany as responsible for the World War was a lie.

They contended that Germany's representatives never should have bound Germany to the provisions of the treaty by signing it. Consequently, the recent events in the relationship between Germany under Hitler and the Versailles treaty are not entirely surprising.

At this time certain clauses of the Versailles treaty make interesting reading.

Article 173—"Universal compulsory military service shall be abolished in Germany." Article 180—"The total number of effectives in the army of . . . Germany must not exceed 100,000 men."

But Reichsfuehrer Hitler has decreed that compulsory military service shall be reinstated in Germany and that the army shall be increased to about 550,000 men. It is indicated that conscription will begin October 1.

Article 189—"The armed forces of Germany must not include any military or naval air forces."

But Reichsfuehrer Hitler told Sir John Simon, the British foreign secretary, that Germany now has a military air force equal to that of Great Britain, which maintains one of the largest air fleets in the world.

Article 181—"The German naval forces in commission must not exceed: 6 battleships, 6 light cruisers, 12 destroyers and 12 torpedo boats." Article 191—"The construction or acquisition of any submarine, even for commercial purposes, shall be forbidden in Germany."

But Reichsfuehrer Hitler was said by the British to be rebuilding Germany's submarine fleet, submarine keels were reported laid, and the reopening of the submarine school at Kiel was reported definitely. Hitler informed the British he wanted a navy at least 26 per cent as large as Great Britain's.

Now France is reported as nervous concerning Article 42: "Germany is forbidden to maintain or construct any fortification either on the left bank of the Rhine or on the right bank to the west of a line drawn 50 kilometers to the east of the Rhine."

A French newspaper report said German military police were already stationed along the right bank of the Rhine, ready to occupy the demilitarized zone at a moment's notice.

Linder Says Market Here Is Experiment

The state has converted the disputed Washington street farmers' curb market into an "experimental station" for the George producer. And the experiments, Thomas M. Linder, commissioner of agriculture, said yesterday, include price fixing, sale fees, possible embargoes and a clearing house method of moving the produce from the farm to the retailer at the best profit obtainable.

This statement was made when Linder was asked where the new state-owned farm market would be located. Savannah had been mentioned as probably the next city, but Linder did not confirm the report.

Chrysler Dealers Report Favorable Used Car Situation

With the sales of new cars greater than at any previous time in the history of the company, Chrysler-Plymouth-dealers report that the used car situation is highly satisfactory. Tests in the early part of the year show these dealers have set new "all-time" high records for retail deliveries of new cars and keeping pace with this remarkable showing, used cars have been moving at a good rate.

The present supply being large enough for only about five weeks on the basis of the present rate of sales, a small inventory of used cars for this season of the year and an indication of a very healthy condition of business. Only in a very few isolated cases where the weather has been exceptionally unfavorable have dealers found difficulty in moving used cars and this situation will adjust itself with the coming of real spring.

Quite naturally the used car picture has improved since the first of the year. While the actual number of used cars on hand on January 1 was somewhat smaller than at present, turnover was slower, there being at that time approximately eight weeks' supply in the dealers' hands. So the present inventory, while numerically larger, can be moved much faster.

Both Chrysler and Plymouth were in production early this year with greatly improved cars which found the public's favor immediately. Buying began briskly as soon as dealers were stocked with the new merchandise and sales have continued to move steadily. As there is not such thing as a "new model" used car, the public is in no hurry to buy in the early months of the year, but waits until the weather is propitious. In view of these facts, Chrysler dealers feel that their used car stocks are very satisfactory particularly as this has been a backward spring in nearly every part of the United States.

2,000 DEAD, HURT, 25 TOWNS ERASED BY IRAN QUAKES

Volcano, Nursed by Peak Where Noah's Ark Land-ed, Rumbles, Spreads Terror Among Natives.

ISTANBUL, May 4.—(AP)—Violent earthquakes spreading death and destruction over Turkey today were reported to have started Mount Ararat, the 17,000-foot Armenian peak where tradition says Noah's ark landed, rumbling with volcanic activity.

Reports said two more violent shocks in the series of quakes racking that region had raised the estimated toll of dead and injured to 2,000. A total of 1,600 houses were said to have been destroyed, with 25 villages completely wiped out.

With virtually every house in the center of the Diyar district demolished, the population was camping in tents, suffering intensely from cold.

The dead bodies of thousands of cattle littered the stricken areas, giving rise to fears of an epidemic as squads of laborers and army detachments pressed forward with relief work.

According to reports received here, the eruption of Mount Ararat was confined to the ejection of lava and subterranean rumbling without any eruptions.

The (official) state news agency reported Moscow today that 500 persons had been killed, with many injured and at least three villages destroyed in Mazandaran province by quakes continuing for several weeks.

Word that snow-covered Mount Ararat, culminating point of the Armenian plateau, was playing hide-and-seek was said to have spread new terror through the entire quake-stricken area.

The volcanic activity was noticed, according to the reports, after the first of seven major shocks in the Kars region near the Turco-Russian border. In addition, many minor shocks have been reported.

Thousands of refugees have fled the area, the unusual phenomenon of mud water rushing through fissures in the earth, some of them said to be 30 feet wide, opened by the quakes.

General Manager

SAM MARTIN.

Sam Martin, popular local tire sales executive, has just taken over the general management of the United States Tire Service, Inc., located at the corner of West Peachtree and North Avenue.

Mr. Martin is well known here, through his previous retail tire association, having managed this same store when it was known as the Quick Tire Service, Inc. For the past year he has been director of the tire division for the United States Rubber Company in this territory. He returns to his old post with a fine record of achievement and bigger things were right.

She said she would hop off without further notice whenever conditions were right.

Air Carries Load on Tires Says Technician

"There are a few basic facts about tires which people do not know because they have never stopped to think about them," writes K. D. Smith, technical superintendent of the B. F. Goodrich Company tire division in a recent issue of the American Legion Monthly.

"In the first place, it is not the tire which carries the load of your vehicle. You ride on air—the tire is merely the envelope which holds it. Secondly, the tire is the only part of the vehicle which which you should be concerned into action—a start, stop, or change of direction—foot is the only contact between the vehicle and the road.

"Third, the tire is subject to almost every variety of strain imaginable—internal and external pressure, squeezing, lengthwise push and pull, twisting, stretching and pounding and not a leap of all the centrifugal force which tends to tear the tread from the cotton reinforced carcass of the tire.

"Taken altogether, these constitute genuine punishment for an article constructed of rubber and cotton. And, while modern tires are built to take a great deal of punishment, there is a limit to what even the best of them can withstand.

"Unfortunately, blowouts, for most of us, occur at unfavorable moments. The average driver, when a blowout comes, does not usually know how to keep his car under control. On one side may be telegraph poles and a ditch, on the other oncoming cars, also well-known hazards. If he is not in both sets of hazards and comes to a stop right side up, he has had at least a normal individual's share of luck—especially since most tires blow at high speeds than at low.

"In the early days of automobile driving a blowout was likely to be less dangerous for several reasons. Driving speeds were lower. Tires were smaller. Traffic was less dense."

Vote Slated by Friday On Banking Measure

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(UP)—The house tonight cleared the way for final action on the administration's controversial omnibus banking with the floor leadership confident of passage without change by next Friday.

Concluding a week of general debate on the measure, which would vest extended government control over the Federal Reserve system, the house planned to open the bill Wednesday for amendment.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrnes and Chairman Henry B. Steagall, democrat, Alabama, of the house banking and currency committee, predicted passage by Friday.

Arm Broken, Shocked, But Physicians Give Assurance of Recovery.

AUXERRE, France, May 4.—(AP)—Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin, of France, and Madame Flandin were severely injured near here today when his automobile collided with another car.

A SUNDAY SERMON

The Constitution is taken to task by the Rev. J. O. Brand, pastor of the First Methodist church of Washington, Ga., for a recent editorial in which the people of Georgia were urged to give sober thought to existing facts in coming to a decision on the question of repeal.

In emphasizing the necessity for calm and unprejudiced consideration, the editorial cited that "seldom has Georgia been called on to make a decision of more vital and far-reaching importance, affecting as it does every man, woman and child in the state and directly involving conditions in the home, in business and in government."

But Brother Brand evidently does not believe with The Constitution that a problem so intimately involving the moral and physical welfare of the people should be approached with an open mind, free of rancor and intolerance. He writes:

Editor Constitution: Quotation from Constitution of May 1: "Scarcely a day passes that some prominent Georgia minister does not assume an open stand in favor of substituting some other plan of liquor control."

Why do you not name those prominent Georgia ministers? You know that is not true.

I have heard of three, and not a one of them is "prominent" only in the sense that he has made an ass of himself.

J. O. BRAND,

Pastor First Methodist Church,
Washington, Ga., May, 1935.

In The Constitution's editorial there was not one word of criticism or abuse of those who differ with our belief that the cause of genuine temperance will be best served by the repeal of the laws under which use of liquor has grown to an extent never before known in the country.

On the contrary, we feel, as pointed out in the editorial under discussion, that "there is room for honest differences" of opinion on the question of prohibition."

We regret that Brother Brand, in his ardor for statutory prohibition, cannot exhibit an equally forbearing attitude toward the honest convictions of his fellow ministers of the Gospel.

Surely he has forgotten, for the moment, the urgency of the Apostle Paul in his epistle to the Colossians to "Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man."

And the assurance of the Apostle James that "If any man among you seem to be religious and bridleth not his tongue but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain."

The teachings of the Savior and his Apostles have caused the world to feel that the ministry, of all the professions, should not resort to extreme and intemperate language —that the objectives of the church should be sought through love and kindness and not through abuse and scorn.

Certainly such ministers as the
Rev. H. E. McBrayer, of Atlanta, a Methodist, honored by his fellow preachers of the city by election as an official of the Christian Council;
Dr. Edgar Lucas, pastor of the First Christian church, Augusta;
and the Rev. A. Lyle, pastor of a Baptist church in north Georgia, should not be termed "asses" because, following the dictates of their conscience, they have chosen to support repeal as the best way to bring about a more general observation of genuine temperance.

They are ministers whose standing in their churches is beyond reproach. They are also free American citizens and have a right to their opinions.

Brother Brand's unfortunate and intolerant criticism in calling his brother minister "asses" is strangely lacking of the spirit of the Lowly One.

Certainly The Constitution refuses to enter into a discussion, on such a plane, of a problem vitally affecting the home, the church and the public welfare.

During the repeal campaign The Constitution has opened its news columns to both sides of the question, although it has been necessary to restrict matter published to statements issued by the two headquarters. Nearly a thousand communications, equally divided between supporters of prohibition and repeal, have been received. It would be manifestly impossible to publish all such communications for a week's mail would fill a newspaper the size of this issue.

Evidence of the fairness with which the news of the prohibition forces has been presented is contained in a letter to The Constitution from M. L. Fleetwood, state director of the Georgia Temperance League, in which he says: "Permit the writer to express his grateful personal thanks to The Constitution for the remarkably fine co-operation we have given us in our efforts to present the temperance side of the question."

The Constitution's belief that the repeal of the present laws will be in the interest of genuine temperance is based on unassailable facts and figures revealing the extent to which they have bred crime, corrupted youth and brought a huge illicit liquor "industry" into existence.

No more convincing evidence of the conditions that have grown up under prohibition can be asked than the statement of Chief of Police Sturdivant, of Atlanta, that—

In all my nearly 30 years as a police officer in Atlanta, I have seen no increase in crime like that which has been made during the prohibition era. We have been lucky here because the bootlegging element has not organized and launched gangster tactics like they have in other large American cities, and I think this fact is a tribute to the efforts of the police to enforce the law even though they knew the people did not want it.

I believe wiping out of the bone-dry law and replacing of it with a safe program of liquor control will do more to bring about respect for law and improve conditions generally than anything else we can do.

The Constitution agrees with Chief Sturdivant and with the earnest ministers and lay leaders who are supporting repeal that the return of an era of temperance can best be achieved by the repeal of the prohibition laws and the adoption of sensible, safe and sane methods of rigid control and regulation.

This will mean that the question of temperance will be returned to the churches and the homes, where it belongs, instead of being on the statute books, where it does not belong.

When, day in and day out, preachers and parents taught the intemperate, young people and old were enrolled in various temperance organizations.
They went out of existence when with statutory prohibition came the general tendency to "leave it to the law."

The result speaks for itself!

No regulation, no control, no revenue from an immense, illicit industry!

Again we say we have the utmost respect for the views of those differing with us. We concede their sincerity. We do not call them "asses," for they are among the best of our citizenship.

But seeing the situation as it is, we would feel that we would be recreant to our sense of duty if we did not make a frank expression of the views of all the people of Georgia.

The Constitution has always had a way of "speaking out in meeting," and we find that even those who may disagree with our views approve the frankness by which they are inspired.

Rev. H. E. McBrayer, of Atlanta, a Methodist, honored by his fellow
preachers of the city by election as an official of the Christian Council;
Dr. Edgar Lucas, pastor of the
First Christian church, Augusta;
and the Rev. A. Lyle, pastor of a

DAYLIGHT SAVING POPULAR

Reports from the various municipal and private club golf courses around Atlanta record large increases in the number of players daily making the rounds after their release from office, store and factory after putting in a full day's

To these workers daylight saving time means not only an opportunity to engage in their favorite recreation formerly limited to Saturday afternoons and Sundays, but a certain improvement in health as the result of outdoor exercise thus gained.

The same thing is true with lovers of tennis, horseback riding, gardening, automobiling or any other type of outdoor activity calling for daylight. Even the gardeners are putting in an extra hour of work on their flower beds and lawns.

Many a family dinner has been allowed to get cold after leaving the oven and frying pan during the past week; dishes have been piled in the sink for washing the next morning that servants may not be kept at work too long—but these have proven small considerations to men, women and children eagerly taking advantage in the outdoors of the golden hours of late afternoon.

Daylight saving time has replaced the practically useless period of sunshine between the close of business hours and the coming of darkness with a period that, as the summer goes along, will become the best enjoyed, and most valuable, part of the day from the standpoint of recreation and health.

CHILD HEALTH CONFERENCE

A short but important conference will be held in Atlanta Wednesday,

from 130 counties in the state will gather for the one-day session of the Georgia Council.

The meeting will revitalize the work begun at the nation-wide conference called by President Herbert

Hoover and which, during the depression years that followed, was almost forgotten by all save the group of earnest men and women who have carried on despite obstacles and now see a breaking of the clouds.

Expressing satisfaction with the progress the beer industry has been able to make in two years' time under federal and state regulation,

Colonel Ruppert points out that—

With 57 cents out of every dollar received being returned to government by the brewer in one form of taxation or another, leaving only 43 cents for the operation of his business, the brewer has not yet been able to return

5 cent beer to the public and approach the 1914 sales peak. In spite of this, the consumption of beer is steadily increasing over the last two years and we estimate that 50-

000,000 barrels will be sold in 1935 as compared with 27,000,000 barrels in 1933 and 41,000,000 in 1934.

When beer was legalized on April 7, 1933, its sale was permitted in only 19 states. Now it has been legalized in 46 states, only Georgia and Alabama still having laws prohibiting its sale. Public sentiment in both these states has, however, resulted in its sale in practically all incorporated communities.

Business conditions have been definitely improved in Atlanta by the renewed sale of beer. Dozens of stores long vacant have been filled, hundreds of men and women have been given employment, automobile truck sales have been boosted, and in various other ways business conditions generally have been benefited. While the state government has received no revenue, the municipal treasury has received a sizeable sum in license taxes.

Conscious of the need of a more

co-ordinated program of child health and welfare in Georgia, a group of men and women representing various organizations concerned with the health and welfare of the American child. It works harmoniously with lay and professional groups whose interests lie along the same lines, and will be represented at the conference.

The record of the past two years fully justifies the prediction of the brewers when they appeared before congress that if 3.2 beer was legalized the entire country would be benefited, with no bad effects.

A new government requirement is that the hot dog be resistant.

Few sights are as revolting as a wiener that doesn't care.

sweepstakes ticket agency in a beauty parlor. Probably specializing in lifting the loser's fallen face.

A veteran interviewer of Broadway types says acrobats are generally as mute off-stage as on. He can't get them to unbend.

A foreign visitor is amazed that

Ga. Child Welfare Workers Will Hold Conference Here

130 Counties To Be Represented at Piedmont Hotel Meeting Wednesday, May 15.

Problems of major importance, relating to child welfare in Georgia, are slated for detailed discussion and possible solution at the first annual conference of the Child Health and Welfare Council, to be held at the Piedmont hotel here Wednesday, May 15. Representatives of 130 counties of Georgia, in which councils are organized, will be in attendance.

Dr. Ethel Dunham, of the children's bureau, United States Department of Labor; Miss Gay Shepperson, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator; Dr. James E. Paulin, president of the Medical Association of Georgia, and other figures of prominence in the fields of welfare, medicine, public health and education have been invited to address the council session and the ensuing round-table conference.

Dr. Dunham, recognized as one of the nation's foremost minds in the field of child welfare, will discuss the major aspects of this problem as reflected in the work of her bureau. Intimately familiar with all phases of child welfare throughout the country, she is considered eminently fitted to bring to her hearers a clear-cut and comprehensive picture of child needs and of the means of meeting them.

Miss Shepperson, likewise equipped by long experience to speak with authority on child problems, will discuss the responsibilities of the organization to and interest in the activities of the council. She is expected to submit important data concerning the handicapped child of the state and offer suggestions and recommendations whereby the council may be of great service in meeting this tremendous problem.

Speakers Are Named.

The responsibility of organized medicine in its relationship to child health will be discussed by Dr. Paulin, who, in his capacity as head of the state medical body, will outline the association's policy in its constant efforts to adequately solve the child health problem.

Dr. Paulin, state bureau chairman of the state bureau of health, and Miss A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta's public schools; Thomas B. Mims, of the state department of public welfare, and Dr. M. Hines Roberts, of Atlanta, pediatrician, will serve as sectional chairmen for the round-table discussions to follow the general session.

Issues of peculiar interest to Georgia and to the various counties to be represented at the state session will be discussed fully during the public health, education, welfare and medicine round-table periods, and from these discussions policies for the ensuing year will be formulated.

Public Invited.

The one-day session, which will convene promptly at 9 a. m., is expected to be attended by representatives of the 130 county councils which reach, with their activities, into every section of the state. In addition to these representatives, the general public is invited to attend both the general session and the round-table conferences.

The Child Health and Welfare Council was founded last fall, as the result of the efforts of persons interested in child welfare held during the previous spring in Atlanta.

Its five-fold objective program is: To co-ordinate all organized groups in the state to study child needs; to focus attention on these needs; to carry out such measures as will preserve the health and protect the welfare of the children of the state; to support and support all possible measures as may seem indicated to enhance the health and welfare of the children of the state; and to observe National Child Health Day. In keeping with this program, it has directed its activities along the four main avenues of endeavor previously named: public health, welfare, medicine and education.

Since the organization of the state Child Health and Welfare Council in the fall, approximately 130 councils, with set-ups similar in all respects to that of the state body, have been formed.

Uniform Action Seen.

Within the state group, four sectional chairmen, with committees, have been chosen to formulate and direct the policies of the organization above the national and each county council line. Each has selected committees to carry out the policies as recommended by the state chairmen. Material from the central office, embodying the state chairmen's policies, is released through the state periodically, thus making concerted, uniform action possible.

During the past quarter of a century the efforts of the state council point out, tremendous strides have been made in this country in all phases of child health and welfare, with the result that the public generally has been thoroughly awakened to the great importance of the social set-up. Frequent fresh impetus has been given to the movement by White House conferences in recent years, and, though the depression years witnessed a wan in interest, a determined nation is again arming itself for a solution of child problems.

As results of the first White House conference on Child Health and Protection and ensuing conferences of like character, councils have been formed in many states to translate into action the proposals there advanced. Of these, the Georgia body is one of the most active.

Says Mississippi River, National Enemy No. 1, Must Be Brought Under Control

Editor Constitution: The Mississippi river and tributaries are United States' Enemy No. 1. It has destroyed an estimated half of our natural resources. It has cost us in divers ways many millions of dollars in material and annual tolls in human lives can't be computed. Its floods have uprooted forests that would have built an empire. Its cost in houses, live stock, and crops can never be counted. The volume of soil it has vomited into the gulf is planetary in its magnitude.

Its silt has slimed the sacred preachers of the south, and the annual curse has bred annual scourges of sickness. As it roars gulfward it boasts, "Control me, or I'll destroy you. Harness and direct me, and I'll become your willing slave, your greatest economic force!"

We have millions crying for work and bread, and millions of dollars with which to buy them.

This, the greatest task that ever confronted any nation, must, this time, have its share.

GEORGE E. GARY.
Rome, Ga., May 8, 1933.

Will Not Follow Democratic Party for Repeal, Says Minister

Editor Constitution: Your editor in Monday's Constitution decided me to write this article. The writer, if he knows himself, is a temperance man and interested in the best solution of the liquor problem.

Prohibition does not stand very tenaciously to the writer, and certainly not does not yet of those who strongly desire temperance some are on one side and some on the other and to all appearances are sincere.

Unfortunately on the side of prohibition, there is a strong and hardly be doubted, influence of illicit distillers and bootleggers who want prohibition for exactly the opposite reason that honest, sincere prohibitionists want it and will ply their own illicit business in their own selfish interest. The chances of success are much better under prohibition than under legalized sale, as they will at least have less competition.

Prohibition will hardly be obtained without the help of this crowd and if so will we have it even if the election goes for prohibition? Have we got to now under so-called prohibition?

One can get Scriptural approval or disapproval of the use of spirits, but no one can get Scriptural approval of the intertempate use of it, at least the writer has never found it in Scripture.

We know there are some who say they would rather die than take a drop of spirits. This is their individual privilege but it does not sound right to me. Yet there are many, many good men and women who would rather take a drop if it would help save their lives, and there are many who as Paul the Apostle are better off to take a little for health's sake, and who can better perform the duties of life. It can be seen that people will accomplish more good than those who read the Scripture one-sidedly. We might say, intertempate rather than wisely.

We do not mean to question the sincerity of total abstainers, neither do we question the sincerity of those who are not total abstainers, but are of temperance in all things, and we sincerely believe that if these two classes could get on a basis of agreement and work together rather than against each other the chances of a better control than now exists would be greatly increased.

No doubt there are those who are ready to say hard things about the writer of the above thought as the lines seem strongly drawn, but as we are not writing to get praise, nor to avoid abuse but, as we think and hope, to get to a better solution of the disputed question, we are trying not to trouble about favorable or unfavorable comments.

It would seem that if the two classes mentioned above could get on common ground the chances of success are great. We must be lined up (not intentionally but) with the illicit distillers and bootleggers. Is there any question about the truth of this?

We believe there is a better way than an effort at teetotalism, and we believe that the best way is to have the national, state and local governments bar the liquor or drink itself into subjection.

Dr. J. A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and now postmaster-general, after Mr. Roosevelt was overwhelmingly elected to the presidency work openly for the repeal of this same eighteenth amendment. He did not say that same J. A. Farley, said by many to be the most influential spirit in the present national administration next to the president himself, actually brought on the repeal movement one by one, even going personally to the Carolinas and several other states to the state capitals to help effect the repeal. Let it be known to the country over his own signature that he was most positively committed to this effort to "promote temperance by legalizing control of the liquor traffic."

Teetotalism Not the Best Way to Temperance, Holds Leading Georgia Citizen

Editor Constitution: Your editor in Monday's Constitution decided me to write this article. The writer, if he knows himself, is a temperance man and interested in the best solution of the liquor problem.

Prohibition does not stand very tenaciously to the writer, and certainly not does not yet of those who strongly desire temperance some are on one side and some on the other and to all appearances are sincere.

Unfortunately on the side of prohibition, there is a strong and hardly be doubted, influence of illicit distillers and bootleggers who want prohibition for exactly the opposite reason that honest, sincere prohibitionists want it and will ply their own illicit business in their own selfish interest. The chances of success are much better under prohibition than under legalized sale, as they will at least have less competition.

Prohibition will hardly be obtained without the help of this crowd and if so will we have it even if the election goes for prohibition? Have we got to now under so-called prohibition?

One can get Scriptural approval or disapproval of the use of spirits, but no one can get Scriptural approval of the intertempate use of it, at least the writer has never found it in Scripture.

We know there are some who say they would rather die than take a drop of spirits. This is their individual privilege but it does not sound right to me. Yet there are many, many good men and women who would rather take a drop if it would help save their lives, and there are many who as Paul the Apostle are better off to take a little for health's sake, and who can better perform the duties of life. It can be seen that people will accomplish more good than those who read the Scripture one-sidedly. We might say, intertempate rather than wisely.

We do not mean to question the sincerity of total abstainers, neither do we question the sincerity of those who are not total abstainers, but are of temperance in all things, and we sincerely believe that if these two classes could get on a basis of agreement and work together rather than against each other the chances of a better control than now exists would be greatly increased.

No doubt there are those who are ready to say hard things about the writer of the above thought as the lines seem strongly drawn, but as we are not writing to get praise, nor to avoid abuse but, as we think and hope, to get to a better solution of the disputed question, we are trying not to trouble about favorable or unfavorable comments.

It would seem that if the two classes mentioned above could get on common ground the chances of success are great. We must be lined up (not intentionally but) with the illicit distillers and bootleggers. Is there any question about the truth of this?

We believe there is a better way than an effort at teetotalism, and we believe that the best way is to have the national, state and local governments bar the liquor or drink itself into subjection.

Dr. J. A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and now postmaster-general, after Mr. Roosevelt was overwhelmingly elected to the presidency work openly for the repeal of this same eighteenth amendment. He did not say that same J. A. Farley, said by many to be the most influential spirit in the present national administration next to the president himself, actually brought on the repeal movement one by one, even going personally to the Carolinas and several other states to the state capitals to help effect the repeal. Let it be known to the country over his own signature that he was most positively committed to this effort to "promote temperance by legalizing control of the liquor traffic."

DIAMOND JUBILEE FOR TYPO UNION

Dinner and Dance on Ansley Roof To Celebrate Anniversary.

Members of Atlanta Typographical Union No. 48, one of the oldest and strongest labor organizations in Georgia, will celebrate the diamond jubilee of their union with an elaborate dinner and dance at 7 o'clock tomorrow night on the roof of the Ansley hotel.

A special committee, headed by William S. Wier as chairman and with Walter G. Clegg as secretary and Walter Clegg as recording clerk, has arranged the program which will include speeches by Clark Howell Sr., president and editor of The Constitution; H. H. Trotti, business manager of The Constitution; John A. Brice and James R. Gray, of the Journal; Herbert Post and Andrew Glass, of the Georgian; and Jerome Jones, editor of the Journal of Labor.

A feature of the meeting will be an address by Woodruff Randolph, secretary and treasurer of the International Typographical Union, who will arrive tomorrow from the union's international headquarters at Indianapolis.

The program also will include addresses of welcome by R. R. Tisdale, president of the local, and Chairman Wier of the general jubilee committee, and Ed L. Sutton, oldest living member of the union, will tell of its growth from a small beginning to its present organization of more than 300 men.

Luther Still will introduce the speakers.

The subject of Mr. Randolph's address will be "The International Typographical Union." From its World War II organization it has paid on $18,500,000 in pensions, $9,000,000 in mortuary benefits, $500,000 for expansion of trade education, $6,800,000 for maintenance of the printers' home at Colorado Springs, and $23,700,000 for hours, wages and improved working conditions.

In addition the International has paid out more than $43,000,000 for unemployment relief in the last four years.

A number of civic and business leaders of Atlanta and the state will be guests at the dinner.

Following the speaking program the floor will be cleared for dancing with a widely known orchestra furnishing the music.

WESLEY CHURCH DRIVE IS GAINING IN IMPETUS

Methodists Come Forward To Save Memorial From Bankruptcy.

Increased activity in the campaign to save Wesley Memorial church to Methodism was reported Saturday by Dr. R. L. Russell, chairman of the Atlanta district committee. "Our people are becoming thoroughly aroused to the gravity of the situation and the necessity for prompt action. Substantial progress is being made in the appointment of church campaign committees and in the securing of substantial pledges," he stated.

In a letter containing a substantial personal contribution, Bishop Warren A. Candler declared: "Wesley must be saved. That it should be sold under mortgage foreclosure is unthinkable. We have faith that Methodists will meet the emergency promptly."

Additional "Save the Church" campaign committees appointed this past week are as follows:

Park Street Methodist Church: Walter L. Richards, W. G. Thompson, Mrs. J. J. Rivers, R. L. Ramsey and Harold Clegg, appointed by the pastor, Rev. Fred L. Glisson.

Glenn Memorial: G. M. Goolsby, R. A. Edmondson Jr. and Dr. Paul Key, appointed by the pastor, Nat G. Long.

Underwood Methodist Church: J. P. Cranshaw, Clarence Wilson and Mrs.

Bees Win Attention By Five Points Swarm

When bees decide to swarm they do not care a particle where or when they do it, which explains why considerable excitement was caused at Five Points yesterday morning when a swarm of bees elected to build a new home in the police signal tower at that point.

W. S. Heard Jr., occupying offices in the Five Points Company of Georgia building, a bee expert in his spare time, came to the rescue and helped quiet the bees and remove them.

Mr. Heard was loaned a bell to create a noise, which, strangely enough, has a quieting effect upon bees. The owner may recall the bee by calling at Mr. Heard's office, in Room 427 of the Trust Company building.

Dr. R. Hughes, appointed by the pastor, Rev. Fred L. Glisson.

All committee chairmen are requested by Dr. Russell to get in touch with campaign headquarters, 223 Palmer building, where they may secure pledge cards, literature, and other information. Telephone Main 292-6222.

"Our aim is to have the Atlanta quota of $25,000 pledged by May 27, the date scheduled for the annual district conference at Wesley Memorial church," Dr. Russell said. "To do this, all committees will have to act promptly."

at the mile and a quarter mark, his hunched body thundering down the finish line with jockey "Smoky" Saunders crouched on his neck head down and letting him run. He ran the mile and a quarter in two minutes and five seconds, flat over a track which was "dead," but not muddy after a day of drizzling rain.

And, while he made no new marks, he did add something to Derby history by becoming the third son of Derby to win in this race. Also, A. Dale was sired by Halmie, winner of the 1895 Derby, and won in 1902. Burgoon King, the winner in 1932, was sired by Bubbling Over, the victor in the 1926 Derby.

Omaha was sired by Gallant Fox, winner of the 1930 Kentucky Derby. And today he was a real winner and a worthy successor to the famous "Fox."

JOCKEY JUST STEERS.

Some 60,000 racing fans went into the track to witness the race. The great field swept past the stands grouped at the turn and then came around back to the stretch again with the Omaha Express thundering in front and the others taking the mud behind him. It was a convincing victory and "Smoky" Saunders wisely let him run his race in the stretch.

I found Saunders in the jockey's quarters where that race of little men were discussing for the next race and cleaning up from the last.

The grandeur of it all and the surge of blood was still in his face when he came up from the paddock. He has a shock of red hair and his face was almost as red. It had been whipped by the cold wind but more than that it was the fast, hot blood beating there.

He looked a little dazed from it all. It is a man's job to wrench on the neck of a great running horse and ride him at full pace for a mile and a quarter. And when for half of it there is a fight for position and for the remainder there is the thunder of persuing hoofs behind, well, that is something.

And then there was the ceremony of presenting the cup and of putting the great wreath of American Beauty roses about the neck of the winning horse. Omaha pranced and snorted but seemed to know he was being rewarded for something. And he must have suspected it was the race.

"How did you rate your race?" I asked Smoky Saunders when he was alone with the news reel and camera men.

CROWD IN HYSTERIA.
"Omaha hasn't a lot of speed," he said, "but this time he broke well and when he went by the stands the first time I felt we were all right. He was in ninth place and under some restraint."

"Once we were around the first turn and set him down and he went to top speed and stayed there. I knew he could run the mile and a quarter. He could run two miles at that speed. And I didn't think the others could. They slowed and he kept going."

And then the red-headed youngster, from Roseman, Mont., a veteran of nine years of riding racing horses, began tugging at the white silk jacket with its red dots which are the racing colors of William Woodward, owner of the Belvoir.

They were soaked from the rain which had fallen on them as they paraded to the post and whipped into them as the Omaha Express made its run of a mile and a quarter.

It was a magnificent start they made. And all 18 of them came down the stretch from the start closely grouped.

The crackato sound of their hoofs beat out a wild symphony of sound which rose even above the roar of the crowd. And the crowd was roaring, shaking hands in the air, screaming, shouting and yelling shouts of encouragement as the magnificent animals their coats sleek like wet satin were driving past.

INDIANA SOLDIER MOVES UP.

They are the greatest few seconds in the world, those of the Kentucky Derby, which go but a little past two minutes. Packed into those few seconds are more thrills than any other one sport event produces.

They began to move out a bit as they came into the first turn with St. Bernard in the lead. The Shaffer colt, with jockey Keester up, started at full speed and ran that way for two poles before he began to drop.

In the back stretch Plat Eye, Boxer, St. Bernard and one or two others began to slide back. Smoky Saunders was making his move.

Fred Hoffman Named Winner

Freddy Hoffman, new manager of the Memphis Chickasaws, not only has proved his managerial ability, but that as a racing expert as well.

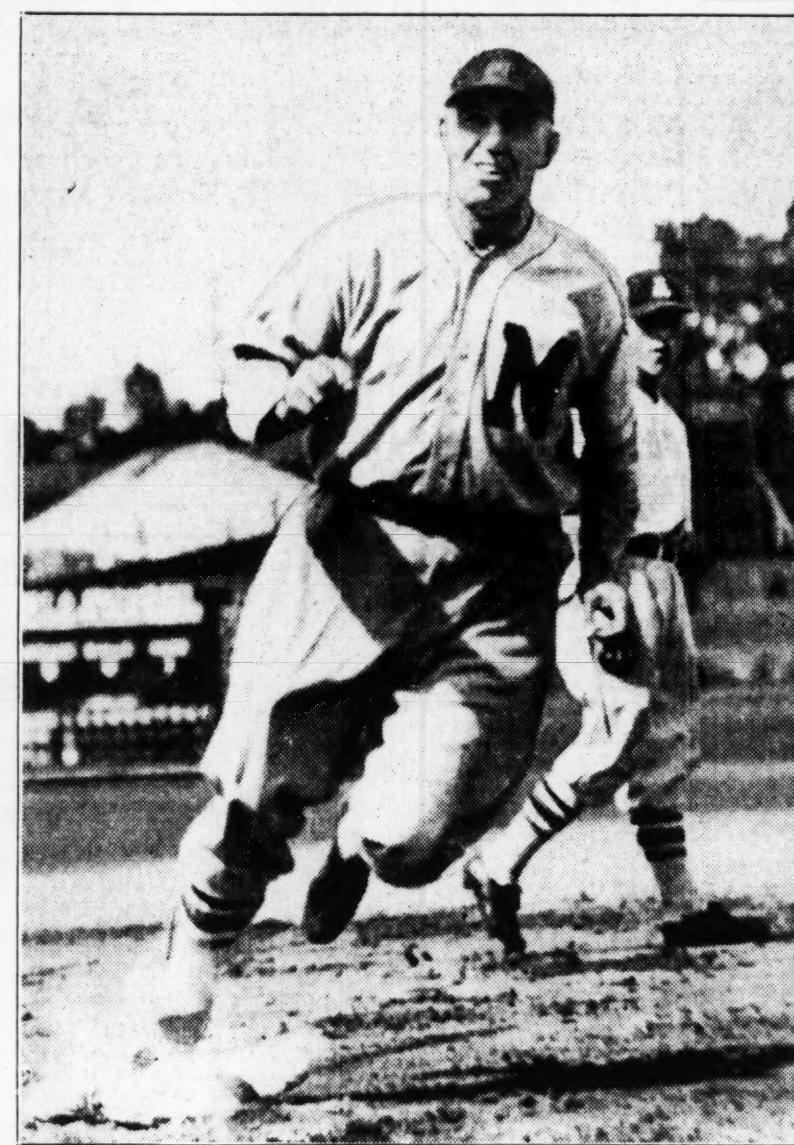

On Friday night, an Atlanta newspaperman asked Hoffman which horse would win the Kentucky Derby.

"Put your money on Omaha and forget about the rest," declared the amiable Hoffman, dismissing the others with a wave of the hand.

Hoffman, who likes horses and follows them closely at the winter tracks, pointed out that Omaha was not only a great distance horse and a son of Gallant Fox, 1930 winner, but that he had one of the smartest jockeys in the business up on him in Willie Saunders, whom he knows well.

Last night the newspaperman was thanking Mr. Hoffman for the tip and the latter was very happy over the double victory of Omaha and his team's 5-0 win over the Crackers.

Hardin Sets World Hurdle Record as L. S. U. Wins Track Meet

TORRANCE AIDS WITH 4 FIRSTS AT BATON ROUGE

'Slats' Hardin Does 220-Meter Hurdles in 22.4 Seconds.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 4.—(AP) Great athletes of the south and nation battered at the doors of world record fame today in the Southern Amateur Athletic Union's track and field meet, but whether or not record entries remained to be seen after official ruling upon record performances.

One world mark was declared bettered by Glen "Slats" Hardin, Louisiana State star sprinter and hurdler, and another announced equalled by Al Moreau, track Olympic aspirant hurdler, from Marksville, La., but whether the record will be officially recognized by the A. A. U. will depend upon whether cognizance will be taken of a breeze at the fliers' backs.

Aided by performances of Hardin, Jack Torrance, and other stars, Louisiana State University easily won the meet by the lopsided score of 52-12 points to 32 1/2 for Southwestern Louisiana Institute, the next closest competitor.

Lorolla, of New Orleans, was third with 4 points, Tulane next with 15 and Baker High school of Baker, La., next with 12 points.

POINTS SCATTERED.

Other points were scattered. A flock of meet records were bettered. An example of 5,000 saw Hardin run one of the finest races of his career to be clocked in 22.4 seconds in the 200-meter hurdles. Meet officials announced that his mark was better than the world record cited as 23 seconds.

His performance came after Moreau former L. S. U. star, barely beat the Olympic ace, Johnny Morris, of Lafayette, La., to the tape in the 110-meter hurdles in what was announced as world equaling time of 14.2.

The mercury-heated Herman Neumann was declared to have come with in a tenth of a second of equaling the world record in the 100 meters with a speed of 10.4. He likewise turned in a 20.7 speed.

TRACK FIRST.

The 303-pound Torrance, world sprint champion, made a sweep of first place in the shot, hammer, discus and 56 pounds weight. He set a new S. A. A. U. mark in the shot with 54 feet 5 inches.

Neumann beat S. A. A. U. records in both the 100 and 200 meters; Hardin in the 200-meter hurdles; Billy Utley, of Lorolla, with 13 feet 7 5/8 inches in the pole vault; Roland Romero, Olympic star from Lorolla, with 16 feet 1 1/2 inches; 23 feet 9 3/4 inches, and Duley Wilkins, of Southwestern Louisiana in the high jump and jump with 49 feet 9 inches.

Billy Brown, 16-year-old Baker (La.) High school prodigy, turned in great feats for his age in several leaping events, but the competition of older athletes was too much for him to win more than the high jump. He captured that at 6 feet, and jumped well over 24 feet in the broad jump.

CARNERA TRAINS AT HOT SPRINGS

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 4.—(UPI)—Carnera's "Mountain"—Primo Carnera—will come here Sunday for three weeks' training which he hopes will prove the first rung on the ladder leading to recapturing the heavy weight throne he lost to Max Baer.

Accompanying "Da Preem" here will be William Duffy and other business representatives. A suite has already been engaged at a local hotel. Duffy is said to believe that the spring will prove beneficial to Carnera's ailing sprained during his battle with Baer.

To accommodate the former champion, arrangements are being made for the erection of a special tub in a bath house since it is believed that those of ordinary proportions will not hold Carnera.

Black Crackers To Open Tuesday

Atlanta's Black Crackers will open their 1935 baseball schedule at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with the Memphis Red Sox as opponents.

A program featuring a parade and track events will precede the opening game. Dr. John Martin, of Nashville, president of the Colored Southern League, will be an honor guest and will attend the first ball.

A special section of the grandstand will be reserved for white patrons.

Memphis won the 1933 championship and the 1935 team includes many of the stars of the title-winning club.

Sammy Thompson, John McFarlin, Norman Cross and Harry Kelly, a righthander who has won three exhibition games are outstanding players on the Atlanta Black Crackers.

Haughdahl Plans Return To Racing

PATERSON, N. J., May 4.—(AP) Sig Haughdahl, veteran automobile racing driver who was the first man in the world to pilot a car at a speed of three miles a minute, announced today he is returning to dirt track competition. He will make his first start at Langhorne, Pa., next Sunday.

Haughdahl is staying in Hawthorne, a suburb, aiding "Pop" Green, racing car designer, in getting ready the machine he will drive.

The race driver landed in the speed world limelight back in 1922 when he drove a specialty-built car over the sands of Daytona Beach at a pace of over 180 miles an hour, an all-time record for a man driving a car he has set a path of records at dirt tracks throughout the country, always performing with the so-called "outlaws" or independents. His appearance at Langhorne, against such competitors as Billy Winn, Bob Sall, Johnny Hanlon, and Doc Mackenzie, will be his first A. A. A. competition.

Atlanta Doubles 1934 Attendance

Earl Mann, vice president of the Atlanta baseball club, last night reported that the Crackers had drawn a total of 47,330 paid admissions for the eight games played at home thus far this season out of nine scheduled. One of these was rained out.

Last year, at this stage, the Crackers had drawn 25,521 in six out of nine scheduled games, and one more was rained out.

Man figures that the Crackers played nine games up to this time last year and a like number this year, the attendance would be well ahead.

Last season the Crackers drew a total of 195,000 persons for the entire season at home, with nine Sunday games. This year will be their 10th season and 12 Sunday games. Mann figures that the attendance will show a big increase if the club maintains its pace.

had fled out to Omaha. Then Duke whipped a single to left to score Benning.

HOFFMAN'S HOMER.

Hoffman, second up in the second inning, saluted Martin with a high drive over the rightfield sign wall for a home run. That made the second run.

After Martin walked Sigmaos, first in the third, Nelson, who won his last start in 11 innings against Little Rock, went to his rescue and got the game out scoreless with some pretty pitching.

In the fourth inning, Nelson probably would have emerged unscathed but for Hamel's shot, which he knocked down with his bare hand, defining the last as a "further" foul. Hamel then got a first. The lick apparently numbered Nelson's hand, for he grooved one for Benning, the next hitter, and he singled to center to score Hoffman, who had singled for his second hit and been sacrificed to third by Henry.

"Bud" Thomas, who started and got credit for the wild game of Friday, relieved Nelson at the start of the fifth and got the side out in order, due mainly to a pair of nice plays by P. P. Peterson, who pinned Duke's short bunt, and made a great throw to first and Harry Taylor, who stretched high in the air to spear Chai's high toss on Kintana's ground.

"BUD" DOES WELL.

Thomas also relieved the Crackers in order in the ninth and eighth, but ran into a squall in the eighth when Hutchesson doubled for his first hit of the game and scored on Kintana's rippling single to left. Hoffman then ripped for his third hit and he and Kintana pulled off the double steal, the latter scoring the fifth and final run.

Hoffman then ripped for his third hit and he and Kintana pulled off the double steal, the latter scoring the fifth and final run.

"BUD" WINS.

Thomas also relieved the Crackers in order in the ninth and eighth, but ran into a squall in the eighth when Hutchesson doubled for his first hit of the game and scored on Kintana's rippling single to left. Hoffman then ripped for his third hit and he and Kintana pulled off the double steal, the latter scoring the fifth and final run.

LANIER NOSES OUT BOYS' HIGH ING. I. A. A. MEET

Smithies Finish Third at Augusta; Tucker Sets Javelin Record.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 4.—(P)—The Lanier Poets, of Macon, amassed a total of 48 points today to capture first honors and barely beat out Boys' High, of Atlanta, in the finals of the annual Georgia Interscholastic Athletic Association field and track meet.

Teach High finished in third place, more than eight points behind their city rivals.

While the Poets were sweeping to victory in many other branches they failed to figure prominently in two new records set in the heavier divisions. Tucker, of Tech High, spearheaded the javelin with a new record of 134 feet 2 1/2 inches, a mark formerly held by Gatlin of Boys' High, whose mark of 132 feet 7 inches was set in 1930.

NEW DISCUS RECORD.

Mingling of Georgia Military Academy, College Park, set a new record for the discus division when he sailed the discus 127 feet 3 inches. The latter is the old mark of 122 feet 1 inch established by Parren, of Lanier, in 1934.

Lanier's speed merchants were the first to break the tape in three featured events, the 120-high hurdles, 220-yard dash and a mile run, and added another first place to their list by taking the high jump.

Tech High captured the golf championship and divided the tennis title with Boys' High. Bobbitt, Tech High, in straight sets, won the singles championship, but lost to Dugger with Dugger but was vanquished in the final of the doubles by Gillespie and Manley, 6-1, 9-7.

Bobbitt Wins.

Bobbitt, seeded No. 2, reached the singles finals by defeating Tyre of Smyrna, 6-4, and Gillespie advanced by defeating Kelley, of Lanier, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2. Then he paired with Manley to beat Tyre and Olmstead, Savannah, 6-0, 6-4, to go into the finals with Bobbitt-Dugger, who advanced by defeating Tyre and Olmstead, Savannah, 6-2, 9-7.

Cook, of Tech High, toured the Augusta Country Club course in 153 to capture medal honors in the 36-hole golf tournament, while O'Leary, of Savannah High, furnished the day's highlight with a hole-in-one on the short No. 6.

Teams and their total points: Lanier, 48; Boys' High, 44 1/2; Tech High, 36; G. M. A., 17; A. R. C., 5 1/2; Savannah, 3.

Virginia National Goes to Oliver C.

WARRENTON, Va., May 4.—(P)—Mrs. T. H. Somerville's Oliver C. in the favorite, raced to victory today in the Virginia Grand National three miles over brick whipping A. B. Hag's Swamp Fox past the judges' stand by two lengths before a colorful crowd of 10,000 persons.

Noel Laing atop Oliver C. held the Somerville horse back until the jump, when he let go his favorite run. Dancer, owned by Alan Powers, and ridden by Randolph Duffey, was third. Swamp Fox was ridden by W. Hunt.

Royal Riot, leading most of the way, cut the last fence and the field swept past while he was going back to take it properly. He finished among the also rans along with Melita, Charioteer and Regent.

HUGHES TO MISS ATLANTA TOURNEY

White Golf Association. The qualifying will be extended through next Sunday and any municipal player joining the association is eligible and invited to participate in the tourney.

East Lake Golfers End First Round.

East Lake golfers spent a busy afternoon competing in the first-round matches in the annual golf committee trophy tournament, playing in a blind bogey and practicing for the Atlanta open Monday.

Second-round play will start today and continue all week, with the players having their choice of the two courses on which to play the matches. Handicaps will apply in each succeeding round.

FIRST FLIGHT.

SECOND FLIGHT.

J. C. Malone beat J. W. Irwin, 101-100; J. C. Johnson beat T. A. H. Scott, 101-100; George Randolph beat J. H. Stark, 101-100; Willis Callaway beat Gordon Butts, 101-100; T. J. Stewart beat John Fowler, 101-100; J. C. Johnson beat D. S. Clark, 101-100; R. J. Kirkpatrick beat Dewey Bowen, 101-100; Keith Conaway won from J. R. Cotter, 101-100.

THIRD FLIGHT.

Paul Butt beat A. G. Huston, 101-100; J. C. Roach won from W. W. Arnold, 101-100.

H. T. Green beat E. L. Thompson, 101-100; R. K. Vans beat R. E. Thompson, 101-100; E. W. O'Brien, 101-100; F. E. Emanuel beat T. M. Wilson, 101-100; J. E. Van Horn beat John Black Jr., 101-100; Bender beat J. L. Morris, 101-100.

Eleven Tied In Blind Bogey.

Eleven golfers, a record for bogey winners, finished in a tie for first place Saturday afternoon on the Druid Hills course as almost 200 players trekked over the course.

John Green, of Atlanta, open champion, played 18 holes but did not score very well. It was Hughes' first round in more than a month. He has been ill for the past three weeks and it is doubtful whether he will defend his crown Monday on the East Lake course as he has not been out of bed but three or four days.

Those finishing first were Clarence Grissell, 0, F. S. Sod, Dr. L. M. White, Bob Peacock, M. P. Martin, J. Nelson, W. R. Sullivan, Arthur Mims, Julius Hughes, Dr. C. W. Roberts and S. T. Brown.

Merritt Victor At Ansley Park.

Ed Merritt finished up to take second in the matches against last Saturday afternoon on the Ansley Park course. It was the first of a series of regular weekly events in addition to the spring and summer tournaments schedule.

A. C. Miller Jr. and W. T. Hanson tied for second place after finishing three up.

Play in the first round of the spring handicap tournament on the Ansley Park course will be completed this afternoon. There are six flights and only a few of the matches have been played thus far.

Two Strong Teams Play Here Today

In the absence of the Crackers, good baseball has been held at the Atlanta Park Sunday afternoon at 3:30 p. m., between Fulton Bag and American Bakers, two strong amateur teams.

The American Bakers team has a strong lineup and now leads the Commercial City league. The Bakers have won the last two games.

Fulton always puts out a strong fighting team.

As an opener, the fans will be treated to a good game of softball played by two of Atlanta's best teams. This will begin at 2 o'clock.

Admission will be 25 cents. A percentage of the proceeds will go to Confederate veterans.

Lawyers Maintain Emory Leadership

Piling up a 28-to-18 victory over the upholders of the title, the Lawyers maintained their leadership in the intramural league with five victories and two losses.

The Lawyers scored 12 runs in the fourth inning.

The Senior-Meds defeated the Freshmen-Meds to keep in second place with four wins and two losses.

Old-timers, still recall the almost forgotten exploits of the southpaw who broke into baseball in the St. Louis Nationals, now the Brown.

The Lawyer, Billy Martin and Joe Stewart also have done some timely clouting in recent games and will start against the Petrels.

Funeral Monday For Great Pitcher

ST. LOUIS, May 4.—(P)—Funeral services will be held Monday or one of the greatest left-handed pitchers of all time, Theodore Breitstein, 65, who died of heart disease last night.

Old-timers still recall the almost forgotten exploits of the southpaw who broke into baseball in the St. Louis Nationals, now the Brown.

He pitched for the Cardinals in 1911. With that team he had his best season, winning 21 and losing 19 in 1905.

After 1905 as a minor league under "Beb" retired in 1921. During the past three years he had been an employee of the St. Louis park department.

Walsh Sets Record In Women A. A. U.

CLEVELAND, May 4.—(P)—Stel.

W. Walsh, sensational Cleveland track star, won the national A. A. U. championship Saturday in the 100 yards.

Walsh, who has won the national A. A. U. title for the past three years, won the 100 yards in 10.22 seconds.

Walsh's time for the mile and sixteenth was 1:45 4-5. A crowd of 15,000 watched the feature race.

Gentleman of France.

FRANCIS THE FIRST. By Francis Hackett. 448 pp. New York: Doubleday, Doran & Co. $3.

"Stand on the boulevards today and you may see a Francis go by. He may be traveling fast, himself, at the wheel with a blonde girl by his side. He is the athletic type, the lithe, attractive male, broad-shouldered and thin-legged with his hair raked at the hairline, a military cap. His life, the life of the glint, as he flashes past. He is a type of Frenchmen not yet extinct nor likely to be extinct for centuries."

Francis Hackett so describes the Renaissance king in the opening paragraphs of his book. Because Francis I was the personification of French character, there is a special significance in his biography. But aside from its virile portrait of the Frenchman who exemplifies all Frenchmen, the book is significant for its comprehensive and erudite survey of the European scene during one of its most interesting periods. When Francis was born in 1494 Columbus had just discovered a new land whose trading activities were later to upset the currency, divert shipping and raise prices all over Europe. Feudalism had been virtually wiped out and a unified France had begun to take its place. Medievalism had already given way to the tide of the Renaissance, and the Reformation was lifting its head out of the religious upheaval of the day—an upheaval due largely to the extravagances and political wiles of the popes who were first of all princes with territorial ambitions. Encroachment on the borders was one of the principal activities of all the rulers of Europe, with continual wars and deceptive treaties that struck "the opening chord of that terrific warlike national symphony that Europe has been playing ever since."

When Francis became king, of course, Francis I was at the death of Louis XII, he, too, had territorial ambitions. His desire for Milan dominated his entire reign, but he was not a soldier, and his persistent efforts to capture the Italian city resulted only in the virtual bankruptcy of the French treasury. The effects of this were disastrous, and when Francis was held captive in Spain by the Emperor Charles V. When he returned home after signing an agreement which he later repudiated, he took up his orgy of spending where he left off. His wars cost possibly no more than his domestic expenditures. As a lover of the arts and of the finer things in beauty, he gathered about him Leonardo da Vinci, Andrea del Sarto, Marot, Cellini. With the aid of Italian architects he built Chambord, Chateaubriant and other unbelievably extravagant and beautiful chateaux along the banks of his beloved river Loire. He was then repudiated, and he pursued the sport of hawks with his swashbuckling confessor. It was here he entertained his mistresses.

The most influential persons in his life were his mother, Louise, and his sister, Marguerite, who, together with Francis, formed the triumvirate which ruled France. Marguerite was a most intelligent and likeable woman who twice married men whose domains would add strength to those of Francis. Her marriages were as meaningless as all the other royal marriages of Europe, arranged solely for political purposes. The Louvre, her life, her brother, Francis, and she spoiled him just as Louise and his mistresses spoiled him, because he was as wholly lovable in his weaknesses as in his strength. His weaknesses were many, for he was selfish, extravagant and deceptive, and he was evasively indifferent to the political problems of his time. His strength lay in his great human qualities, his zest for life, his aesthetic absorption in the arts and literature which flowered under his patronage. When Europe shook under the Reformation, it was Francis who held fast to the mother church and retained Catholicism for France.

The age of Francis was a splendid age, incomparably productive of great men. There was Michael Angelo, Leonardo da Vinci, Raphael, Cesare Borghese, Erasmus, Machiavelli, Loyola, Calvin, Luther, Celini, Rabelais, Ferdinand, Maximilian, Charles V., Henry VIII, Francis I, Louis XIV, Rousseau, and the gates to beauty and truth, and Mr. Hackett has entered these gates to bask in the glory behind them. The result is a book no less splendid and comprehensive than the Renaissance itself and wholly worthy of it.

RACHEL EVE NEELY.

Readin' 'n' 'Ritin'

New York, May 3, 1935.

The advisory board of the School of Journalism of Columbia University met today and recommended the winners of the Pulitzer awards for 1934. The task is somewhat thankless, as the members of the board cannot make detailed replies to the adverse criticism which inevitably follows the various awards.

It may be recalled that last year when the 1933 prize was given to Carolyn Miller for "Lamb in His Bosom," there arose a hullabaloo which quickly died down as the merit of her novel quickly won deserved recognition from the public.

Certainly, this year's choice of novel and biography and cartoon ought not to disrupt a nation still struggling to get on an even keel.

The prize for correspondence was awarded after much thought and seems likely to prove acceptable to the world of journalism. As for the choice of the winning play, your reaction will depend on your taste in the drama. Some persons prefer fried collards to spinach, and some like neither. So there you are!

There is always much speculation each year as to the probable winners of the various awards, and a number of the cabaret columnists, with ear or eye to the keyhole, make guesses, some good and many indifferent or bad.

In the past it has been the custom to send a list of the awards to the several press associations and the daily newspapers marked legibly "hold for release." The "leakage" has been appreciable to the extent that this year there will be no advance information given out. Instead, these announcements will be made at the "Pulitzer prize dinner," sponsored by the Columbia University School of Journalism Alumni Association, which will be held Monday night of next week at the Hotel Commodore.

From time to time, writers whose books are reviewed in this page, express their appreciation. For instance, Mrs. L. M. Alexander, author of "Candy," which was reviewed recently by Mignon Breitenbuecher, writes that the criticism gave her "a great deal of pleasure."

"It is not only that your review of the book was sympathetic, I was even more gratified because you had the insight to perceive the meaning of the novel and the purpose I had in writing it," continues Mrs. Alexander. "For this reason your comments were more penetrating and more illuminating than those of many of the critics, and your review one of the ablest of those I have read."

"There was, to me, the additional pleasure that such a critique came from the south, where the scenes and characters I portrayed are known."

It might as well be mentioned that to J. C. H. came a letter of thanks for her review of Vincent Sheean's "Personal History."

And, to complete the record, word comes from Vardis Fisher, whose vivid volume, "Vridar Hunter," was ably reviewed by Marjorie Uhr, that Richard Brewster's suggestion to bibliophiles concerning his novel is "so persuasive I think perhaps I'll begin to collect myself."

Which sentiment is expressed in a fashion which entitles Mr. Fisher to be credited with a most sprightly double entendre.

Explains Bibliomania

THE DELIGHTFUL DIVERSION. By Reginald Brewer. 320 pp. New York: The Macmillan Company. $3.

This is a book for book lovers and book collectors. I make a distinction between the two because for each collector there are many book lovers who do not collect in the strict sense of the word. I believe this book to be a necessary addition to the library of a collector and that it should make many persons slip across the line to bibliomania.

Mr. Brewer has presented collecting from a standpoint of the man who cannot afford to spend a great deal of money; the man who can spend a few dollars but not the man who has not the money to buy Gutenberg Bibles and Shakespeare folios; in short, you and me. And in doing this he is doing us all a service. Too much publicity has been given to thousand-dollar books and not enough to two-dollar books.

Collectors will welcome this book for many reasons. The first is that it contains a chapter entitled "Why Collect Books?" and the second reason is that it contains a check list giving points and prices of 600 American first editions.

Every collector has a host of friends who regard his collecting activity as the one blot on an otherwise good record.

Mr. Brewer has just given up attempting to explain the lure of the elusive first edition. Here is a lucid explanation of the collecting urge. The second feature, the check list of first editions, will cause a great deal of comment among collectors and dealers.

No check list giving prices is safe from criticism, but this one is.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

EDITED by RALPH T. JONES

'David Copperfield' at Grand, 'The Thin Man' Returns Monday

The return engagement of "David Copperfield" continues Sunday at Loew's Grand theater. Starting a four-day return engagement Monday is "The Thin Man," the famous and highly efficient screen adaptation of Dashiell Hammett's best seller among mystery stories, with Myrna Loy and William Powell in principal roles, and with W. S. Van Dyke directing.

"David Copperfield" was made after most careful and thorough research. The story of the boy's life and the Dickens' masterpiece was made under supervision of Hugh Walpole, distinguished modern novelist and an authority on Dickens' life and work. This film served to present a new and brilliant child actor to the public — Freddie Bartholomew's performance as the young David received universal acclaim.

A brilliant cast has been assembled to impersonate the Dickens characters, many of whom are as familiar to readers as their acquaintances. W. C. Fields, Madge Evans, Maureen O'Sullivan, Elizabeth Allan, Basil Rathbone, Frank Lawton, Roland Young, Una O'Connor and many others are employed under George Cukor's able direction to visualize the famous people who infuse the story with lasting life.

"The Thin Man" has a spirited and ingenious plot, but it is most effective because of the successful way in which the debonair mood of the story has been transferred to the screen. It has had a decided effect upon subsequent screen production with its banter and hilarity contrasting with the grim drama which underlies the lighter moments.

Powell and Miss Loy are seen as a happy married couple who come to New York for a holiday. Before the marriage, Powell was a detective and a highly competent one. Back in his old territory he finds himself drawn, much against his will, into a strange disappearance which has baffled the police completely.

"The Thin Man" represents a high spot in the making of screen entertainment. It is one of the best films ever offered and has enjoyed extraordinary success.

Will Rogers Provides Laughs In Feature at Paramount

Will Rogers' latest comedy, "Life Begins at 40," now playing at the Paramount theater, contains a bundle of hilarious situations that will act as magnets to the laughter chained within us all. This breezy comedy, suggested by the Walter B. Pitkin book hit, is described as a hilarious fun test that works into a pandemonium of mirth.

The inimitable Will is cast as a country editor who proves that the way to get a kick out of life is to put a double kick into it.

From other cities, reports tell of the great popularity of the "downright triumph" of Will Rogers' screen career. Youth and age roar in unison with the mirth-provoking happenings.

Rogers stampedes excitement into his small town, tries his hand at match-making, leads an army of veterans back into battle, fights for every woman, and so on.

The comedy of "Life Begins at 40" is doubled with a tender romance. As the editor, Rogers clears the reputation of a youth "railroaded" to penitentiary and so stirs up a hornet's nest of hostility.

Sol M. Wurtzel produced this Fox film picture, which George Marshall directed. The screen play is by Lamar Trotti, who collaborated on the script of "Judge Priest."

With Will Rogers as any Will himself conveys, leave his lips in this picture. They deal with politics, women, rusticity, wealth, self-praise, love, youth and age.

Jimmy Cagney Stars at Georgia For Law and Order in 'G-Men'

The leap from gangster to copper would not appear such a long jump for some players, but the last person one would expect to succumb to the cause of law and order is Jimmy Cagney.

Nevertheless, the one and only Cagney, tough guy of the movies, has turned federal sleuth in his latest picture "G-Men" — now showing at the Georgia theater, in which, as a member of the United States Department of Justice, he tracks down and eliminates every type of character he has so often portrayed.

Cagney is still the tough guy — tougher than he has ever been before.

Gregory Rogers, author of "G-Men," built his story around the headlines that have been chasing one another across the front pages of American newspapers for the last two or three years. He was inspired by the heroic men, who have knocked the very foundations from under gangsters and gave the title "G-Men" to his scenario.

James Cagney is the Department of Justice agent around whom most of the action evolves. He is it who traps the mad dog of the gangs, the killer whom no jail could hold, and extricates him in a rendezvous with death.

In and out of the underworld, these G-Men roam, dying and taking life, that civilized society might live safely.

Cagney has never given a better characterization, nor one that gained for him a greater amount of audience sympathy. He is good, too, in the lighter side of the picture as well as

Thriller by Dashiell Hammett, 'Mr. Dynamite' at Capitol Today

Remember the "Thin Man"? What a thrilling, entertaining film it was! Now the same author, Dashiell Hammett, has turned out another bang-up mystery yarn, full of amazing situations and delightful comedy to go with it. The title of this new Hammett picture is "Mr. Dynamite," starring Edmund Lowe, Esther Ralston, Jean Dixon and Victor Varconi. It opens a week's engagement at the Capitol, Atlanta's only vaudeville theater, starting today, Sunday.

The stage also for the week the Capitol has booked the road show vaudeville unit, "Broadway Ballyhoo," which features a cast of vaudeville headliners, headed by Harrison Kimball, Broadway's musical comedy playboy.

Many of the cast of the Capitol's new stage show have been starred in Fanchon and Marco and R. K. O. units. Headlined in the "Broadway Ballyhoo" unit are Rosita and Perez, Virginia Stevens, the Musical Bells, Marie Moore, Jack "Harmonium" Smith with the Goodrich Girls, a dancing ensemble from the Chez Paree night club in Chicago. A 12-piece stage band, with Enrico Leide conducting a special overture, will thrill music for the stage show.

Edmund Lowe, star of the Capitol's screen feature, "Mr. Dynamite," is shown as a ne'er-do-well but crack detective, who is run out of every town he gets into. His language is simply awful; not exactly what one would expect from a master of arts. Edmund Lowe revels in that kind of language.

In the picture, Lowe gets his master assignment when Jarl Dvorak (Victor Varconi) celebrated Bohemian composer and concert pianist, is shot.

Sasha Sayers, Buck Jones in "The Fighting Sheriff," the county sheriff in order to establish the identity of the leader of a holdup gang. Loretta Sayers has the feminine lead.

Starting next Friday, the Fannie Hurst novel which John M. Stahl made into a picture, starring Claudette Colbert and William Warren, will be the attraction for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Others in the cast are Ned Sparks and Rochelle Hudson.

Two of the screen's heroes, Edmund Lowe and Jack Holt, are back for the first time in "The Bear Man Wins" for Friday only. It makes not only a rare but crackling combination which propels the action comedy and drama. Florence Rice has the feminine lead.

Safe Refrigeration . . .

IN YOUR HOME IS A YEAR ROUND NECESSITY

IF ANY perishable food becomes warmer than 50 degrees F. in your home for just a short time, mold and bacteria multiply. Then you can never be sure that the food is safe to eat, even though you are unable to detect a bad odor or taste.

You are very particular when you buy.

So the only way to be certain that foods are good when served is to always keep them in a dependable refrigerator where temperatures are just right.

Are you SURE when the time comes to serve?

AS MAN progresses and becomes more highly civilized, the tools he uses, the clothes he wears, the vehicles of transportation, the food he eats and the way in which the food he eats is kept, are continually becoming better and more efficient. When you stop to consider that in many modern homes today, in fact, in most modern homes, you will find Electric Irons, Electric Vacuum Cleaners, Electric Radios, Electric Washing Machines, Electric Fans, yet standing in the corner of the modern sanitary kitchen, we still find an old-fashioned Refrigerator. As an actual fact, THERE IS AS MUCH DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE OLD-FASHIONED REFRIGERATOR AND THE MODERN ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR AS THERE IS BETWEEN THE OLD OX-DRAWN SLEDS USED BY MEN THOUSANDS OF YEARS AGO AND THE AUTOMOBILE OF TODAY.

TWENTY-FIVE years ago the old-fashioned Refrigerator was the MODERN efficient and recognized way of preserving food stuffs in the home. The old-fashioned Refrigerator did a good job. It did the best job it could, but today it is NOT MODERN AND IT IS NOT ECONOMICAL. Since it is not modern and not economical, it MUST PASS ON AND MAKE WAY FOR EFFICIENCY AND ECONOMY.

A refrigerator is primarily used to preserve foods. If that is true, and we all know that it is true, is it not logical that the refrigerator should be kept at a certain temperature? Just any temperature will not do. When your body temperature is 98 degrees Fahrenheit, you are well. When your temperature rises to 100 degrees, you are sick. When your temperature drops to 96 degrees, you are sick or dead. THERE IS AN ACCURATE AND DEFINITE TEMPERATURE FOR THE HUMAN BODY. SO IT IS WITH FOOD. Let us take milk for an example. Every ounce of milk you give to your baby contains a certain number of Bacteria, germs, bugs, or whatever else you want to call them. Up to certain limits these germs are not harmful—and under a temperature of 50 degrees the growth of Bacteria is stemmed to such a point that we are able to keep fresh milk for a long period of time. However, when it is considered that the temperature in an average Refrigerator is rarely ever below 60 degrees you can readily see why milk will not keep for more than a day, if that long.

TEST THE TEMPERATURE OF YOUR REFRIGERATOR TODAY—YOU WILL BE SURPRISED AT THE HIGH TEMPERATURE. IT WILL BE ABOVE 50 DEGREES.

GROWTH OF MOLD AND BACTERIA Must Be Checked TO PREVENT SPOILAGE

AUTHORITIES agree that temperatures below 50 degrees F. are necessary to check the growth of mold and bacteria.

"As soon as the temperature rises a single degree above 50 degrees F., the activity of the bacteria becomes notably increased."

—From article in Pictorial Review by Helen Treys Smith, formerly of the Household Chemistry Department, Teachers College, Columbia University.

"There is no estimating the number of persons who, while not 'sick in bed', feel 'rather poorly' or 'not strong' — because improperly preserved food gives them insufficient nourishment and their strength is exhausted combating the action of germs."

—Dr. Frederic Danrau in "Popular Science Monthly."

—Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.

"In the six years from 1924 to 1929—there were 10,906 cases of disease and 371 deaths caused by infected milk."

—U. S. White House Conference on Child Health and Protection.

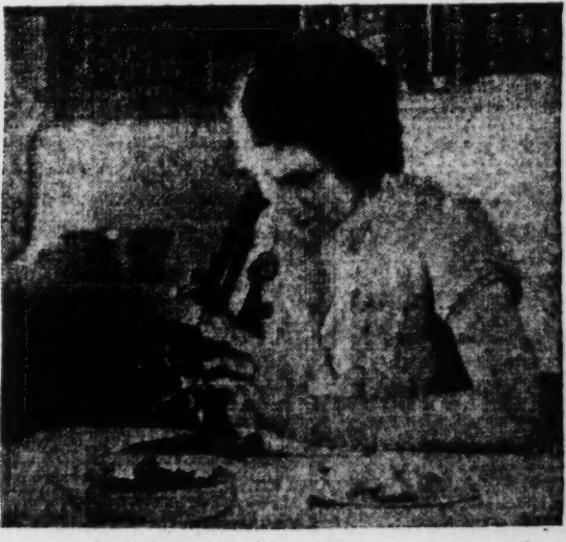

"If pasteurized milk is not kept cold—the dangerous Welch's bacillus and other germs will develop . . . Diarrhea in children is often due to this cause."

John Harvey Kellogg in "Good Health."

FOOD MAY LOOK GOOD, SMELL GOOD, TASTE GOOD; BUT YET CONTAIN SUFFICIENT BACTERIA TO CAUSE SERIOUS HARM

This is what The American Journal of Public Health says:—"It is extremely difficult to tell with accuracy when food is spoiled or decomposed."

You would be startled to look through a microscope at food which had been exposed for even a short time to temperatures above 50 degrees.

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, May 4.—(P)—The bond market developed into something of an irregular affair today with corporate issues selling generally higher and United States governments distinctly soft.

Another special movement in low-priced utility bonds was the outstanding feature of the session. Some of these, including two issues of New York Public Service Co., were virtually flat. Junior railroad obligations likewise displayed a steady tone, but some of the better-known prime investment loans were backward on circulation of more gossip concerning refunding plans.

Other than announcement that the Treasury would jack up the price of these 2 7/8 per cent bonds, which will be exchanged for the called First Lincoln 50 cents a hundred, on May 7, there was nothing in the day's news to account for the further dip in government issues, most of which have been in supply for two days in succession. It was pointed out, however, that during the current week Treasury bonds have been in vigorous fashion, the majority of individual issues attaining new highs on two successive days, and a certain amount of profit-taking was a natural outcome. With one or two exceptions, losses today averaged 2-32nds to 4-32nds among the Liberties and Treasuries, while some minor improvement was shown by some of the indirect obligations.

The record price list further gains were made by American Water Works Co. at 80, Columbia Gas 5s at 90, Laclede Gas 5 1/2s at 88 1/2, Chile Copper 5s at 93 1/2, Penn Dixie 6s at 85 1/4, Baltimore & Ohio 6s at 71, Great Northern 4 1/2s at 72 and New Haven 6s at 40. Loans to various traction companies in New York were active, and the strenuous performance Friday, but there were isolated cases of strength again, including Manhattan Railway first 4s, which ended more than a point higher at 53 1/2.

Among the high-priced bonds showing slight recessions were Santa Fe 4s at 109 3/8, Consolidated Gas 5 1/2s at 106 and Peoples Gas 5s at 90.

In the foreign bond activity was steady and price changes narrow. German government bonds were more steady and some of the country's private obligations again showed improvement, including the Agricultural Bank 6s, Austrian 7s also were higher.

Transfers aggregated $6,569,000, par value, compared with $6,721,000 last Saturday. The Associated Press averages were 5 of a point higher to .2 of a point lower.

LEAD PRICES HOLD FIRM DURING WEEK

NEW YORK, May 4.—(P)—Lead prices were firm during the week as a result of a diversified demand from battery makers, as well as from sheet, pipe and tube manufacturers. A substantial reduction is looked for in lead stocks due to large shipments in recent weeks.

Foreign and domestic copper markets presented an interesting contrast. While activity at rising prices, the featured European situation, the domestic market ruled quiet and unchanged.

April sales of 24,800 tons failed to meet the quota by a considerable margin. Blue Eagle held at 9 cents but there was further discussion on the likelihood of an advance in the event the current moves above the $8 to $8 1/2 level.

Relative quietness of zinc reflected the combination of smaller copper sales and the reduction in steel operations. Although production of concentrates in the tri-state district continues heavy, ore prices remained unchanged.

Prices, after fluctuating irregularly, ended the week in a steady position. Unsettlement originated in London, but consumers replenished stocks on the declines. The world end-April supply was reported at 19,997 tons, representing a decrease of 816 tons compared with March. Zinc plate production was reduced 3 per cent, 50 per cent of capacity.

Although the Chinese market showed no change, American antimony sellers reduced prices 1 cent a pound on prompt shipment, and 3 to 12 cent a pound on shipments beyond 30 days. The declines accompanied rumors of keener competition in the lead market from sellers of other lead.

Demand for steel has been spotty with production placed at 46 per cent of capacity, a 1-point reduction for the week. Farm implement manufacturers, particularly tractor producers, reported a slight increase, but automobile industry takings have tapered off due to labor troubles. Scrap prices have been steady, due to heavier export demand and the advance in freight rates.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS

FENNER & REANEY.—It would light up trade commitments on any bulge resulting from a favorable rail decision and would continue a cautious attitude until the construction of the new bridge has been demonstrated.

COURTS & CO.—No change whatever was expected in the general market Saturday, and the outlook for this week is decidedly promising.

COTTON OPINIONS

HUBBARD BROTHERS & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—The tone has been aided by the action of other markets, particularly the cotton market, which has been quiet for a few uncertainties. Juin Liverpool 5/31.

FENNER & REANEY.—Weather and tightness of supply are important factors. We look for prices to move higher.

COURTS & CO.—The completion of a new bridge by the president's cabinet is expected this week, with favorable conclusions.

GRAIN OPINIONS

COURTS & CO.—Favorable weather is causing selling of grains, but if other markets continue strong, we expect grains to recover.

Slav Fete 126th Birthday.

To celebrate his 126th birthday, Radonja Ilitch fought his relatives at his home near Nish, Yugoslavia, recently. Three sons, all over 80, and several great-grandchildren were among the guests. Ilitch fought for 60 years in Serbia's struggle to free herself from Turkish domination.

Cross Sections of Life In Gate City of South

By appointment from Governor Talmadge, Dr. Philip Rubin, Savanah, began his three-year term yesterday as a member of the state board of chiropractors. His term expires May 5, 1938.

Official forces at the state capitol yesterday were arranging radio programs for Tuesday night to hear Governor Talmadge's broadcast from Washington, which is to be a continuation of his fight on the national administration. The half-hour speech is scheduled to be delivered from 10 to 10:30 u. m., Atlanta time.

E. M. McCanless, of Canton, has been named special attorney to assist the state banking department in liquidation of the Pickens County bank at Jasper, it was announced yesterday by Carlton Mobley, executive secretary to Governor Talmadge.

FALSE TEETH AND FALSE ALARMS"

Just as an undertaker sometimes has to bury a doctor's mistake . . . so a water glass often holds a dentist's error. The reason so many false teeth spend more time in the mouth is . . . there are too many false alarms in Dentistry!

Making plates here is an ART! We specialize. Our laboratory man would rather make plates than eat—his skill is little short of marvelous! And this office is crowded all the time.

DON'T BUY THEM ON PRICE ALONE—the actual materials cost little—it's the skill in making that counts and you can't buy skill in the ten-cent-store! Ours are teeth in FACT as well as NAME.

Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs Holds Annual Four-Day Convention in Valdosta This Week

Georgia clubwomen find a great stimulus in the state meetings held annually and the council of the Federation of Women's Clubs which convenes in Valdosta on May 7, promises to be an inspiration for the coming year. Facts, figures and features of federated club work will be revealed at the day-long sessions, and the various programs will be replete with stellar attractions. The first evening furnishing the fine arts program will follow the candle-light dinner. Mrs. W. H. Oliver, president of the hostess club, will preside at the Highways of Tomorrow," on Thursday night the council meeting.

"President's night" will be Wednesday, May 8, and will feature the innovation of a grand procession of past presidents, district presidents, club presidents and the state president. Mrs. Albert Hill, vice president at large, will preside at the session which will open the program. Mrs. G. L. White, representing the Wymodaus Club, will preside at the "Crossroads," bearing on the council theme, "Whither have yet built a road today?" Added interest will be given to the deliberations by having the controversial subjects of today presented by speakers offering contrasting viewpoints who believe that if a cause is to have success it must have witnesses who will speak up for it and be there to it. There was never a time when there were more worthwhile things to stand for than at the present crossroads.

As a speaker, Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, will speak on "The Importance of Women's Clubs" and the various programs will be replete with stellar attractions. The first evening furnishing the fine arts program will be Valdosta's night, local talent showing off the candle-light dinner. Mrs. W. H. Oliver, president of the hostess club, will preside at the ### Third District Group Holds Conference.

Mrs. A. Brim, chairman of the American Home department of the third district G. F. W. C., held a conference of chairmen and divisional chairmen of family finance, home economics, home extension service, garrisons, insurance, and safety in the Methodist church. Her programs and plans were well made and presented by some outstanding clubwomen of the district.

Each club representative told of their outstanding work under this department, and stressed the necessity of every club having a home department, as it is the most important phase of club activities. One of the most convincing talks was on "Insurance," by Mrs. A. C. Moye, Cuttspert.

Luncheon was served by Dawson Woman's Club at the clubhouse.

Polo Game Will Attract Society's Interest

FORT McPHERSON, Ga., May 4. Atlantans and members of the military set will assemble on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the polo game to be played on the polo field, opposite the polo field, between the Governor's Horse Guards and the garrison team. The game is the second of the summer series between the two teams and sport-minded members of society are anticipating the event with interest.

A dinner-dance was given on Friday evening at the garrison with Major Joseph B. Pate and Mrs. Pate and Captain David E. Barnett and Mrs. Barnett acting as the official hosts. Captain Truman E. Boudinot and Mrs. Boudinot and Lieutenant Powell W. Griffen and Mrs. Griffen entertained at a party, the guests including a number of the military set.

Among those making reservations were Major Pate and Mrs. Pate, Miss Lucretia Van Horn, Captain Willis A. Heden and Mrs. Heden, Captain F. J. Kellus and Ben Pate Jr.

For the polo game, to be held on May 9, 10 and 11, attracting the interest of the garrison set, Captain Boudinot, Lieutenant David Hedeckin and Mrs. Hedeckin, and Lieutenant Scott Sanford will leave on May 7 for Benning, to take part in the show.

A junior dance was given at the club on Saturday evening, with Major Pate and Mrs. Pate and Captain Albert G. Wing and Mrs. Wing as the official hosts. Peonies and white tapers were used in the decorations. The guests included a number of the army, younger set and additional guests from town.

Mrs. Huiet Fêtes Daughter on Birthday.

Mrs. Ben T. Huiet was hostess Wednesday afternoon at her home on Cherokee avenue, honoring her daughter Edy, on her seventh birthday anniversary. Cut flowers and Easter lilies decorated the house throughout. A lace cover adorned the dining table where a birthday cake was in the center with seven candles on it.

Edy wore "Sonny" Almand, Elmer Hall Jr., Guy Hutchinson, Farie Colly, Hamilton Foster, Carrie Louise and Coleman Huiet, Louise and Katherine Lambert, Laurine Von dorau, George Dunbar, Edith Robertson, Mildred Hall, Gorgann Rudder and Edythe Huiet.

Vidalia Clubwomen Hear Splendid Reports.

The president, Mrs. W. C. Somers, presided at the April meeting of Vidalia club, and expressed her appreciation of the splendid work done by the members and of their co-operation in helping to make Vidalia a cleaner and more beautiful city. Mrs. J. G. Mosley spoke of the good fellowship, co-operation and loyalty that had existed among the members and urged that we continue this same spirit of good fellowship and service. The one objective for next year will be to get every member to do something.

Mrs. R. H. Orr served as chairman of press and publicity and Mrs. Jack Meadows was elected in her place. Mrs. Orr served as press chairman for two years and had done work in a capable way. Mrs. W. B. Bragg was elected delegate to the state convention in Valdosta. Mrs. M. R. M. Stanley alternate. The closing thought in the business session was, "Let us live up to our by-laws and get in dues by June."

A program on "The Drama" was given by Miss Augusta Goss, teacher of expression at Brewton-Parker Junior College. She gave a history of "The Drama" and said the Little Theater was the newest, most free and democratic of forces in the art of America's stage. Little Theaters are established for the love of drama and not for love of gain—a new move in America. The first Little Theaters in the United States were in Chicago, Boston and New York. One of the first things accomplished by them was to prove the fact that they bring new art forces to smaller towns that would otherwise never see the various changes that are being wrought in drama.

Miss Margaret Hagan, a pupil of Miss Goss, gave a reading, "Madam Butterfly," in most charming manner. The newest Miss Goss gave readings by American authors, including "What I Call a Living," by Edgar A. Guest; "Roofs," by Joyce Kilmer; "Trouble," by Frank L. Stanton. Social hour hostesses were Mesdames Frank E. Howald, Fred Powers, L. B. Moore, Roy C. Bobbitt, J. W. Poe, David New, J. G. Mosley and W. C. Somers.

Broxton Woman's Club

Fifty members attended the April meeting of Broxton's Woman's Club and distinguished guests from Douglas were Mrs. Alice L. Clegg, president of Douglas Woman's Club, and Mrs. M. D. Dickerson, chairman of club institute eighth district. The meeting over which the president, Mrs. L. D. Lenton, presided, was with Mesdames William Rainbow and B. H. Chernoff, assisting hostesses being Mesdames Roy Bird and J. L. Sapp. A. G. Clegg, chairman of the club, and L. Sapp, Jr. Reports heard included Tallulah Falls school committee, Mrs. Fred Veazey; school buildings and grounds, Mrs. B. H. Chernoff; cemetery and highway memorial, Mrs. A. R. Lewis; fine arts, Mrs. Luther Roberts.

Memorial tribute was paid Mrs. R. A. G. Clegg, faithful member of the club, program featuring education was presented by Mrs. C. A. Tyler and opened with a recitation by Betty Chernoff. Miss Myrtle Johnson told the "Romance of Paper" and Mrs. Frank Veazey rendered a vocal solo. Mrs. Dickerson talked on "Value of the Club Institute," urging attendance in Athens in July.

Bowman Club.

The Bowman's Woman's Club was honored to have Miss Mary E. Creswell, professor of home economics, University of Georgia, with them at their April meeting. Mrs. Phil Lendum, home economics teacher, of Bowman Consolidated school, who had charge of program, introduced Miss Creswell, who addressed the club on "Relationship Between Home and School in Training Youth of Today in Home Making." Miss Mildred Bowen rendered a piano solo. Miss Thelma Fleming gave a reading from Edgar A. Guest, "Home."

Brannen-deJarnette Wedding Will Be Solemnized in June

The interest of a host of friends centers in the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Ewell Brannen of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Lenore Brannen, to Charles Nathan deJarnette, the marriage to be solemnized in June. On her maternal side the bride-elect is from the Westervelt and Voorhis families of New Jersey, who were of Dutch lineage and pioneer settlers of Bergen county, where they were prominent in social and civic affairs.

Miss Brannen's mother is the former Cecilia Marguerite Voorhis of Westville, N. J., daughter of the late Mrs. Voorhis, who was a Leavenworth Westervelt. Mrs. Voorhis' grandfather, John Casper Westervelt, was a captain of the 22nd regiment from New Jersey in the War Between the States.

On her paternal side, Miss Brannen is descended from the pioneer Brannens of Bullock, Georgia, and is of Scotch-Irish descent. Her grandfather, the late John Franklin Brannen, was judge of the city court of Statesboro for almost two decades and he also served as senator for his district for several terms. Her grandmother, Mrs. Lena Atossa Brannen, now resides in Statesboro, Georgia, with her son, William Alexander Brannen, who was captain of the Twelfth Georgia state guards in the War Between the States.

The bride-elect's brothers are Jesse Ewell Brannen Jr., John Roland Brannen and Donald Albert Brannen. Her only sister is William Franklin Sibley Jr., of Atlanta.

Miss Brannen was born in Westwood, N. J., and received her elementary education there. She graduated from Druid Hills High school, Atlanta, and attended Wesleyan College, Macon, where she was a member of the Alpha Delta Pi Drama Club. She completed her education at the University of Georgia, where she was a member of the Phi Mu sorority.

Mr. deJarnette is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. James Francis deJarnette, of Atlanta, and like his bride-elect, is a descendant of prominent families. On his paternal side he is descended from the Thomas and Little families of Tennessee and the deJarnette family, from whom the Huguenot family who came from France in 1690 and settled in Virginia.

Mr. deJarnette's mother is the former Miss Ruby Ashbury, of Atlanta, who is a descendant of the Logan, Talliferro and Lewis families, who played a prominent part in the making of America. Mr. deJarnette's father is president of the Kiwanis Club, of Atlanta, and vice-president and manager of the Henry Grady hotel.

Mr. deJarnette is connected with the National Life and Casualty Insurance Company. He attended Georgia Military Academy, College Park, and Emory University and is a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

The bride-elect's brothers are Jesse in amateur theatrical and musical circles of the city, possessing unusual dramatic ability and a beautiful lyric soprano voice. Miss Huddleston is well known in real estate circles, being executive secretary of the Atlanta Real Estate Board. She and Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Peacock, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Peacock, of this city. He attended Tech High school and is a graduate of the Atlanta Law school. He is a member of Sigma Delta Kappa, national legal fraternity. Plans for the wedding of this popular couple will be announced later.

Wild Flowers You Should Know

When the first wild flower peeps from out the mold and the brown thrasher in the limb above sings his thanksgiving song, the soul is dead that the flower fears itself. That is the time to go to the woods in the spring and drink in the odors of the sweet-smelling earth, go into raptures over the onemone, the spring beauty, the dog-tooth violet or jack-in-the-pulpit; it is just what others with the natural beauty of the flower done. Robert Burns voiced his opinion when he wrote:

"Arrowhead."

People who have made a close study of flowers, have found out that the blue is the bee's favorite color, so the iris dresses up in blue, since she depends upon the bee as her pollen carrier. The broad leaf arrowhead is another example of the way nature takes care of her wild flowers, for it can breathe under water like the fish, and out of water like a dry land creature.

Buttercup.

The buttercup is commonly found in this part of the country, grows in swamp places and develops a larger stem than its northern kindred. It secretes a juice so bitter that even a horse will not touch it. In olden times many superstitious people believed that it had the power of producing laughter, and that one who carried it in his pocket would be fit for mirth so uncontrollable that they would laugh themselves into the other world. Ancient warriors used its juice to poison their arrows and roadside beggars applied it to the skin to produce blisters and sores.

Bindweed.

The Bindweed is close kin to our morning glory, and is such a traveler that it has been called a hobo among flowers. It grows everywhere that a certain amount of food or without this moth it is unable to move its seeds. Very beautiful it is in the early morning, twined about the corn stocks which forms a blaze of golden glory.

Dear Secretary: I received my badge and membership card and I am very proud of them. I think the creed is wonderful. I am only going to memorize it but live up to it as I may. I am a member of the Atlanta club in my country very much. I am sure if I begin now I shall continue when I grow up.

I am a girl 11 years old and in the seventh grade. I go to school at Bethel. I will do my best to stay in the club.

JULIA JONES

Dear Secretary: I am sending my application for membership in the Young America Club. I have been reading the Young America page and I like it very much. I will be looking forward to your letter.

I am also planning on entering the contest, writing not over 500 words on the subject, "Why I Want and Need a Week at Camp."

CORINNE McELHANNON

Atlanta, Ga.

I want to thank you for the beautiful print of the angel heads which I won in a recent contest. I shall always treasure them.

My hobby is writing and I belong to four children's clubs to which I write.

ROBBY CRUSE

Woodstock, Ga.

Dear Secretary: I am applying for membership in the Young America Club. I read the page in The Constitution and enjoy it very much. I think that if every boy and girl would wake up to the ideals of the club we would have a better country in which to live.

I would like very much to become a member of your club. Although it will be impossible for me to attend all our meetings, I am sure we would enjoy the other features of this club.

I will be glad to communicate with anyone who is already a member.

Stamps Old and New

By W. R. THARP.

Occupation stamps are a grim reminder of that horror called war. As we see and read about this type of postal stamp, let us look behind the scenes and envision the suffering which preceded the use of these stamps. Let us think of the moment when whose country has been taken over by a hostile nation, trying to read them. For instance, you try and see how many of these stamps you would need to send a letter to Santa Claus. Did, or even to a house around the corner.

Probably the first stamp of this type ever to be used was issued in 1870 when Germany occupied French Alsace and Lorraine territory.

The following are from the World War period: The occupation by the allies of Azerbaijan and Thrace; Italian occupation of Austria and vice versa when Austria was in Italy. The Austrian occupation of the following countries: Montenegro, Rumania and Serbia. British occupation of Palestine, Iraq, Mesopotamia, Iran, Armenia, Persia. The French occupations are as follows: Camerons, Castellorizo, Cilicia and Togo. The German occupations of Bulgaria, Estonia, France, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland and Rumania. Greek occupation of the Aegean islands. And then there is the small island so great that it can be listed here.

The collection of these occupation issues would make a very fine specialty. Of course the used copies are the most desirable and yet there are so few of them that they are out of the average collector's reach as to pocket-book. Nevertheless the first two issues of the occupation of Lithuania and the last in Latvia.

The fifth stamp shown here was issued by Germany for use in Belgium when German forces occupied a part of that country.

The sixth stamp shown here was issued by Germany for use in Belgium when German forces occupied a part of that country.

Occupation Stamps.

The second stamp picture was issued by the German government for use by the people in that part of Rumania which was occupied by Germany in 1918.

The third in our series is a German stamp purchased for use in the Russian provinces of Suwalki, Vilna, Kovno and Courland between 1915 and 1918. The first two provinces are now in the Republic of Lithuania, and the last in Latvia.

The fourth stamp shown here was issued by Germany for use in Belgium when German forces occupied a part of that country.

Youth Week Activities Caught by the Camera

A Seaplane Adventure Into The Heart of New Guinea

Dear Boys and Girls of the Young America Club:

Suppose we take a trip to New Guinea, the second largest island in the world which lies to the north of Australia, sometimes called "The Mystery Land of the South Seas." Originally the whole island was called Papua.

For two centuries men have tried to penetrate into the interior of this vast island, but its great interior remains unknown, except for an echo, now and then, of some daring expedition to this uncharted junglegland, the only unmapped land outside the artics. Many a traveler from a foreign country has disappeared and never been heard of again as he endeavored to learn the secrets of New Guinea; for学习 from the horrible snakes and poisonous insects, the natives are cannibalistic in nature, and enjoy a royal feast when a white man falls into their coils.

In Eyes of World.

Although New Guinea is rather uninviting to the average person, she has her charm, and today this vast island in the dreamy Pacific is more in the limelight of the whole world than perhaps any other island of the universe.

The gold rush at Wau, New Guinea, is one of the most spectacular projects of our time.

It has only been in the last 15 years that pygmies have been discovered in Papua, New Guinea, though scientists have known for a long time about the pygmies in Dutch New Guinea.

We are told that this interesting tribe of New Guinea pygmies lives in the interior in the tree tops. Their dwellings are said to be veritable arsenals, stocked with rocks and spears, which they rain down upon their enemies when attacked. At these caution against surprise attacks, these little black people block the narrow jungle paths with thorn trees and twisted brambles, through which they are able to scramble while the larger and more agile raiders are brought to a halt. Usually they go without clothing, but during a period of warfare they wear a cuirass of woven rattan that will turn anything but a steel-tipped bullet. These pygmies are most friendly and truthful of white people that they occasionally come in contact with; in fact, they seem to yearn for companionship. They are of a happy disposition, especially kind and far more intelligent than any of the other tribes of Papua.

The fourth stamp shown here was issued by Germany for use in Belgium when German forces occupied a part of that country.

Now we are ready for the most

Do You Know

That an airplane's propeller makes more noise than its engine?

That Canada sends the largest number of immigrants to the United States?

That 16,000,000,000 postage stamps are printed in the United States every year?

That the British "Who?" Who for 1933? lists our own Will Rogers?

That the deepest oil well in the world is located in California and is 10,000 feet deep?

That Robert E. Lee was the first to institute a course in journalism in an American college?

That Alaska is an Indian word meaning Great Country?

The average boy today is constantly looking through the window into what he thinks is a magic world. Nearly all the adventure left for him lies in the field of business or the profession. He is too much of a dreamer, of himself, to achieve something and often he is not very clear in his mind just how he is to set about it. Those in their late teens, at least, have begun to see and feel the effect of the world-wide depression and its effect upon the family. Some have had a taste of disillusionment, are down in a sea of gloom, others have given up their future to find a pathway into industry. Many have had their hopes of higher education withered, have begun to feel them drifting. Forces beyond their control seem to be clouding the future.

Speakers at the recent convention of the National Education Association estimated that the boys and girls of high school who cannot find jobs and to whom there are no openings to go to college number several millions.

The deadening effect of sitting on the sidelines, unwanted in the game out on the field, is smothering youth's greatest asset—enthusiasm and ambition. Meanwhile this generation is piling up an ever-increasing debt, for these young people are dead set on getting into the business world.

And so the United States National Youth Week committee called upon every community to join in observance of "Youth Week," April 27-May 4, to focus public attention upon the boys and girls and have the nation think in terms of youth. Started in "Boys' Week" in 1920 by the Rotary Club of New York city, this splendid movement has spread all over the country. The young people of our communities now have a "Youth Recognition Day" and the other events of this period. No more profitable enterprise could be conceived. Those who share in this program are true servants of our community's best interests. To be indifferent to it is to fail to recognize where our own advantage lies.

From the purely sordid viewpoint of considering youth as the future statesmen, stateswomen, our selfish instinct would dictate the spending of a week of careful study of their situation and their future. But as trustees for the wealth, the machinery—both social and industrial—which we shall presently turn over to the boys and girls, it behoves us to give this careful consideration of their prospects. Some educators have said that all the justification which we have for the training of the youth can only turn them out in identical patterns, like so many biscuits. It is the social contacts, the influence of wise community leadership which will bring out their highest individual qualities. In this wise, much more profitable social machinery needs considerable attention. None of us can look back with much pride at the events of the past five years and when we begin to take care for the future, we would do well to consider its conditions by looking through the eyes of youth.

Camp Contest

Letters from Young Americans telling "Why I Want and Need a Week at Camp" have been coming in thick and fast—is your letter among those already at The Constitution?

One week at camp in the beautiful mountains of northeast Georgia to the boy and the girl who write the best letters is the handsome prize offered to the winners.

Camp Chooga for girls and the Athens Camp for boys will be the hosts to the two winners for seven days of happiness and health this summer. Both camps are under the general management of Walter T. Forbes, an outstanding leader in the development of summer camping. The two camps are in the Blue Ridge mountains a few miles from our lake at Gadsden.

The three simple rules of the contest are outlined below. Write your letter right away so that you will be sure to have a chance at the prize!

CAMP CONTEST RULES.

1. The contestant must be a member of the Young America Club, or must send in his membership application with his contest entry.

2. Write a letter of not over 500 words to the secretary, Young America Club, The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., on the subject, "Why I Want and Need a Week at Camp."

3. The letters must be at The Constitution before midnight, Saturday, May 25. The winners will be announced by the Young America Club page in The Constitution on Sunday, June 2.

Boys and girls both are eligible. A week at camp will be given to the winners.

The letters may contain suggestions as to summer vacation programs, hobbies, handwork, sports and any other type of constructive activity.

The letters will be judged on the basis of constructive suggestions on the subject indicated.

Art Gallery

Isn't it interesting that to become an artist one does not have to be born into a family where one sees beautiful things and is taught about painting or music or any of the other arts? Some of the most splendid artists and musicians started life in the poorest and ugliest of surroundings.

An artist sees the beauty of the world about him in his everyday work and the artist himself may happen to live in what we think of as delightful surroundings or he may just as likely grow up and live in what people think of as merely poor and unfortunate home conditions, but in the pictures of the two painters, if that is what they happen to be, no one could tell the difference.

Goya was one of those who started life at the bottom. As a little boy he was forced to work at hard labor in the fields near the tiny Spanish town of Fuendetodos, in which only 100 people lived. He was allowed to start his painting career at the age of 12.

He painted a picture of the Crucifixion, selected by the Bishop of Toledo, and was given a place in the cathedral of Toledo. He was given a room in the Bishop's Palace and was given a place in the cathedral of Toledo.

The Eskimos belong to the Mongol race and have the slant eyes and dark irises and the straight coal black hair peculiar to that great division of the human race. There are more than 33,000 Eskimos in the whole of Eskimo-land, which is, for the most part, north of the Arctic circle, extending from East Cape of Siberia to Greenland, and Smith Sound in northern Greenland at about latitude 80 degrees down to the lower Kuskoo-Kwia valley in Alaska, around latitude 60 degrees. There are the Alaskan Eskimos, the Greenland Eskimos, Canadian and Siberian Eskimos, each possessed of considerable cultural differences, and even speaking differently, but all with common heritage of customs, legends and language.

The Eskimos have received the white man into their land most graciously and one of the most remarkable characteristics is the ease with which they assimilated the white culture which has been offered them.

The Eskimo culture, as it exists untouched by modern civilization, belongs in all respects to the Stone Age, yet where the white man has been capable of spanning that great jump of 10,000 years in a single generation.

Numerous entrancing romances have been woven about the life of those interesting people. Even the story of their very existence is fascinating. "Arctic Village," by Robert Marshall, selected by the Literary Guild, is an interesting contribution to a better understanding of the Eskimo. "Luck of the Trail," by Esther Birdsell, Darling, is a novel based on life in Alaska, the plot centering around the experiences of a mongrel dog named Luck. "Navarre of the North," by the same author is equally good.

This expedition was planned by Dr. Brandes, sugar cane specialist in the Department of Agriculture. He believed that an introduction of new blood would rejuvenate the sugar cane industry in America and benefit the entire crop.

Though it was hazardous and almost unbelievable to many scientists, Dr. Brandes believed that this feat could be accomplished by air.

Some of the old-time sugar cane men laughed at the idea of bringing the cane from this impenetrable junglegland. Others said it could not be done. But Mr. Dahlberg dreamed of a silver-winged plane, flying high over the clouds, carrying a load of sugar cane, and then returning with the precious cane.

Boisfeuillet Jones,
EditorGIRLS' HIGH AWARDS
HONORS TO STUDENTS

In reaching the highest point of interest in her courses yesterday April 31, Girls' High crowned Ruth Lockhart, senior, "Miss Courtesy of G. H. S." Ruth's beautiful floral reward was in tribute to her gracious, cheerful, helpful, sportsmanlike qualities, and all Girls' High congratulated her with pride. The courtesy campaign continues in spirit throughout the school to instill in every personality a respectful, considerate, courteous attitude toward associates.

Cum laude has been bestowed upon five more worthy seniors, the highest honor attainable at G. H. S., and the coveted yellow bow, Claire Christian, Elizabeth Furrow, Evelyn Hoffman, Shirley Martin, and Ruth Hodges, the newest scholars recognized. The 1935 group now includes 12 girls who, through scholastic endeavor, have been rewarded with honor of the greatest degree. Those named earlier this spring are: Jane Kelley, Sarah Thurman, Cora Kay Hutchins, Edith Heffner, Kathleen Elton, Annie Mary Chandler and Betty Aycock.

Named to honors at the assembly, April 18, were 17 girls whose journalistic achievements have made them particularly prominent in Girls' High. Red feather quills, signifying election to the International Honorary Society for High School Journalists, were presented to the girls' high yearbook staff: Betty Aycock, Marion Ehrhardt, Edith Heffner, Shirley Makover, Julia Webb. These members of High Times staff merited honor: Catherine Etheridge, Emelyn Guffin, Talitha Hambrick, Virginia Hill, Betty Holloway, Cora Kay Hutchins, Anna King, Caroline McNealy, Douglas Lytle, Prentiss McNealy, Anne Morris and Julia Sewell.

WEST SCHOOL PUPILS
MAKE OWN COSTUMES

Well, here we are with just five more weeks of school before us. Each class of West school has so much more to accomplish before this time is up that we would like to know some of the most interesting things they are doing.

The kindergarten children are making the costumes for the operetta which is to be May 7.

Mrs. Connally brought a beautiful Easter lily to school, which the children of Low 3 are enjoying.

High 3 are glad to be back to school after the spring holidays.

Low 4 are sorry that Asa Vernon, Madeline Bennett, Larry Sherrill and Winona Williams have had whooping cough.

The petunias planted by the girls of High 4 are growing fine and will soon be ready to transplant.

Low 5 are making a booklet on colonial furniture.

Raymond Arbot is welcomed into High 5. Rebecca Wells and Billy Brannon were presented with first bird nests. Ray Davis represented our school in the marble tournament.

Low and High 6 welcome Elizabeth Smith and Lillian Cofer in their RUTH BANKS.

KEY CLASS DECORATES ROOM WITH ART WORK

The annual contest between the purple and gold teams, was held April 17. All of the event and games of the upper grades were demonstrated. Muscles were strained and urged to do their best. The purple team defeated the gold team with a margin of 49 points, this being the third consecutive win for the purple team.

High 6 were glad to have Miss Graves check them for buttons. They will receive their buttons at promotion exercises.

High 5 welcome Frances Harris and Mary Jane Rogers to their class. Low 5 have made some pretty postcards in which to keep satisfaction written work. These will be presented to their parents at the semester.

High 3 are glad. Mrs. Ginsberg, their teacher, is better. They won the Sunday school banner last week.

High 2 have decorated their room with their drawings, bowls, rugs and canes.

After a visit to the state capital, the children of Low 2 built a capitol and wrote stories about it.

High 1 visited Grant park. They have written a story about their trip and made a zoo.

SIDNEY PERRY MENDEL.

STUDENTS AT O'KEEFE
WINS ESSAY CONTEST

One of the newest organizations at O'Keeffe is the Hi-Y Club, which held its first meeting last Tuesday afternoon. The purpose of the organization is "To create, maintain, and extend throughout school and community life standards of Christian character." This is the second Hi-Y Club at O'Keeffe. Mr. Rogers is the first president, and the present adviser is Mr. Folsom, former secretary of the Y. M. C. A. when the Hi-Y clubs were first established in the schools, and now a member of the O'Keeffe faculty. At the meeting, Tuesday, the first six charter members were present and elected as follows: President, Vernon Hoffman; Vice-president, James Stiles; sergeant-at-arms, Joseph Richardson; chaplain, James Stiles, and corresponding secretary, Dick Rowe.

Friday, May 3, Miss Bringhurst held her annual cake race with 87 girls entering this activity. The girls ran around the perimeter of the Rose Bowl, the Georgia Tech field directly back of the school. Twenty-nine well deserved cakes were awarded and all contestants as well as observers received a great deal of enjoyment from the event.

The Tech High band presented a delightful musical program for O'Keeffe in assembly last Thursday, April 25.

A great deal of pride is shown in Jack Baldwin, a student here who has won a scholarship to Middlesex school, Concord, Mass., over 75 other competitors from the seven southern states.

GARDEN MAY FESTIVAL

Friday we had a beautiful impromptu May festival. A queen was chosen Friday morning according to the old English custom and was crowned with flowers from the school garden amidst the host of lovely flowers. After the crowning of the queen we had dances by all the grades honoring the court and masts in attendance. The different classes played games together.

Sixth grade has a very splendid sponsor, Julian Boehm, who is also chairman of the Red Cross drive. He invited us this week and we enjoyed his visit very much and hope he will come back again soon.

ISABELLE WHITAKER.

PUPILS AT WILLIAMS PLAY LUCKIE SCHOOL

The fifth grade had a good time playing dodge ball with the fifth grade of Luckie last Wednesday afternoon. It was splendid practice and helped both teams to find their weak spots.

Fourth grade are looking forward to going to Luckie Street school for a game of shinty relay football.

All the grades, especially the third, are glad to be back at school after the nice holidays. They are going to be busy from now on getting ready for promotion.

In the fourth place, we should see that each receives the proper amount of sleep. Sleep is nature's great restorer. Be sure that you get plenty of sleep.

In the fifth place, we should have the proper attitude toward health. We should talk health, believe in health and not talk sickness nor believe in sickness.

These five simple rules will help you to be healthy boys and girls.

Always your friend,
WILLIS A. SUTTON, Superintendent of Schools.

Albert Spalding Will Play
In WGST Program Tonight

Albert Spalding will be guest artist in the "Ford Sunday Evening Hour" over WGST tonight at 8 o'clock.

Albert Spalding, acknowledged by Europe and America as one of the greatest violinists in the world today, will be guest soloist with the Ford Sunday Evening Hour broadcast tonight. The program is heard over WGST from 8 to 9 o'clock.

A new Sunday evening radio show, featuring Ethel Merman, sensational soprano of the stage, screen and radio, will be presented over WGST from 7 to 7:30 o'clock.

The regular appearance of Will Rogers, a new session of "National Amateur Night," and the Salt Lake City choir and organ are other highlights of the program schedule.

Details follow:

ALBERT SPALDING.

Albert Spalding, probably the greatest American violinist of mature standing, will be guest artist with the Atlanta Symphony orchestra and choir, under Victor Kali's direction. The final broadcast will bring the King's voice to the American audience again on May 9, from 5:30 to 6:15 p.m., when he delivers his customary address to parliament in historic Westminster Hall.

NEWS AND NOTES.

There is no stopping of Gertrude Niesen, the girl who stepped suddenly from drawing room entertainment to microphone fame. She now wins laurels as star selected by Lawrence Schwab, Broadway producer, to appear in leading roles in the summer musical productions at the Municipal theater of St. Louis—a celebrated enterprise of the Missouri metropolis.

Miss Niesen's role will range from "Agnes of Bohemia" class, to "Agnes of Bohemia" class, to "Agnes of Commercial High P.T. A. meets at school on Thursday afternoon, May 9, at 2:45 o'clock.

Owing to the attendance at the National P.T. A. in Miami of several of the O'Keefe P.T. A. officers, namely, Mrs. M. E. Boutilier, president; Mrs. E. R. Hillard, president-elect; Mrs. D. L. MacIntyre, treasurer; the executive board of O'Keefe P.T. A. did not convene last week. Instead the meeting will take the form of a luncheon, and be held Wednesday, May 8, at 12 o'clock in the model apartment of Mrs. E. R. Foster.

Attendance prizes were won by the second and seventh grades.

S. M. Inman P.T. A. Mrs. J. C. Douglas, humane education chairman, presented Mrs. Katherine Weatherbee, who gave an interesting talk on "Humane Education." The meeting was opened with a "Family Relations" at the preschool.

Readings were given by Mrs. Dorothy Jones Solomon, pupils of Dorothy Jones Solomon.

Mrs. M. C. Paget gave a report on the state convention held recently in Atlanta. The president, Mrs. McLaughlin, announced that a benefit bridge will be given at the home of Mrs. E. R. Foster Tuesday afternoon, May 14.

Attendance prizes were won by the second and seventh grades.

W. H. Smith P.T. A. Mrs. K. Walker, president, presided at the annual meeting of S. M. Inman school on Tuesday. The program was in charge of pupils and teachers and its purpose was to exhibit the recreational activities of the different grades. The school orchestra rendered several selections, including individual solos by members; there were also the kindergarten pupils and the lower grades; a demonstration of rhythmic exercises, exhibits of handicrafts and woodwork by upper grades and an explanation of the different hobbies and activities encouraged in the upper grades, such as paper cutting, stamp collecting, gardening, etc.

A report was given of the state P.T. A. convention held in Rome by the three delegates. The program of the highlights of the convention was emphasized by Mrs. B. L. Blodsoe, fifth grade teacher, who attended the meeting. She said that the radio was becoming one of the vital factors in the newer trends of education; that educational programs were being presented in a more interesting and forceful manner than could be done from dry facts contained in textbooks, and that the time was coming when each classroom would be equipped with radio.

Mrs. Weakley told of work being done in the field of recreation as presented at the convention and Mrs. Jones, secretary, gave several quotations pertaining to the talks made.

The school will sponsor an old clothes drive on Tuesday, May 7, and a stamp drive will be held from May 21-24, inclusive.

Smith Pre-School. Preschool and parent education classes of the Smillie school met in the school library last Thursday. Mrs. B. C. Cracker, teacher, took up the subject of "Fear." An informal discussion was held after the lesson, bringing out practical points included in the lesson.

Dru Hills P.T. A. Druid Hills Elementary P.T. A. met Wednesday with Mrs. Williford R. Leach presiding. Mrs. Lillian Green presented Mrs. Paul Bryan, pianist, and "American Country Gardens," by Percy Granger. Mrs. B. C. Cracker, violinist, who played "On the Wings of Song" by Mendelssohn.

GEORGIA WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION

W. C. T. U. Concentrates Efforts On Georgia's Prohibition Law

By FRANCES BURGHARD, Of Macon, State W. C. T. U. Editor.

The one thing to which the W.C.T.U. is giving thought, efforts and prayers is to hold Georgia's prohibition law against repeal, against beer, against gin, and to roll up such a vast majority vote that the law will be enforced. All laws have to be enforced to a certain extent, but since the liquor traffic is inherently lawless, obeying the law is God's will.

Young people, who are the backbone of the W.C.T.U., are making more vigorous and greater effort upon the part of those charged with seeing that prohibition is obeyed. Encouraging reports and news of activities continue to pour in, and a dry victory is assured.

Young people will sponsor an old clothes drive on Tuesday, May 7, and a stamp drive will be held from May 21-24, inclusive.

Individual Pieces of Sterling Silver

If May 12 kindles within us the true significance of its sponsor, we who are blessed with mother's presence will not let the occasion pass without bestowing upon her a tribute worthy of this cherished event.

Which is to say, give mother something she will enjoy—and keep. For example, such individual pieces of Sterling Silver needed to complete a service:

- Lemon Fork
- Olive Spoon
- Gravy Ladle
- Cream Ladle
- Cake Server
- Cold Meat Fork
- Steak Set

Also, there are many other useful pieces.

Holzman's is headquarters for Sterling Silver Flatware. We have 25 open stock patterns, the most popular design obtainable, from which we can furnish individual pieces that are not generally included in original sets. Put up in attractive gift packages. One letter engraved free.

Miss Burnham Weds Inman Chafin.

ATHENS, Ga., May 4.—The marriage of Miss Jeanette Burnham to Inman Chafin was solemnized Easter morning at the home of the bride's parents on Milledge avenue. Rev. H. M. Jones, pastor of St. Paul Methodist church, performed the ceremony.

Mina Mildred Rayburn rendered a program of nuptial music, including

"At Dawning," "I Love You Truly" and "Let Me Call Your Sweetheart."

Mrs. Porter McCullers Jr. was matron of honor and the bride's only attendant. Mrs. McCullers was gowned in pink point d'esprit over pink satin and carried a bouquet of Easter lilies. Little Herman Chafin Jr., nephew of the groom, was ring bearer. The flower girl, little Miss Betty Green, was gowned in blue point d'esprit over blue satin and carried a basket of sweet peas. Little Barbara Sue Harper acted as maid of honor; she wore yellow point d'esprit.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal Conrad gave a tea on Sunday afternoon, May 13, at their home on Habersham road, for the young couple and on Monday, May 13, Mrs. Lon Grove will be hostess at luncheon for the lovely bride.

Following the rehearsal of the wedding Tuesday evening, May 14, Mr. and Mrs. Fonda McWayne will be hosts at a buffet supper at their home on Habersham road. On Wednesday, May 15, Miss Scott, Mr. Healey and members of their wedding party will be central figures at the breakfast at which Mesdames A. M. Rogers and Walter Harlan, of Mexia, Texas, will entertain at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel. Other parties will be given at the apartment of the young couple. The definite dates and detailed plans to be announced later.

The groom entered with his younger brother, Arden Chafin, who acted as best man.

The bride, the only daughter of Mr.

and Mrs. Arthur N. Burnham, entered with her father, who gave her

attached at the back with a wreath

Mr. Chafin and his bride left by

Come Into the Kitchen With the Brides

Brides Furnish Kitchens In Favorite Color Scheme

By Sally Forth.

ARTISTIC talent and careful consideration of line and color which Atlanta brides bestow upon the furnishings of their new homes have extended beyond the pantry door. Modern kitchens are gay with color. Attractive furniture vies for interest with crisp housekeepers, bright-hued floor coverings and walls. Each charming housekeeper displays her favorite color scheme. The entire furnishings, even to the smallest pie-tin and paring knife, are in shining order.

Betty Cole Ashcraft's kitchen in her West Peachtree apartment features daffodil yellow in its furnishings. Yellow walls are offset by the dark polished floor and sheer yellow curtains hang at the windows. A small alabaster urn holding a sprawling foliage plant centers the window-sill. The stove is yellow and white enamel, and the white mixing table is placed in the center of the kitchen. Yellow-bordered cup towels adorn the rack above the spotless sink and the cabinet shelves are filled with a scheme for her kitchen. Green walls boast cream-colored wood-work and black and white enameled furnishings lend interest. Red-checked curtains grace the windows, and Charlotte's amusing small apron, which she dons when concocting some favorite dish, is gaily bordered in red.

In furnishing her gay little kitchen, Frances Weinman Latimer forsook her preferred shade of orchid in favor of brilliant red. White walls and cupboards

COME into the kitchen with the charming brides. They are pictured in attractive poses which show that these youthful housekeepers are engaged in domestic occupations that go with the responsibility of running their own establishments. Mrs. Ashcraft, the former Miss Betty Cole, is rolling pie crust; Mrs. Lewis, the former Miss Constance Adams, is frying eggs for breakfast; Mrs. Hay, the former Miss Charlotte King, is putting the last touches on a chocolate cake; Mrs. Latimer, the former Miss Frances Weinman, is removing the milk from the refrigerator to mix with flour for biscuits; Mrs. Lippitt, the former Miss Betty Gate, is drying the breakfast dishes; Mrs. Kalkhurst, the former Miss Betty Schroder, is mixing salad ingredients. are offset by crimson touches introduced in cupboard doors and red polka-dotted curtains. The floor boasts green and white linoleum and the white furniture depends upon the red enamel kitchen utensils for color. A red geranium blossoms contentedly on the window-sill to give its crimson effect to the color scheme.

Betty Gage Lippitt used bright red in her kitchen at her Peachtree circle apartment. Against cream-colored walls she placed black and white enameled furniture. The floor is covered with black and white linoleum in a tile pattern. Muslim curtains, bordered in nodding red roses, drape the windows, and the shining aluminum utensils hang in orderly array.

Cool green walls combined with white woodwork form the background for Betty Schrader Kalkhurst's pale green furnishings in the kitchen of her Peachtree circle apartment. Green and white linoleum, featuring huge blocks, covers the floor and green is repeated in the kitchen vessels. For curtains, Betty chose sheer white organdy checked in green to reflect her spring-like color note.

SALLY is delighted to welcome Mr. and Mrs. William T. Campbell to Atlanta today as permanent residents of the city. They have been living in Rome and always spent their summers at mountain resorts near Rome, or at The Manor at Asheville, North Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell have lots of friends here, and will be charming acquisitions to the younger married set of society. Mrs. Campbell is the former Lila Bowie Cothran and a niece of Miss Isabel Gammon, of Rome. Mr. Campbell is a son of George W. Campbell and brother of Mrs. Albert Irving, of Atlanta.

For several years after their marriage they resided in Tulsa,

Lovely June Bride-Elect

Oklahoma. As a member of the Junior League Mrs. Campbell wrote a column in the Tulsa daily newspaper featuring interesting phases of the Tulsa work. She has enjoyed the cultural advantage of traveling in Europe, South America and all over the United States.

When Mr. Campbell flew in an autogyro all over New England in 1932 on an aviation lecture tour, Mrs. Campbell accompanied him, and when they lived on the Pacific coast they went on a hunting trip with Ty Cobb in the autogyro.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will occupy the Eleventh street apartment of Mrs. Ross P. Cox, the former Mrs. Frank Holland. Mrs. Cox and her husband, Dr. Cox, will live in the Rome apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell. They will take over the cooks, their uniforms and the sleeping porch furniture belonging to their respective new homes.

SHE is a sick-a-bed lady, the little silver-haired person who is the subject of Sally's appeal this morning. For 12 long years she has been unable to walk and must spend all her time in bed. She is a cheerful soul in spite of her affliction and busies herself with her needlework and with reading books borrowed from the library or friends.

She finds reading magazines bright spots in her long days. But her limited income prevents the invalid from securing them. Sally, learning of her plight, is appealing to generous-hearted Atlantans to contribute their publications to brighten the long invalid hours. She enjoys the Readers' Digest, Review of Reviews, Outlook, Catholic Extension and The American. However, she will be most grateful to have any books kind people care to contribute.

If you are a kind-hearted person and interested in the little sick-a-bed lady, won't you phone Sally for additional information?

HERE'S a romantic background any Hollywood movie director would grasp. And what could be more timely at this season of the year than graduations and weddings? Bessie Baxter leaves this month for Washington, D. C., to spend several days with Elizabeth Roundtree, who will act as her maid of honor when she becomes the bride of Edward Bare Jr. at a June ceremony.

After her visit to the national capital, Bessie goes to West Point for the most famous of all famous proms, "June Week." You will recall that Edward Bare is a member of the graduating class and will receive his lieutenant's commission next month. What could be more thrilling than dancing in Cullum Hall with the cadets in full dress, or walking down famous flirtation walk to "Kissing Rock?" And how much more thrilling and romantic when your partner is your fiance!

Bessie and Edward will be in the latter category, we know, but think how many other belles will say "yes" at the end of the walk!

Miss Hill To Wed Friar Thompson
At Athens Ceremony

ATHENS, Ga., May 4.—Dr. and Mrs. E. Hill of Athens, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Annie Thompson Jr., to Friar Matthews Thompson Jr., of Griffin, Ga., and Wilmington, Del., the date of the marriage to be announced later.

Miss Hill is the elder of the two daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Hill. With her younger sister, Miss Sarah Hill, she has been extremely popular in the city of her birth, where her father has been the beloved pastor of the First Presbyterian church for nearly 30 years. She graduated from Lucy Cobb Institute and the University of Georgia and is a member of the Phi Mu sorority.

She is a descendant of families socially prominent in Alabama. Mrs. Hill was Miss Annie Graham of Montgomery, Ala., the daughter of the late Captain and Mrs. E. A. Graham. Dr. Hill's five brothers are doctors and lawyers in Montgomery and his sisters, Mrs. E. V. Robison and Mrs. B. H. Bartlett, also live in Montgomery.

Friar Thompson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Thompson Sr., of Griffin, Ga. He graduated from the University of Georgia in 1928 with a B.S. in chemistry and later pursued his scientific studies at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J., where he took a master's degree and was made a member of Sigma Xi, honorary scientific fraternity. His social fraternity is Lambda Chi Alpha. He is entomologist for the Hercules Powder Company at Wilmington, Del.

Girl Scouts Honor
Mrs. Ross Cox

Mrs. Ross Cox, of Rome, formerly Mrs. Frank D. Holland, of Atlanta, will be presented a thanks badge by the Girl Scouts on Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock at Camp Civitanis in Atlanta. Mrs. Cox's name will be on every page so proudly did she give her time to the upbuilding of this organization. Mrs. Cox was the first commissioner and served on the board 14 years, from its founding until she moved to Rome. The success of Civitanis, the summer camp for Scouts, may be credited in large measure to the efforts of Mrs. Cox. With her mother, the late Mrs. Grace Baxard, affectionately known as "Mother B." she spent 10 seasons at the camp and many a Scout will be a finer woman for this contact. The love of Mother B. has expressed itself in the upbuilding ofables several girls to go to camp who otherwise would be unable to attend.

This thanks badge is a symbol for Mrs. Cox to keep as a reminder that Atlanta Girl Scouts will always treasure her close connection with this association, and is the highest award of appreciation that can be given. It will be presented at a solar ceremony by Miss Adele Nelson, who will be introduced by Mrs. Arthur L. Harris. This Sunday has been set aside as open house for the camp and any one interested is invited. Civitanis is located 11 miles from Five Points on the Bankhead highway and six miles from the city. Members of the local council will act as hostesses and will answer any questions concerning camp. Former campers will be present in their Civitanis uniforms and will give details of camp life. Friends of Mrs. Cox are especially urged to be present on this occasion.

College Park Club Demonstrates Work

The excellent work achieved by the literature committee of the College Park Woman's Club, Mrs. W. D. Couch, chairman, was demonstrated at the meeting of the club on Wednesday, when original work of this committee formed the main feature of the program. A study of literature of the Orient, composed of condensed papers written by Madames A. T. Akers, E. S. Kinney, Henry Stakeley, Hugh C. Couch and Miss Maude Colquitt, was read by another member, Mrs. R. T. Aderhold. A special reading of the poem, "The Silent Hour," written by Mrs. W. D. Couch, and given in place of the stated garden poem, recently, was a feature of the meeting. Mrs. W. E. Lotspeich read an original "Chinese Study." Mrs. D. R. Nesbit read her own story of "The Chrysanthemum" and Mrs. Henry Stakeley read an original Chinese poem. Mrs. R. T. Aderhold presented a display of scrapbooks made by children in the first and second grades of Kobe, Japan, schools.

Mrs. Raymond Williams, music chairman, presented Miss Elsie Ollis, pianist, in a duo of selections. The program was preceded by a short business session. Mrs. J. H. Archer, first vice president, presiding in the absence of the president, at which time Mrs. Hubert Hunt was unanimously elected to the presidency of the club.

Mrs. E. D. Rector, chairman of the garden division, presented the silver vase given this year for the best iris collection to Miss Annie Thornton, who won first place in the recent iris display. After the program, Mrs. Albert T. Akers and her committee served punch.

OH, FOR AN ENGLISH COMPLEXION

Now that Spring is here!

Now comes the time of the year when poets sigh for an English spring . . . and women of fashion long for an English skin! For the one, we admit, you must visit England itself in Maytime. But the other—that delicately blooming complexion you noticed on beautiful women from John O'Groats to Land's End when you last toured England—you can obtain for yourself, practically here and now, if you've an urge for beauty!

You will find on this very page facsimiles of the preparations the fair-skinned Englishwoman uses to create, protect and enhance her prized complexion. To them she attributes much of her skin's lasting freshness and lovely texture. Yardley has been supplying them to her, meeting the changing demands of her life and fashion, for over a century. They are, perhaps, the most famous beauty products in the world.

Naturally, we can name but a few of the articles the English sophisticate considers essential—to make her skin as fresh and attractive in full spring sunlight as it appears under shaded lights at the Embassy. Yardley has many more, equally intriguing, right here in America! Why not let revealing little sunbeams persuade you to try them? In your nearest fine store—today! Yardley & Co., Ltd., 620 Fifth Avenue (Rockefeller Center), New York City; 33, Old Bond Street, London; and Paris, Toronto, Sydney, Australia.

DO THE CITIZENS OF GEORGIA WANT THIS TO CONTINUE?

THE ANSWER, AND THE ONE CERTAIN ANSWER, TO THE ABOVE PICTURE IS YOUR VOTE TO PERMIT THE SALE OF BEER IN GEORGIA

HERE is nothing exaggerated about the picture above. Contrast this condition which exists in Georgia today with a picture of mild, palatable, healthful Malt Beverage sold openly by reputable places of business under the supervision and control of the State, the Cities and the Counties.

The picture above conveys a lesson to every intelligent mind. When Beer is available to the people of Georgia, it will decrease, by thousands of gallons, the sale of illicit liquor and materially help to drive the bootlegger from our State.

The history of every nation shows that the most temperate countries in the world are the ones whose people use mild beverages—such as Beer. The records prove where beer is a "national" beverage that the consumption of whisky is very moderate. Beer is not only a mild, perfect, non-intoxicating beverage but is prescribed by many medical authorities as a true tonic for invalids, convalescents and as an aid to body building.

It is reliably estimated that 4,200,000 gallons of "corn" is consumed in Georgia annually. No tax is paid on this. The honest citizen pays his income and other taxes. The criminal, the bootlegger, is allowed to go free of taxes and pile up wealth while the decent citizen of the State pays the bills.

The sale of beer in Georgia will not only aid and help to create true moderation and temperance, but will also decrease our present tax burden. The State, every City and County will receive taxes and license fees. All license fees and excise taxes received by the State are to be used exclusively in supplying free Textbooks to the children attending common schools, with only three per cent of the total revenue allowed for administrative expenses.

The records show that from the legalization of Beer by the United States Government on April 7th, 1933, to April 1st, 1935, there has been directly created Two Billions of Dollars in new business. In this period of 23 months there has been paid to the Federal Government on Beer withdrawn and license fees the sum of $341,780,420. During the same time there has been paid into State treasuries for sales tax and licenses the sum of $75,000,000, making a total of $416,780,420 paid to the Government and State treasuries. This amount does not include hundreds of thousands of dollars paid in taxes and license fees to Cities and Counties.

Contrast the condition which now exists in Georgia with the rigid, legalized control plans proposed by the State to permit the sale of Beer—plans which the Legislature gave the people of Georgia the privilege of accepting or rejecting.

Every citizen of Georgia wants his children protected—the best protection from the illicit liquor traffic now existing in Georgia, is your vote to permit the sale of Beer.

Forty-six States of the Union have voted to permit the sale of Beer—these States have found when their citizens were permitted to enjoy the benefits of Beer, that the illegal liquor traffic was materially decreased. Shall Georgia fail to take advantage of the opportunity that forty-six States have found to be good?

The enactment of the proposed law permitting the sale of Beer—means prohibition—the prohibition of license and excess, prohibition of vicious and poisonous brews, the prohibition of crime and gangs which the illicit liquor traffic invited, the prohibition of the psychology of resentment and disrespect for the law which the present law forbidding the sale of mild malt beverages encourages.

Georgia faces the choice. The issue is clear. It should not be confused by any other issue or laws to be voted on May 15th, other than the important one to permit the sale of Beer.

The people of Georgia must decide whether they shall permit the sale of beer, whether it shall be done legally under rigid supervision of legally-constituted authorities or whether they shall permit existing conditions to continue. There is no other issue in your vote to permit the sale of mild non-intoxicating malt beverages—the citizens of Georgia have the opportunity to vote on this bill, which is entirely separate from any other proposed laws to be voted on.

Vote on May 15th

Your vote to permit the sale of Beer is a vote to insure true temperance and the moral and physical welfare of the youth of Georgia

A $7,500 Forfeit in This "Peek-a-boo" Love Game

"CONTINUAL QUARRELS"

A MATTER FOR CONCERN
Drawing Illustrates How Dr. Julius Gross Sized Up the Tonsils of Mrs. Sachs Before He Took Them Out. Later, Witnesses Declared, He Played Non-Professional "Peekaboo" With His Pretty Patient in Her Boudoir.

THE eminent Pittsburgh throat specialist, Dr. Julius E. Gross, strapped his reflector to his head with dignified care. With the utmost gentleness he prepared to play professional "peekaboo" with the tonsils of his quiteitable patient, blonde, blue-eyed goddess whose pearly teeth gleamed enticingly from behind cupid bow lips.

"I am Mrs. Josephine C. Sachs," this vision of loveliness had identified herself huskily. "I would like you to look at my throat."

Pity that a throat so beautiful, externally concealed lurking dangers within! The physician's peering eye detected signs of infection. He pronounced his dictum with grave concern.

"Your tonsils," he said. "They must come out."

And out they came!

But, oddly enough, Mrs. Sachs continued to have trouble with her throat. In fact, for months following her operation, witnesses later told a Pittsburgh jury, the throat specialist often visited the shapely, young matron, punctually at 9 A. M., to peer into her throat.

Finally Pittsburgh, too, was open-mouthed—for it was charged that Dr. Gross had been observed playing a quite informal game of "peekaboo" in his beautiful blonde patient's boudoir. And the charge was aired in court by Benjamin D. Sachs, clothing merchant husband of the throat-ailing blonde.

Sachs, greatly aggrieved, sued the doctor for $50,000. The throat expert, he claimed, had cut him out of Mrs. Sachs's heart and affections with an adeptness equalled only by his skillful tonsilectomy. A graphic and glowing account of at least one boudoir "peekaboo party" was given by a maid who had been employed in the Sachs' home. The picture she gave portrayed the blonde beauty reclining languidly abed attired in a lacy, fetching negligee, awaiting the doctor's arrival. Her throat again!

But at the sound of his footsteps on the stairs, according to the witness, Mrs. Sachs at once felt so well that she bounded out of bed, hid behind the bedroom door and when Dr. Gross entered, playfully piped:

Before long, it developed, Sachs suspected something was amiss. So he engaged a staff of sleuths, both professional and amateur, and instructed them to play another kind of "peekaboo" game. Dr. Gross and Mrs. Sachs were "it," but they didn't know it for some time. Some nights as many as a half a dozen of these detectives "peekabooed" through the windows of the physician's ritzy apartment in the exclusive Mt. Lebanon suburban district.

The detectives were reinforced by volunteer witnesses who said they had observed various things. Dr. Gross made a practice of kissing Mrs. Sachs while they biled and coed on the Sachs back steps, they said. He had uttered endearing expressions—such as "darling" it was claimed. Still others came to tell of the healthful hikes on which the doctor had taken his pretty patient through the countryside.

Sachs explained that he had merely been chatting with the young woman—that she was a friend of a friend of his and he was just being polite to her. This peeking, he seemed to feel, was a very piquing act. At any rate, only a short time after that he instituted his suit against the throat specialist for alienation of the affections of Mrs. Sachs.

Dr. Gross, almost apologetic with righteous wrath, climbed to the witness stand and shouted, "It's a lie!" many

"TM HAPPY WITH MOTHER"
Florence Sachs (at right), 15-Year-Old Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sachs, Gave Her Mother the Benefit of the Doubt at the Pittsburgh "Heart Balm" Trial.

In due time Mrs. Sachs became aware of the presence of so many detectives. So she organized a band of her own to do some counter "peekabooing" at her spouse. Accompanying her sleuths one night, she testified, she came upon Sachs parked in an automobile with a young woman.

Sachs explained that he had merely been chatting with the young woman—that she was a friend of a friend of his and he was just being polite to her. This peeking, he seemed to feel, was a very piquing act. At any rate, only a short time after that he instituted his suit against the throat specialist for alienation of the affections of Mrs. Sachs.

Dr. Gross, almost apologetic with righteous wrath, climbed to the witness stand and shouted, "It's a lie!" many times. Even his estranged wife put in a good word for him. Although she explained she was too ill to testify in court in his behalf, she gave a statement to newspaper reporters.

"Dr. Gross," she stated, "is better than a fine character. He is an excellent surgeon of high repute in his profession. This woman is just another patient."

Mrs. Sachs, admitting a "platonic friendship," denied her love had been stolen, since "Dr. Gross never won it."

It came out, however, that Mrs. Sachs had had trouble with her husband. Her two young daughters, Bernice, 19, and Florence, 15, told how their father had abused their mother for years.

This was corroborated by a friend, Miss Eurania Appel, 16.

"Mr. and Mrs. Sachs quarreled continually," she asserted.

But Mrs. Sachs had unsuccessfully attempted to divorce her husband, it was revealed. It took a jury of five women and seven men only two hours to return a verdict. They decided that Dr. Gross must pay a $7,500 forfeit for the part he'd played in that "peekaboo" game.

And so it happened that the clothing merchant wound up by playing "peekaboo" with the physician's bankroll.

ONE who had quaffed deeply from the flowing cup of first love was Walter A. Norris, handsome, brilliant student, a senior at the San Jose (Cal.) Teachers' College. He was 24. His entire world revolved around a pretty slip of a 17-year-old Mills College freshman, Jean Marie Stahle, of Oakland.

Jean's shy smile, her starry, pensive, dark eyes, came to haunt Walter in his dreams. At first the dreams were happy ones. But at length they became tinged with sorrow and doubt. One night the ambitious student sank into a fitful, troubled slumber and found himself stumbling through a dense forest, frightened and almost hysterical. He could not find his Jean.

Again and again he called her name. There came no answer, and he wept bitterly. Jean was lost. And then, as if by magic, she emerged from behind a huge tree and walked to him, radiant and lovely. He took her in his arms and murmured words of endearment.

When he awoke these words were on his lips. And the tears he had shed in his dream were still wet and burning on his face. There was a letter in his room from Jean which later cast some light on the reason for the tragedy which was to befall these campus sweethearts. It read in part:

I wish I were dead, dead, dead. Your way will lead us to tragedy, Jean...They didn't understand and things sounded awful. I was wondering about the advisability of telling Dad.

"Dearest Walter: . . . Don't feel your Pine Crest pal is gone. She has been hidden for awhile... I've told you why my heart has turned on you. You can't blame them in a way, because they didn't understand."

Walter in turn wrote a glowing description of his dream, stating, "I wish I had never awakened." He went on to say: "Seriously, Jean, I'm broken-hearted. I wish I were dead, dead, dead. The suggestion yesterday might be a strong tie between us and help us when there are doubts of sincerity. If you really love me, Jean, you will promise to marry me this summer. I have tried it your way and you see what has resulted. . . . Your way will lead us into tragedy, Jean."

Later on Walter penned these words in anothermissive: "The last six months have been the cruellest part of my life. I'll have to get a better grip on myself, for I'm suffering too much. Monday night at ten o'clock the both say a little prayer together."

Monday night at nine o'clock, it was, when three shots echoed across the Mills College campus in Oakland. A policeman hurried to the scene. Crumpled on the ground lay the bodies of Walter and Jean. The medical examiner said Walter had shot his sweetheart twice through her heart and then sent a bullet crashing through his own brain. The smoking pistol was still clutched in his right hand when they found him. Jean, that night, had held her last tryst with her lover.

There was a final note police discovered Walter had written to his mother, just before he set out to meet death with the girl he loved. "Jean said once that she would always want her grave alongside mine."

Mrs. Marguerite Norris, the mother, had seen as much as mothers usually see of the blossoming of young romance. She was grief-stricken.

"Walter loved her so much," she sobbed. "How could he have done it?" Roland Stahle, father of Jean, told police he had feared Walter's attentions to his daughter.

"The boy was so jealous," he explained. "I was forced to put my foot down on the affair. He and Jean met at Pine Crest in Tuolumne County. He was so jealous he even objected to her kissing her own father."

Dr. J. M. Scanland, director of the Agnew State Hospital, it developed, had treated Walter some months before. He declared the youth was suffering from an odd form of psycho-neurosis.

"The boy," she said, "seemed normal except when he discussed scholastic attainments. He displayed a recognized form of megalomania. He was determined to be the greatest scholar in the world, talked in a grandiose manner, and was alternately depressed and elated."

REMODELING The FOREIGN STARS

By Dan Thomas

THE Hollywood bug bites them all, sooner or later. And once they get bitten it is a very rare thing indeed if they fail to undergo one of those deep-sea changes that the poet talked about.

From all corners of the earth, men and women come to Hollywood; from crossroads American towns and from European capitals, from the Orient and from Latin America, from New York and from the film capital's next-door metropolis, Los Angeles. Some of them come uninvited, and some of them come because somebody has invested a great deal of money in them. Some of them come to stay and some go back where they came from after a little while.

But Hollywood does something to nearly all of them. It changes them, makes them over—sometimes by design, and sometimes just by chance; and in the end nearly all of them emerge looking very different than they did when they arrived.

The film capital has a word for it. It calls this change "going Hollywood"; and it's movieland's unconscious testimonial to the fact that the capital of the land of make-believe goes to extraordinary lengths to evolve make-believe personalities for the people who inhabit it.

And it all leads to some rather odd developments.

Every year the movie executives spend thousands upon thousands of dollars to find and import new talent from far-off lands. They bring their "finds" to Hollywood—and discover, very soon, that their protégés have vanished, leaving in their places glittering Hollywood imitations of the persons they used to be.

PERHAPS that doesn't express it accurately. The change is often a matter of deep design on the part of the film magnates. But whether it is intentional or otherwise, it does happen—and just try to figure out the why of it!

Take, for instance, the case of the lengthy Swede, Greta Garbo.

She used to be a talkative, friendly and highly pleasing young woman with whom 'most anybody could pass the time of day. Now she makes the Sphinx look like a chatterbox. Hollywood has turned her into an aloof and silent person, wrapped in an air of mystery which may be phoney but which does seem to attract attention, just the same.

Or consider how the film capital transformed Marlene Dietrich.

This actress was a shy, somewhat plump German girl. In private life she was (and, for that matter, still is) Mrs. Rudolph Sieber. When she reached Hollywood she spoke only a few words of broken English and understood only a few more. She was retiring, and she was more than a little bewildered by all the fuss that was made about her.

She had left her four-year-old daughter, Maria, in Berlin with Herr Sieber, who was unable to accompany her because of business affairs. Her only friend in America was Josef von Sternberg, the director who had discovered and signed her. Being slow to form new friendships, she relied heavily on Von Sternberg for companionship and advice.

ACCOMPANYING her from Germany came stories about her shapely "million-dollar legs." That was duck soup for the photographers, who immediately began insisting on getting a generous display of her legs in every picture they took. Von Sternberg, consulted, approved of this type of exploitation. Her first picture, "Morocco," devoted a good deal of space to these legs.

So she was introduced to America from the ground up, as you might say. The public never saw the shy, modest girl she really was; it saw a dreamy face surmounting a pair of very elegant legs. Marlene became a glamour girl.

Then came those famous pants. One day she put on an old pair of slacks, in the studio, to go to lunch with Von Sternberg. Several writers happened to see her. Next day the Los Angeles papers carried long stories about Marlene's trousers.

Just about this time Greta Garbo was leaving for a year's vacation in Sweden. Here was Marlene's chance to steal the play away from her. So she went to a tailor and had a complete masculine wardrobe made—and captured the spotlight.

This carried still another consequence in its train. If she was to be publicized for her manish clothes, she had to be seen in public while wearing them. So she started going places with men—Maurice Chevalier, Rouben Mamoulian, Brian Aherne, Douglass Montgomery, and others.

Marlene Dietrich was a shy, somewhat plump German girl when she first reached Hollywood. Now she is a regal "glamour girl."

So she was publicized from one end of the country to another. She fitted an entirely new character now. She was the great gee whiz of applied press agency, and she was never allowed to forget it—nor was the public. She was in the headlines constantly.

One peculiar angle to this whole business is the fact that her advisers, while making her an oo-la front page personage, forgot to see to it that she was provided with good movies. She has had three poor pictures in a row now—"Song of Songs," "The Scarlet Empress," and "The Woman Is a Devil"—and if she doesn't get a good one pretty soon it won't make much difference to anybody whether she is the timid Marlene who reached Hollywood in 1930 or the hoity-toity Marlene of 1935.

So much for the change that came over her. Now let's get back to Greta Garbo, the unapproachable, once more. She has changed just as much as has Marlene.

An insidious thing about the movie capital is the way it makes you over to fit its mold. Film officials spend fortunes to import new talent from abroad, only to see it go Hollywood

IT may seem hard to believe, but when she was first climbing the ladder to cinema success she was one of the most willing and accommodating subjects any press agent ever had.

One press agent hit on the idea of having her pose with the University of Southern California track squad. Greta obligingly donned the customary skimpy track costume and spent half a day posing for numerous photographs. Another time the same fellow got her to get into a cage with a lion at Gay's Lion Farm and pose for some cameramen.

Then she began to grow famous. She appeared with John Gilbert, then the idol of moviedom, in the sensationally successful "Flesh and the Devil." Producers began to awaken to the fact that they had a tremendously valuable property in this Swedish actress.

Harry Edington, perhaps the smartest of all Hollywood agents, became her manager. His first act was to put an end to all of these circus publicity stunts. Then, after realizing that she frequently made unwise statements in interviews, he sealed her lips. After which he undertook the heroic effort of persuading the public to call her—not Greta Garbo, but just plain, unvarnished Garbo, as if she were Bernhardt or Duse or somebody.

All of this was more or less pleasing to the young lady. She had an inherent dislike of crowds anyway. So pretty soon she became so much of a recluse that hardly anyone ever saw her except at the studio. Incidentally, it was about that time that she discovered that by speaking one sentence—"I tank I go home"—she could set the entire studio running around in circles and have her slightest wish gratified.

SO now she has become an entirely different person than she was a half dozen or so years ago. The silence business, started to keep her from saying the wrong thing and to lend her an air of mystery, has become genuine. So, for that matter, has the mystery itself. She keeps her movements guarded with the utmost care. Hardly a dozen persons even know where she lives. Practically no one knows anything about her private life.

Then we come to Anna Sten, who practically reverses the procedure followed by Miss Garbo. She reached Hollywood three years ago and, with the aid of Samuel Goldwyn, to whom she was under contract, she immediately went into hiding.

With her husband, Dr. Eugen Frenke, she took a hillside home near the ocean and lived in such obscurity that Hollywood didn't even know that she had a husband until she and he had lived in Hollywood's midst for nearly a year. Goldwyn wouldn't let her go to parties, talk to reporters or appear in public in any manner.

Being kept so well hidden, she became more or less a myth in the film colony. All that was known about her was the ballyhoo Goldwyn gave out from time to time, in which he said that he was developing a sensational actress whom he expected to become another Vilma Banky.

When she finally stepped in front of the cameras and began to work, Miss Sten blossomed out. She granted interviews freely. The marks of her peasant background in Russia were erased, to be replaced by the stereotyped glitter of the movie star. And now—secluded and mysterious no longer—she is living the normal life of a Hollywood star, a leader in her own little social set and a prominent figure at parties and public gatherings.

NEARLY all foreign stars undergo some such change as these three have done. About the only one who didn't was George Arliss. He hasn't changed a bit.

Maurice Chevalier arrived in Hollywood a happy-go-lucky fellow who only wanted to entertain people and make them laugh. Now he takes his position seriously, is most particular about who plays in his pictures with him, and is altogether quite an important personage in his private life.

Dolores Del Rio arrived as a sheltered society girl who knew little of the ways of the world. Now she is a sophisticated woman of the world who knows how to demand—and get—just about anything she wants.

Maureen O'Sullivan was just a simple little Irish colleen when she reached Hollywood, and she looked at movieland through rose-colored glasses. Now she knows all the answers, and can hold her own in any situation. Hollywood no longer dazes her.

And so it goes. Hardly anyone comes to the movie capital without discovering that he or she must drop the old, familiar personality and become someone quite different. Sometimes the change is all for the best, and sometimes it isn't. But the rule is almost immutable.

Turned Sand into Gold—in His Prison Cell

They Jailed the Humble Little Inventor as an Impostor But His Accusers Were Astounded When His Come-Back Demonstration Raised the Scientific Nightmare of a World-Wide "Midas Curse"

Artist Jameson Visions the Climax of the Greatest—and Smallest—War Ever Waged by Science, in Which the Polish Inventor Dunikowski Claims a Victory.

TO students of mythology, in fact, as to almost everybody, the story of King Midas is a familiar one. If you recall, in recognition of a service he had performed for Bacchus, Midas was offered his choice of reward, whatever it might be. He asked that everything he touched should change to gold; Bacchus granted this wish.

Midas rushed out to test his newly-acquired power; touching trees, twigs, stones and the earth. They instantly turned to gold. His joy was unbounded and as soon as he arrived home he ordered the servants to set the table for a huge banquet in celebration of his good luck. Then, to his dismay and consternation, he found that whenever he touched bread, it hardened in his grasp; when he put the food to his lips, it defied his teeth and when he took a glass of wine it became solid.

Midas's joy of a short time before turned to hatred; starvation seemed to await him. Raising his arms in prayer to Bacchus, he begged to be delivered from this glittering destructive power. Bacchus, being a merciful god, heard his prayer and consented to rid him of this affliction.

He told Midas he would have to go to a certain stream and wash his body in one particular part of it. Midas did so; his gold-creating power passed into it and the river, the sands became changed to gold "and remain so to this day."

Now, in Paris, comes another "Midas," who not only proposes to change the sands back to actual gold, but has given an amazing exhibit of what seems his actual power to do so. Jan De Hubbard Dunikowski, humble inventor, while serving a thirty-month sentence for fraud, perfected a sci-

WHAT—BATH IN THAT THING?
Such Might Be the Haughty Lady's Reaction to Her Bathtub of Solid Gold, if Jan Dunikowski's Discovery Should Make the Now-Precious Metal as Common as Sand. If His Discovery Is Utilized on a Large Scale, This Situation May Become Commonplace.

ALL HE WANTED WAS VINDICATION

So Claimed Jan De Hubbard Dunikowski, Unpretentious Inventor of a Gold-Making Machine With Alleged World-Shaking Potentials—He's Shown Preparing for a Demonstration in Court.

"As everybody knows, it is possible to extract a small amount of gold from sand. However, when using the process devised by Dunikowski, the sand will yield much more. One thing more, fraud is out of the question, and finally, from the kind of sand from which he extracted gold, I, by using my own methods, was unable to do so."

The process used by Dunikowski is his own secret, but LeGrand told the assembled newspapermen a few of the details of how this remarkable feat is allegedly accomplished. "As every physicist knows by bonfire, atoms with positively loaded electrons, these atoms are split into their fundamentals, or negative electrons, the bricks of which our universe is built," he said.

"Now, Dunikowski used the reverse process; he treated certain other atoms with electrons and forced them to unite into gold atoms. The strength of the charge of those electrons, either splitting up or building up those atoms, naturally remains the secret of my client," smilingly concluded LeGrand.

The startling fact about Dunikowski's experiments is that he used sand of the common beach variety. In experiments by mining experts and metallurgists all over the world, they have usually used black or auriferous sand, which is known to contain gold in minute quantities.

In a bulletin issued by the U. S. Bureau of Mines, John A. Davis, mining engineer, and John Gross, metallurgist, report that in three tests made by the Alaska Station, using black sand from Fairbanks Creek, more than ninety per cent of the sand consisted of magnetite and garnet, which can be separated magnetically. Using a small electro-magnet in their first test $1.96 in gold was recovered from fourteen pounds of sand.

In the next two per ton of sand. The yield: $2.27 in gold. Again fourteen pounds of sand were amalgamated four hours in an Abbe pebble mill. Instead of caustic soda, the scientists this time used one part of cyanide to 800 parts of sand to brighten the gold and make it more amenable to amalgamation. $2,017 was obtained, the cyanide causing a loss of from 5 to 10 per cent less than test two.

From these tests they concluded that the use of caustic soda and amalgamation was the best method of obtaining the gold. But you can realize the time and expense that must be employed to utilize this method. You can only use black sand and if you wanted to really make this a paying proposition you would either have to ship expensive equipment to some out of the way place where this type of sand is easily obtained or you would have to transport tons and tons of this sand to wherever the machinery is located.

So Dunikowski's alleged discovery, should it prove as stated, conjures up fantastic visions of a world in which the dream of Midas—yes, and much of the penalty King Midas suffered—would come true.

Let us suppose that it were possible to build up a large producing plant in the middle of the Sahara Desert. In one month the output of the plant doubles the world's gold supply to $22,000,000,000; in ten months to $110,000,000,000. A little time goes by and the world has to give up gold as a money standard because of the over-production of the plant.

An executive quickly calls together his board of directors, frantically telling them what has happened, because they have forgotten the old economic law of supply and demand. One bright young member of the board suggests that they use their plant to manufacture gold bathroom fixtures. Absurd? Not at all, if you assume the ease with which such gold is made.

Five more years elapse and most of the homes of the rich contain gold fixtures. Any of their bathrooms that you enter glitters blindingly, but cleanly, and so attractively. The Sahara factory still continues to turn out Glow Tubs with the world-wide slogan engraved on the side, "Brighten as you bathe; sparkle as you splash." The wealthy get them first.

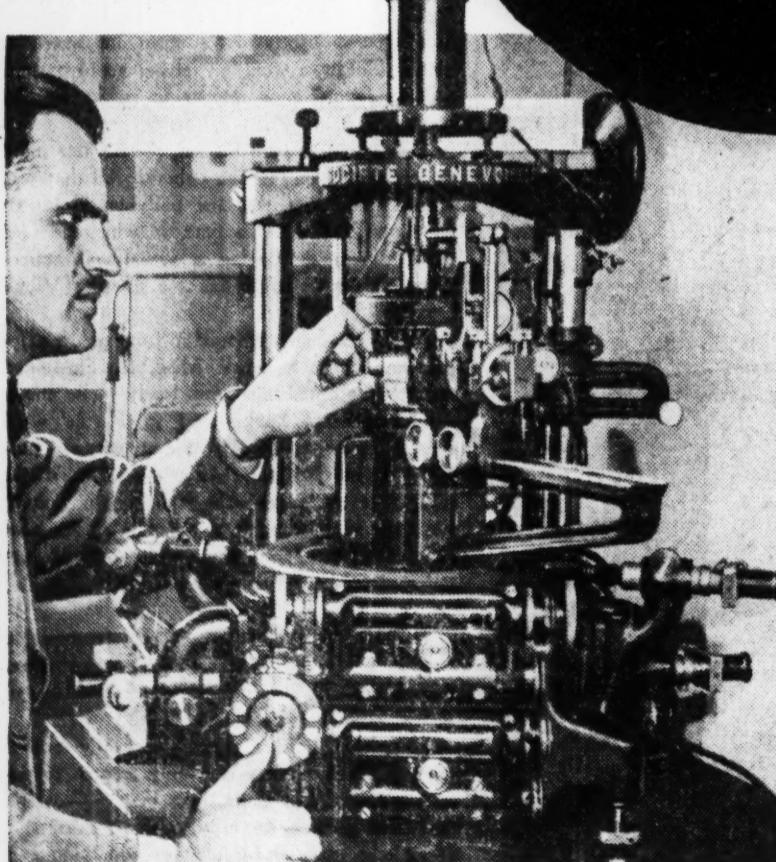

Then one day Miss Doris Debutante walks into a tenement on one of her missions of charity and . . . horror of horrors . . . discovers a gold tub alongside the kitchen sink. Horrified by this revelation, Miss Debutante rushes madly out of the building. Soon all her friends know of this horrible truth. In no time at all the city dumps shimmer with discarded gold tubs and once again the Sahara plant faces a crisis.

Midas, Inc., decides to go into bankruptcy and the Sahara Desert returns to its peaceful state; a wasteland occasionally crossed by slow-moving caravans.

The possibility of such a fantastic occurrence taking place seems absurd, but statements by Dunikowski and his attorney after their court room demonstration seem to indicate that they themselves realized the danger of a "Midas curse."

When Dunikowski was asked after his successful experiment before the government expert why he didn't go ahead and make gold, he answered, cautiously: "To experiment and to manufacture are quite two different things. To produce gold in large amounts, we need much capital and much costly machinery. We shall sell, but we shall not sell cheaply. For the present, I am content with the thought that my success will clear my name."

As a result of the flood of offers and crack-brained proposals he has received, the humble little inventor has had to move and live in a new home under an assumed name.

Dunikowski, a wizened, bushy-haired Pole, with the bright, perceptive eyes of a scientific genius, had been experimenting for many years with a device to obtain gold from ordinary sand. It was in 1931, while in Rome, that his work first showed the fruits of his labor. He declared himself able to produce about three grams of pure gold a day, which he sold to jewelers and the Banca Nazionale d'Italia, and which he used to support himself and his family.

Unable to carry out his plans because of lack of funds, he moved to the French Riviera in 1932. Finally, he was able to ant hush fell upon the judges, lawyers and spectators. Dunikowski picked up a handful of sand, dramatically held his hand aloft, dropped the sand into the machine, pushed gadgets and waited . . . but unfortunately no gold was produced.

Dunikowski asserted that his machine had been damaged in transport, but to no avail. He was convicted of fraud and sentenced to spend thirty months in jail. While in prison he carried on his experiments as best he could, striving constantly to find out what had caused the machine to fail so miserably.

Because of the model life he had led as an inmate, after twenty of the thirty months had passed, he was dismissed.

While Dunikowski was serving his sentence, his lawyer, Albert LeGrand, had received a letter from Genoa lawyer, Vincente Ameglio, containing a generous offer for LeGrand and Dunikowski to come to the Italian town of San Remo, not far from the French border, and to conduct further experiments, as guests of his.

At the expiration of Dunikowski's time in jail, LeGrand and he accepted the invitation and in February, 1935, arrived in San Remo. LeGrand rented a small two-room apartment for Dunikowski to carry out his research.

LeGrand then asked the court in which Dunikowski had been convicted to appoint an official expert to witness a new set of experiments. If the expert reported favorably he would appeal the case solely to exonerate his client, whom he firmly believed innocent of any fraud in testifying in the money he had been paid to the onlookers gathered round the machine.

Two hours later, expert Bonn began a minute check-up of Dunikowski's work. Using Dunikowski's process he took four different kinds of sand and set to work. His tests were finished at 11 P. M.

up his apparatus, Bonn arrived, eager to watch the Polish alchemist's experiments in this strange realm. With a number of newspapermen he crowded into the small apartment and waited.

At 8 A. M. Dunikowski took a handful of sand, gathered at the beach of San Remo and put it in a tank in his machine. He subjected the sand to a heat of 1400 degrees Celsius, and later exposed it for ten minutes to radio-active rays. After four hours of work the wizened little man, tremblingly and smilingly, proffered a small number of gold nuggets to the onlookers gathered round the machine.

Two hours later, expert Bonn began a minute check-up of Dunikowski's work. Using Dunikowski's process he took four different kinds of sand and set to work. His tests were finished at 11 P. M.

Calling the newspaper men together, he issued the following statement:

tests amalgamation was used, a process of extracting gold and silver from their ores by means of mercury. It depends on the fact that mercury adheres to metallic gold and silver and penetrates them, forming pasty amalgams. Particles of amalgam readily adhere to each other and the aggregates become large and heavy enough to sink in running water, which carries away the superfluous sand.

In test No. 2 fourteen pounds of sand were amalgamated four hours in an Abbe pebble mill. Water, in the proportion of one part to two parts of sand, was added, move and live with caustic soda equal to two pounds.

Governor Paul V. McNutt's Shoulder as He Signed Her Anti-Love-Suit Law. She Cried saded to "Make the World Safe for Men."

WHEN dashing Henry Taylor, radio crooner, wrote fervent love letters to dazzling Vera Grove, he might have suspected that he was making a mistake—but certainly he never dreamed he was making history.

He was, though. For all because of those love letters—and certain other incidents such as his marriage to another girl after he'd promised to marry Vera—Taylor's name, and Vera's too, will probably go down in legal history as the principals in the last successful Broadway "heart balm" suit ever tried.

Broadway has been famous for many years for its glamorous love-and-law imbroglios. It has been a long—and very colorful—parade. Vera ended it.

At the very moment that a silk-stockinged sheriff's jury was awarding the charming blonde showgirl a $100,000 verdict against Taylor, in her suit for breach of promise to marry the New York State Legislature was in the act of passing its new statute, which hereafter bans all such legal actions from the tribunals of the Empire State.

Of course, the new law didn't affect such breach of promise suits as were pending in the courts—and it further set a 60-day period during which new suits might be filed—but past experience shows that legal actions brought under a law which has been removed from the statute books don't stand much chance with juries. (You'll remember how very few convictions there were under the Volstead Act, during the period when repeal was on its way.) So while there's still a chance that other suits may be filed—and one at least has been—it's not at all unlikely that Vera is the last of the lovely ladies who, from time to time have persuaded New York courts that their broken hearts should be stitched up by dollars.

There'll be no more "heart balm" suits in Indiana, either, that State having pointed the way for New York by passing, some weeks before, a similar ban on actions for breach of promise, seduction, alienation of affections and "criminal conversation."

And in legislatures of Maryland,

Ohio, Illinois, Texas, Idaho, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, and even Massachusetts, similar bills were the subject of determined support this year. It looks like the real end of the "heart balm" era in American courts—and, with it, the end of a thriving love-me-or-pay-up industry which has fed upon the law's provisions intended to protect those helpless creatures—women.

It was a woman, to be sure, who started what she terms this "crusade to make the world safe for men." Mrs. Roberta West Nicholson, Indiana's only woman legislator, introduced and fought for the measure which, after State Assembly and Senate had passed it, was enacted into law by the signature of Governor Paul V. McNutt.

And maybe Vera's pink ears didn't burn—or did they?—when she read what Mrs. Legislator Nicholson had to say on the subject of "heart balm."

"It is my contention," said Mrs. Nicholson, "that she is a daughter-in-law of Meredith Nicholson, the romantic author and diplomat, that extortion suits of this sort, with their attendant publicity, are a detriment to public morals.

"They induce a sordid and vulgar conception of marital affairs in the minds of the immature.

"We would like young people to know that marriage is a divine sacrifice—not a commercial agreement. I would like to remind lawyers, too, that 90 per cent of the so-called 'heart balm' suits —phrase that is nauseating to self-respecting women—never reach the courts. They are blackmail suits simply, in which the principals attempt to capitalize on someone's indiscretions.

"There is no cash value on misconduct and I submit to you that love and respect and affections are not transferable, negotiable commodities—certainly not recoverable in a court of law.

"Women do not demand rights, they earn them! They ask no such privileges as those which are abolished by this bill."

Although the suits which now are banned in New York and Indiana have poured into American courts for generations, their legal basis is perhaps not generally understood. Lumped under the popular title of "heart balm," they are of four sorts.

Civil suits for "seduction" are occasionally brought in connection with suits claiming breach of promise to marry.

"Alienation of affections" has been made the basis for claims against persons whom the plaintiffs declare "stole the love" of husband or wife. Another type of the "alienation" claim is frequently levied against parents or relatives of a husband or wife who, according to the "wronged" marital partner, had influenced a spouse against his or her mate and broken up a marriage or engagement.

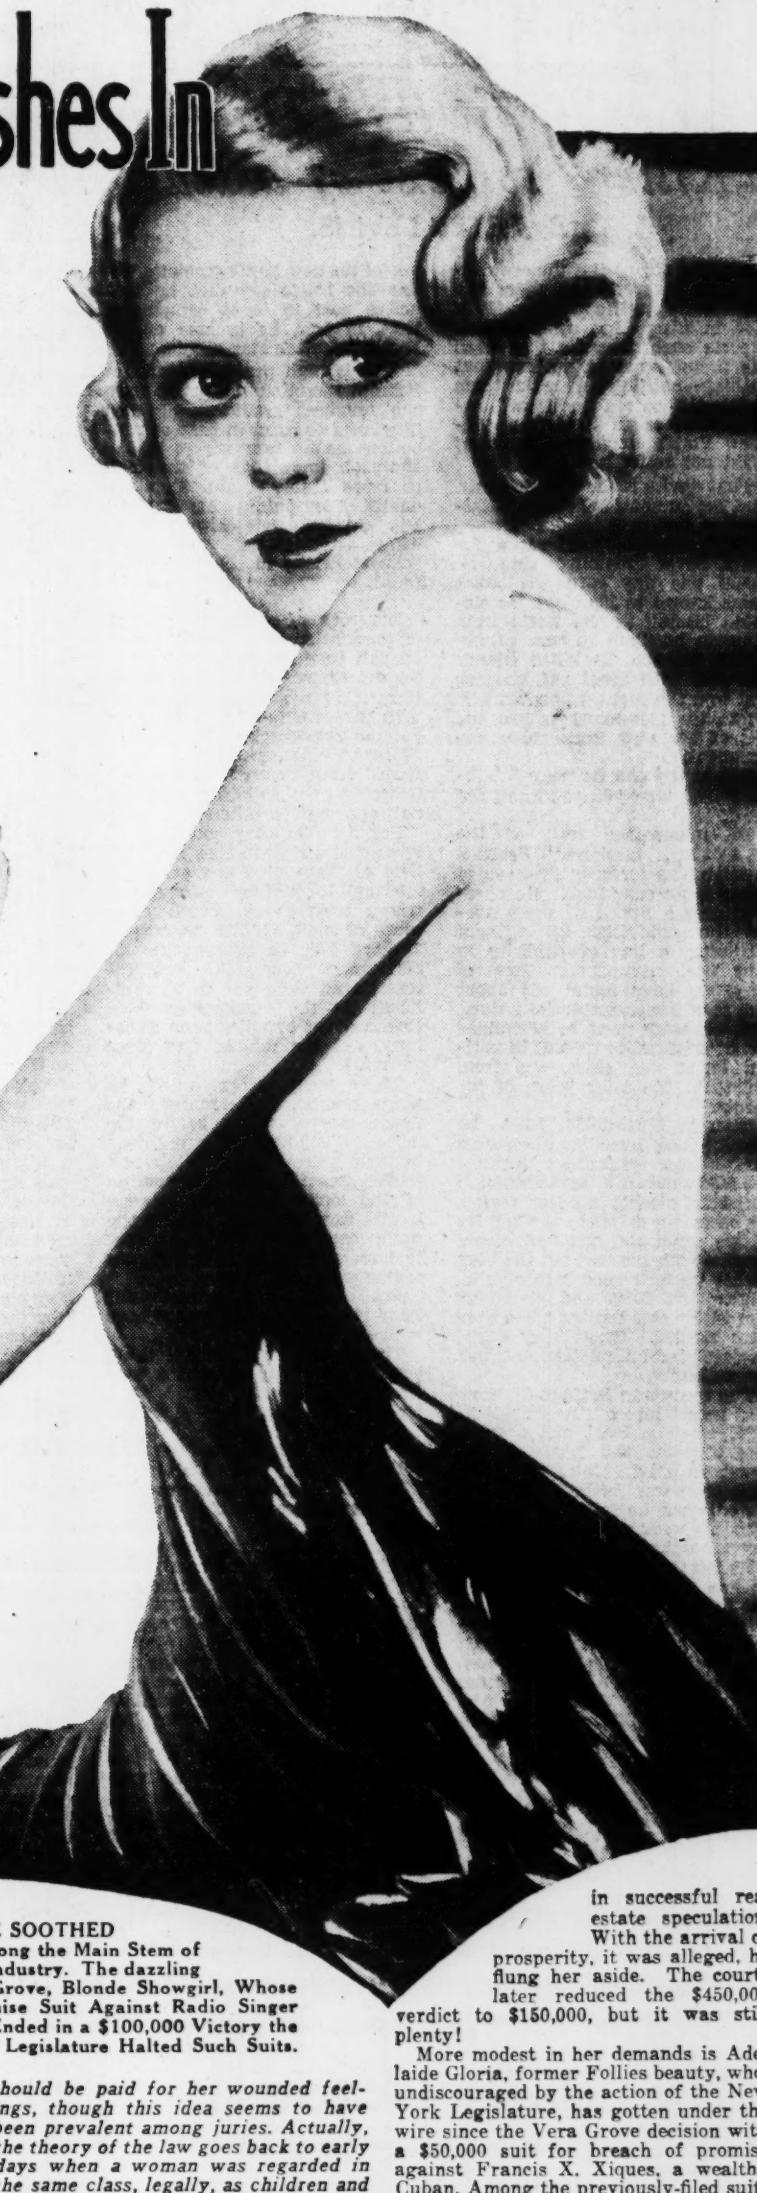

"Criminal conversation" suits, the fourth type, rarely reach the courts.

This is the term used for the legal action sometimes brought by a husband or wife against a co-respondent in a divorce action, where the ground for divorce has been that of infidelity. The mere threat of such action, it has been pointed out, was a prevalent method for working the old "badger game" racket and collecting blackmail.

Why it is that women have always enjoyed greater privileges than men in these types of legal actions, is explained by Theodore Apstein, general counsel for the National Divorce Reform League, who has consistently crusaded for changes in the laws dealing with domestic relations.

"Heart balm," says Mr. Apstein, "was always a misnomer. The theory of the law was not that a lilted woman should be paid for her wounded feelings, though this idea seems to have been prevalent among juries. Actually, the theory of the law goes back to early days when a woman was regarded in the same class, legally, as children and imbeciles.

"The law has always had basically in mind the 'stake' which the State has in its people. The theory was that, if a woman did not marry, she was likely to become a public charge—since there was, in the eyes of the law, no way in which she could support herself."

"Hence, if she were seduced or if a man promised to marry her and didn't, her subsequent marriageability was supposedly lessened or eliminated. Thus, the law theorized, the man should be made to pay her—not for her broken heart, but to prevent her from becoming a charge on the State."

"You can see how ridiculous this is, in the light of modern economic life!"

Many of the plaintiffs in breach of promise actions in the past have been pretty young women whose appearance, it always has been suspected, influenced susceptible jurors in their favor. This may have been true of some Broadway suits—but the strange fact is, the woman in whose favor the largest verdict of all time was returned was singularly unattractive! Yet she made the Broadway heart-balmers look like pikers.

She was Mrs. Bertha Cleavenger, Middle-Aged Detroit Widow. Made Broadway's Heart-Balmers Look Pale—a Jury Awarded Her $450,000!

influenced susceptible jurors in their favor. This may have been true of some Broadway suits—but the strange fact is, the woman in whose favor the largest verdict of all time was returned was singularly unattractive! Yet she made the Broadway heart-balmers look like pikers.

She was Mrs. Bertha Cleavenger, a

Detroit widow, 43 years old, stout and plain, to whom a jury awarded the whopping sum of $450,000 in her suit against John H. Castle, millionaire real estate operator.

Years before the suit was brought, Castle had been a $6-a-day worker in the Ford plant and a boarder at Mrs. Cleavenger's home. She, it was testified, had loaned him $1,500, with which he laid the foundations of his fortune in successful real estate speculation. With the arrival of prosperity, it was alleged, he flung her aside. The courts later reduced the $450,000 verdict to $150,000, but it was still plenty!

More modest in her demands is Adelaide Gloria, former Follies beauty, who, undisengaged by the action of the New York Legislature, has gotten under the wire since the Vera Grove decision with a $50,000 suit for breach of promise against Francis X. Xiques, a wealthy Cuban. Among the previously-filed suits decided since Vera won her claim was that of Mrs. Maud Kimbell, who was awarded $15,000 only the other day.

And beautiful, blonde Vera may never collect her $100,000 after all. Taylor, who did not even appear to contest Vera's suit, contends that he's broke and couldn't pay one "grand," much less a hundred!

In the days when he and Vera met, the crooner admits, he was prosperous, but now things are different.

They met, as Vera recited in her successful complaint, at a night club where both were appearing as performers—she as a chorus girl and he as one of the "Three Radio Rogues." To put it in the words of Vera's complaint: "said friendship ripened, became closer and more intimate, and defendant became more and more ardent in his attentions."

So ardently did Taylor become, Vera further stated, that she at last went to share an apartment with him. There she was known as Mrs. Henry Taylor—which, she said, she expected to become in fact as soon as they got around to having a wedding ceremony—and everything was lovely until the "Three Radio Rogues" went out on the road. Even then, Henry wrote and telegraphed frequently, using such endearing terms as "Dearest Baby," "Darling Angel" and "Snugs."

But when Vera had to go to a hospital for an appendicitis operation, Taylor not only neglected to pay the bill—which he'd promised to do—but he stopped writing, she declared. Not long afterward, he met a former sweetheart, Miss Estelle Fried, in Baltimore, and promptly married her.

Vera is 22 years old and has a son of five. When she was 16, she married out in California and subsequently won a divorce.

She doesn't at present appear to hold a very high opinion of Henry Taylor, but he is on record as feeling very friendly toward her. Even after she filed suit, he told an interviewer:

"She's one of the grandest kids I've ever met, in or out of show business." Which opinion may or may not still hold in Taylor's mind, now that dazzling Vera has become, in the annals of Broadway "heart balm," an historic character.

MIGNON, in her "THINGS THAT MAKE WOMEN MORE BEAUTIFUL," describes for her followers during the coming week, "A perfect container for carrying perfume in a purse" and "A wonderful aid for overworked pedal extremities." Mignon's articles are published on the woman's page of The Constitution every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

JUSTICE AND THE SQUEALER IN DEATH HOUSE

Terror Whittles "Toughest Killer" to Size of a Rat

By PETER LEVINS.

THE code of the underworld calls for silence under the most terrific pressure. It is vice in Sing Sing prison which experts such pressure that even the proud boast of outlaws that nothing—not even death itself—can make them violate this sacred tradition. However, there is an ingenious device—"New York's toughest gunman" could not resist it.

That device is the electric chair. And the gunman is Leonard (Naldi) Scarnici.

Naldi Scarnici went along for years, never dreaming that he would one day earn the worst name known to his class. He elevated himself in the world from common hoodlum to rum runner to ace assassin, he killed friends and foes with equal ruthlessness, and won the highest possible title (from his viewpoint) within the gift of the New York police department.

But in the end he "sang," talked, spilled his—well you know the word.

To follow the trail of the swarthy, black-eyed Scarnici through the tortuous ways of crime is no easy task. He operated over a period of years during the prohibition age without attracting a line of publicity in New York newspapers. Most of what we have found out about him is of a circumstantial nature, and the story must be assembled out of brief police records in various towns and cities, and from events in the later years of his career.

Born in Springfield, Mass., he was a young hoodlum when New York liquor racketeers invaded the Berkshires and began running booze and alcohol into that region. He became a driver in the employ of the syndicate, and had minor brushes with the law, but the boys higher up took good care of him, paying his fines and supplying him with clever lawyers when they were needed. Thus, very early, he developed an abiding contempt for authority.

The records in Springfield show that he got into a little trouble in 1924, when a local girl accused him of being the father of her new-born child. Naldi was fined $500, then was jailed for a short period when he failed to keep up with his weekly payments to the young mother.

He left Springfield in 1926, when he was graduated from rum runner to the rank of gunman. The records do not show exactly how he spent his time during the next few years, but it is now believed that he performed many murder assignments for New York and Boston gangsters. He visited Springfield late in April, 1927, and was seen in the company of Frank Wilson, a former buddy working for a local racketeer as chauffeur and bodyguard.

Wilson was never seen alive after April 27, 1927. Gang wars raged from time to time in New York, New Jersey and Boston, but the name of Leonard Scarnici never figured in any of the newspaper accounts. Today the police say that he took active part in these campaigns, that, in fact, he became one of Dutch Schultz's star killers.

This is high praise, indeed, for Schultz recruited his gangs from the toughest graduates of Sing Sing, and to excel in that organization meant iron nerves and a thorough knowledge of the tools of one's trade. Naldi Scarnici qualified, he outdid his fellows. His murders were always clean affairs—and we use the word "clean" strictly in the underworld sense.

His work, of course, was not all extermination—there were hardly enough such assignments to go round. Consequently he busied himself in robberies, teaming up with Morris (Big Moishe) Shapiro, veteran safe-cracker; David (The Zipper) Reiner, who had a police record in dozen cities; Max Schecter, another hardened criminal, and various others.

For a while they concentrated upon post offices in New England. One of these jobs was pulled in the small town of Salisbury, Conn., where they escaped with eight sacks of mail, $12,706 in postal savings, $350 in stamps, and 50 blank money orders. Postal inspectors traced their car to a farmhouse on the outskirts of New Haven about 50 miles from Salisbury, but the robbers had since departed.

Three men, accompanied by three women, had rented the house several weeks before the robbery. They had evidently driven to their hideout immediately and settled down to an examination of the loot. The stamps were hardly worth bothering with; the postal savings were a bit too hot to handle; and the blank money orders were also risky.

But the eight sacks of mail—ah! They ripped open the locked bags with sharp knives.

The first bag contained nothing but little boxes and each box contained laxative tablets. They tackled the second bag—more little boxes of tablets. In fact, the whole eight sacks were stuffed with little boxes and nothing else.

They were samples sent out by a Salsbury concern which specialized in laxatives.

Forged money orders turned up in Brooklyn, with the result that on March 3, 1930 postal inspectors and New York officers stopped a taxicab on Brooklyn bridge. The passengers were Scarnici, Shapiro and Schecter. Naldi was wearing a gun in a shoulder holster, and Big Moishe had a whole outfit of sectional drills draped across his chest.

The prisoners went to Welfare Island while the federal authorities hunted for enough evidence to warrant the extradition to Connecticut, Massachusetts. What the officers hoped for particularly was a squeal. Scarnici chortled at the thought. Him squeal? What a laugh!

Big Moishe would have been

MAY 11—SATURDAY: The influences previous to 12:24 p. m. favor unique ideas, transportation, advertising and research work. This will be an auspicious time for public ventures, for dealings with relatives, for liquids, and matters relating to art. Between 12:24 p. m. and 5:01 p. m. it would be better to curtail your activities, for this will be a time of extreme and unexpected moods, causing nervousness and worry. This period does not favor written matters and correspondence. Between 5:01 p. m. and 5:55 p. m. may bring a desire to put affairs over in a hurry, and much can be accomplished therefore, if things are done at once. never own another dog, not in this world. Too harrowing. We've had six, always Boston, and inevitably comes the day when the hospital lady telephones with her bad news. No sir-re! No more of that for us, for it is almost the same as losing a member of the family—in fact, a Boston pup is a member of the family, after he's been under your feet for seven years.

About the fifth dogless day, the house began to take on a slightly haunted feeling. Not enough noise. No scratching sounds. There was an old swing in the yard where the Skipper was wont to snooze away the afternoon and we hastily gave that to the Salvation Army truck, but it didn't do any good.

"Maybe," I opened up, "maybe we ought to get us a new dog. After all, we are normally a dog family and this preternatural silence around here is giving me the willies."

Everyone immediately agreed.

"But no more Boston. They are entirely too fragile for this world. We've had miserable luck with small animals, so suppose we purchase a large, quiet, meditative dog with a philosophic outlook on life. Boston are always fretting themselves into a fever."

She always had a hunch about the dog hospital. The doctors are all kindly, gentle and helpful, but nevertheless, the Skipper used to shudder whenever we drove her over to the hospital for some mild ailment, like red-eye or hot nose. She just didn't like the place and there was a reason for her fear.

Once upon a time, she had four pups in the hospital, and it took a Cesarian to pull her through, and for many months thereafter, she lay weak and motionless in the sun, teetering on the brink of the next world. Being a simple and limited creature, she naturally figured that every time we headed her for the hospital, it was another case of four more pups and a narrow squeak.

This time, she came down suddenly with a sickness, that if you get it you're a dog, your goose is cooked. I didn't know, I thought it was just another stomachache from eating snails.

Well, the dog hospital telephone lady rang me up on the fourth day and said, "I've got some bad news for you." That's all she needed to say, and for the next five days, our place was like a moratorium. We all swore fervently we'd

"The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures"

From "Icones Biblicae," Swiss Elcher Matthew Merian's Chronological Story of the Bible, Published in 1625, in Germany

No. 191—"Christ Blesses Little Children."—"And they brought unto Him also infants, that He would touch them; but when His disciples saw it, they rebuked them. But Jesus called them unto Him, and said, Suffer the little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God. And I say unto you, whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child shall in no wise enter into it." Luke xviii, 15-17. We find the same in Matthew, xii, 13-15, and in Mark x, 13-16. Immature children told the incident of the rich young man, "And a certain ruler asked Him, saying, Good Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" And Jesus said unto him, "Why callest thou Me good? none is good save one, that is, God. Thou knowest the commandments. Do not commit adultery. Do not kill. Do not steal. Do not bear false witness. Honor thy father and thy mother. And he said, All these things have I kept from my youth up. Now when Jesus heard these things, He said unto him, Yet lackest thou one thing: sell all that thou hast, and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow Me. And when he heard this, he was very sorrowful, for he was very rich, and when Jesus saw that he was very sorrowful, He said, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God! For it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. And they that heard it said, Who then can be saved? And he said, The things which are impossible with men are possible with God. Then Peter said, Lo, we have left all, and followed Thee. And he came unto them. Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children for the kingdom of God's sake. Who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting." Luke xviii, 18-30. The story of the rich young ruler also is recorded in Matthew xix, 16-23, and in Mark x, 17-22.

No. 192—"The Parable of the Labourers in the Vineyard."—"Following the teachings concerning the rewards awaiting those who follow Him, Jesus told His disciples the parable of the workers in the vineyard. 'For the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is a householder, which went out early in the morning to hire labourers into his vineyard. And when he had agreed with the labourers for a penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard. And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the marketplace, and said unto them; Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you.' And when he said this, again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise. And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found others standing idle, and saith unto them, 'Why stand ye here all day idle?' They say unto him, 'Because no man hath hired us.' He saith unto them, 'Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive.' So when even was come, the lord of the vineyard saith unto his steward, 'Call the labourers, and give them their hire. But when the first came, they supposed that they should have received more; and they likewise received every man a penny. And when they had received it, they murmured against the good man of the house, saying, These last have wrought but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day. But he answered one of them, and said, Friend, I do thee no wrong; did not thou agree with me for a penny? Take that thine is, and go thy way; I will give unto this last, even as unto thee. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Is thine eye evil, because I am good? So the last shall be first, and first last; for many be called; but few chosen." Matthew xx, 1-16.

No. 193—"Jesus Restores Bartimaeus' Sight."—"The third prediction of the Passion is recorded in each of the first three Gospels, and Matthew and Mark also tell of the request of James and John that they sit on the right and the left hand of Jesus in His glory. The healing of blind Bartimaeus is in Matthew, Mark and Luke, and the following verses from the Second Gospel predict the Passion and tell the story of Bartimaeus' healing: "And as He went out of the way going up to Jerusalem; and Jesus went before them; and they were amazed; and as they followed them they were afraid. And He took aside the two, and began to tell them what things should happen unto Him, saying, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem; and the Son of man shall be delivered unto the chief priests, and unto the scribes; and they shall condemn Him to death, and shall deliver Him to the Gentiles; And they shall mock Him, and spit upon Him, and scourge Him; and shall kill Him; and after three days He shall rise again." Mark x, 32-34. "And they came to Jericho; and as He went out of Jericho with His disciples and a great number of people, blind Bartimaeus, the son of Timaeus, sat by the highway side begging. And when he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry out, and say, Jesus, Thou Son of David, have mercy on me. And many charged him that he should hold his peace; but he cried the more a great deal. Thou Son of David, have mercy on me. And Jesus stood still, and commanded him to be called. And they called the blind man, saying unto him, Be of good comfort, rise. He calleth thee. And he, casting away his garment, rose, and came to Jesus. And Jesus answered and said unto him, What wilt thou that I should do unto thee? The blind man said unto Him, Lord, that I might receive my sight. And Jesus said unto him, Go thy way; thy faith hath made thee whole. And immediately he received his sight, and followed Jesus in the way." Mark x, 46-52.

Culbertson on Contract

LAWS AND SYSTEMS

BY ELY CULBERTSON.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

THERE is an important distinction between bridge laws and bridge systems. Bridge laws comprise the scoring and penalties regulating the orderly march to game; they are the traffic lights flashing red and green signals. When the unhappy player parks his card on the wrong side of the table or revokes, he gets a ticket. Bridge systems deal with the technique of bidding and play.

It is true the new laws modify bidding and playing systems. For instance, my associates and I, anticipating the bridge law changes have been working for the past year or so pointing out the new stream-lined Culbertson system to meet those changes. As you know, we have not altered the fundamentals of the approach-forcing principle but have added two important features with regard to expert play.

OVERCALLS.

Many players get into serious difficulty with overcalls. With the tightening up of opening bid requirements this phase of the game calls for greater attention and more care. In the new 1935 stream-lined Culbertson system special stress has been laid upon overcalling.

A minimum overcall should never be given when vulnerable unless your hand is sure to take within two tricks of your contract and within three tricks, if not vulnerable. An overcall in a suit usually shows 1-1-3 to 3-2 honor-tricks and a five card bidable suit. To overcall an opponent's suit with one or two no-trump shows one or more stoppers in the suit overcalled.

A single jump overcall is a strength showing bid. When you bid one more than necessary the hand should indicate eight winners and a two suiter or a strong rebidding suit.

With at least 3 plus honor-tricks in three suits if able to support any suit partner names, double for a takeout.

This system of overcalling has been tried with hundreds of hands of all sorts of distributional patterns and has more than justified itself. With a little study you will find these rules will cover every contingency except the overcall in opponent's suit and the overcall of a preemptive bid.

TO FINESSE OR SQUEEZE?

To finesse or squeeze? That is the question that the declarer is frequently called upon to answer. While in many cases, the choice is a mere guess, yet there are instances in which this guess can be based on certain evidence gathered from adversaries' leads and discards. This is one of the reasons why experienced players are loath to make normal leads against slam contracts.

In the hand given above, East was notoriously a routine player and led with the four of clubs. The declarer was convinced that the jack would not fall and that the thirteenth trick would have to be developed in diamonds. If East held the queen of diamonds, the finesse would succeed; if East held it, he would be unable to guard it and the club jack as well, for North could run ten tricks, leaving East with only three cards. In order to get East's reaction, four spades were run. A crafty player would first discard a diamond, but not East—he discards a heart, which indicated that he was anxious to guard the diamonds and thus provide declarer with some evidence in favor of leading the queen with West. So now North cashed his club ace and took three club tricks. East finally let go a diamond, but, after cashing the king of clubs, declarer played out his ace and king of diamonds and the queen dropped.

It costs us 60 cents a day and will be a little more when he grows up—I imagine about two dollars an hour, after he gets his full, adult appetite. He is growing stronger daily and can now raise himself off the rug if given time. At first, he could fall down perfectly, but was no good on the up stroke. He is also powerful enough to pull over a 50-pound bridge lamp, haul all the light plugs out of their sockets, and any family possession he hits with his tail is just something you formerly owned. He tries sleeping in the Skipper's old dog-house, but the idea was not good, as we had to take the roof off and pry him out with a hammer. He looks like an idiot and everything he does is precisely what an idiot would do if undisturbed, so I believe we will keep him.

The family was annoyed the other morning when it was discovered that in his early morning frolics, Jeeter had taken down a small tree and was apparently going to eat it, root by root. "That's all right," I said. "Let him play. You wanted a large dog and that's what you have. He is a healthy brute and will probably never die. Another thing."

"What?" "You'll never find him over in the dog hospital with four paws and a Cesarian—not Jeeter, the Great Dane."

Polka Dots ■ Checks ■ and Cloques for Spring

Jackets, Ensembles and Evening Gowns From the Late Collections Feature Charming and Youthful Effects

A CHARMING variety of frocks and gowns, ranging from tailored suits to the most frivolous of evening gowns for late Spring and early Summer wear is illustrated today.

Three models typical of the Spring mode are shown in the center panel. To the left is a sports suit of grey jersey worn with a navy jersey pull-over upon which grey coin dots are applied. In the center is an all-day ensemble of navy cloque which combines a simple frock with a sleeveless coat. The dainty ruffles at wrists and throat are of starched handkerchief linen. A charming frock for general wear is Borea's scarlet jersey shown at right.

To the immediate left is shown one of the new afternoon ensembles—a charming model in black taffeta cloque. The cloque is like an inch square quilting, very puffy and light and done with elastic. A striking note is found in the use of delft blue for the girdle and coat lining.

To the right is one of the first of the early summer evening frocks, a delightful affair of navy organza, entirely embroidered in white polka dots and featuring an enormous white starched linen collar.

PRAISE FROM A READER FOR TALMUDIC TALES: "These choice bits of philosophy and common sense are valuable to every age and condition of men, regardless of sources; but when we realize that it is from such Hebrew sources that Christ and Christianity came, I, as a Christian minister, feel that we owe Mr. Morantz and THE CONSTITUTION a debt of gratitude for making easily accessible to all such a fund of wit, wisdom and common sense which otherwise would be available to few—even our ministers." TALMUDIC TALES appear daily on the editorial page of THE CONSTITUTION.

BOHGDU'S MADNESS

THE STORM ROLLED SWIFTLY OVER THE HORIZON AND WHIPPED DOWN FURIOUSLY UPON THE FRAIL RAFT OF THE THREE FUGITIVES.

THE PUNY RAFT WAS TOSSED DIZZILY FROM CREST TO TROUGH OF TOWERING WAVES WHILE TARZAN, SYBIL AND BOHGDU HUNG ON DESPERATELY WITH ACHING HANDS.

ONCE SYBIL LOST HER HOLD. ALMOST SHE WAS SWEEPED INTO THE FOAMING SEA. BUT TARZAN REACHED OUT AND SAVED HER.

THE APE ROARED IN A FRENZY OF TERROR. THOUGH HE WAS BRAVE IN BATTLE, FEAR OF THE STORM WAS IN THE BLOOD OF HIS RACE.

THROUGH THE LONG DAY AND THE FEARSOME NIGHT THEY WERE EVER NEAR TO DEATH. THEN THE STORM BEGAN TO ABATE.

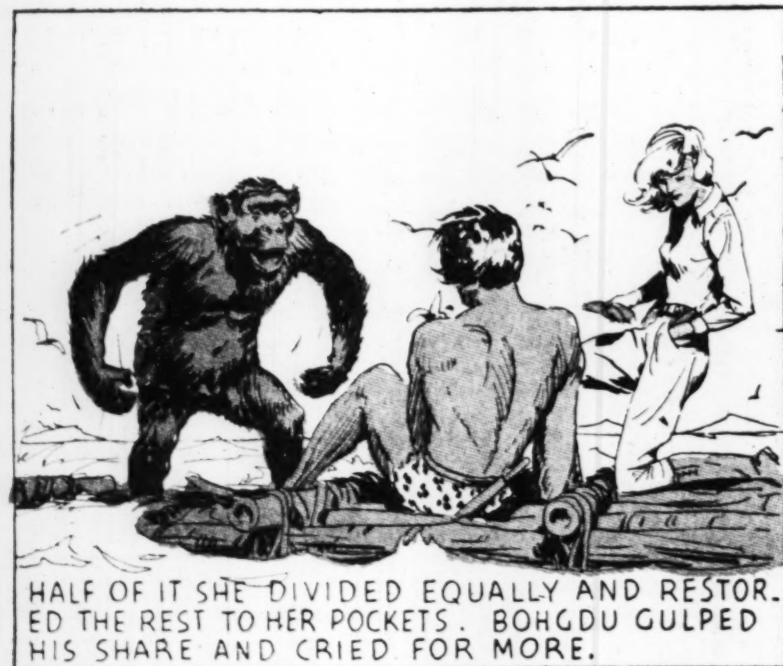

BOHGDU, NOW MADDENED BY HUNGER AS WELL AS TERROR, STARTED TO GNAW THE VINES THAT HELD THE RAFT TOGETHER.

HIS MASTER CUFFED HIM SHARPLY, AND THE REASONLESS APE SNARLED. "POOR FELLOW," SAID TARZAN. "ANYWAY WE SHALL ALL STARVE TOGETHER."

SYBIL SMILED WEAKLY AND DREW SOME FRUIT FROM HER POCKETS. "I GATHERED IT WHILE YOU WERE BUILDING THE RAFT," SHE SAID PROUDLY.

HALF OF IT SHE DIVIDED EQUALLY AND RESTORED THE REST TO HER POCKETS. BOHGDU GULPED HIS SHARE AND CRIED FOR MORE.

SYBIL MADE A NEGATIVE GESTURE. BOHGDU UNDERSTOOD, AND NOW HIS EYES BLAZED WITH MURDEROUS FURY. HE WAITED HIS CHANCE.

NEXT WEEK: THE MONSTER
THEN AS TARZAN TURNED TO TIGHTEN A VINE, THE MAD BEAST SPRANG AT SYBIL AND CLUTCHED HER THROAT IN HIS POWERFUL PAWS!

THE SUDS DO THE WORK FOR YOU

See how much money you save on clothes washed this "no-scrub" way

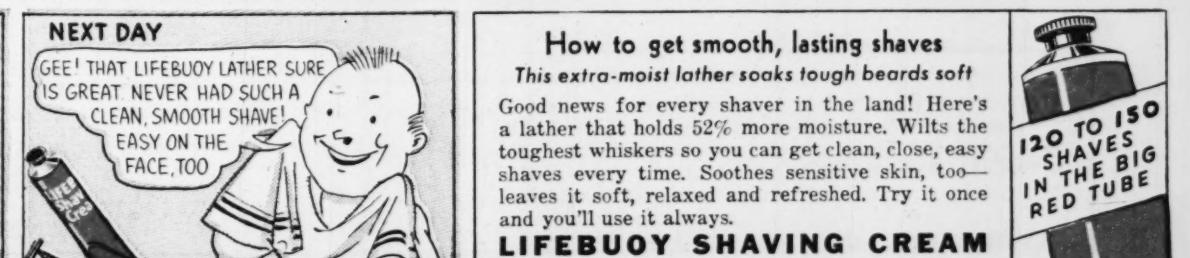

MORE popular than ever—Rinso—the soap that saves time, work, and money! No scrubbing with Rinso; clothes last 2 or 3 times longer. That means you'll save money every time you use Rinso. Safe for colors, too; keeps them fresh and bright. Easy on hands. Never gives them that red, rough look.

A little Rinso gives rich, lasting suds—even in hardest water. Recommended by makers of 34 famous washers. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Get the BIG "thrift package" of Rinso. Use it for dishes and all cleaning. It's so economical. Try it!

THE BIGGEST-SELLING PACKAGE SOAP IN AMERICA

How to get smooth, lasting shaves

This extra-moist lather soaks tough beards soft! Good news for every shaver in the land! Here's a lather that holds 52% more moisture. Wilts the toughest whiskers so you can get clean, close, easy shaves every time. Soothes sensitive skin, too—leaves it soft, relaxed and refreshed. Try it once and you'll use it always.
